Some Successful Islanders Abroad

(Special Correspondence of The Examiner.)

On Monday afternoon we left Vancouver in charge of a New Brunswicker as conductor, and a son of our esteemed friend A. McNeill, Esq., at the brakes. By daylight the Sicamous Junction was reached, and as we had decided to run down the Okonagan Valley as far as Vernon our car was uncoupled, and after a visit from another most "successful Islander abroad," Mr. Commiskey, the agent at this point, we took breakfast and made ready to take the valley train. The much talked of Okonagan is made up of a number of those southern interior valleys of British Columbia forming part of the continental depression which extends to the Southern States. The general physical characteristics of this country are those of an undulating elevated table land, varying in altitude from one to three thousand feet, embracing rich open bottom lands surrounded by grassy benches intersected by rivers and low mountains, and enjoying a delightful climate. This section is one of rich and varied resources, and the fruits of the soil comprise all those indigenous to the north temperate zone. The advantages it boasts besides its railway, which has since this spring been opened from Sicamous, are briefly these: Great fertility of soil, easy cultivation, sure crops and large demand owing to distance from competing regions. Of course the country is new yet, and but little developed, but sufficiently so to satisfy us of the justice of the above claim.

Together with the superintendent of the road and our friend Commisky, we made the run through to Vernon, admiring the hay, grass and root crops, the herds of cattle, the beautiful forest, and the abundant game, as we went. At Vernon, a small town with three hotels, teams were engaged and the 13,000 acre ranch and farm of Lord Aberdeen visited. He has the greater part of this immense holding for grazing, his flocks and herds being very large indeed. Under grain are several hundred acres, and a hundred-acre orchard of apple, plum and pear trees has recently been set out. We also noticed a hop plantation covering twenty-five acres. A brother of Lady Aberdeen manages the farm. The cattle round Vernon were of splendid size and condition, even if the prairie was often, to the eastern eye, very bare. Ever so little prairie grass appears to do wonders in beef-making. There are many flourishing ranches beyond the foothills of Vernon, and mixed farming has succeeded admirably. A great many hogs are raised in this valley, pork being shipped in large consignments to Calgary and Alberta, and to the coast. It is also considered the sportsman's paradise. We ourselves saw grouse of the different species rise as we passed, and millions of wild geese and ducks, we are told, blacken the stubble fields in the early autumn. Fishing is good for trout, salmon, and a kind of landlocked whitefish. Already, dairying, malting and brewing, meat-canning, woodworking, brick-making and milling of all kinds are carried on. To our mind, this section has a busy and successful future before it. Here we met a few Maritime men —one Islander named Bernard.

At Revelstoke Junction some members of our party left us to go down the Columbia and over the Arrow Lakes to Robson, a run of 165 miles through beautiful scenery. From Robson a new railway takes the tourist through the valley of the Kootenay to the numerous rich gold, silver and copper mines, which abound in the mountains near the lake of that name. It is claimed that the lake and mountain scenery of the Kootenay is unsurpassed for beauty in the wide world. Our friends did not, however, tarry to admire the beauties of the place, but hurried on down to the mining town of Nelson to meet acquaintances and learn something of the place. On arriving they met Messrs. Smart and Hume of the Island, both of whom are doing well in their out-of-the-way home. The mines of Nelson are as yet little developed, but at present the town is full of American speculators, and several of them are about changing hands, when a new and more progressive policy is expected.

On Thursday we returned to Alberta to commence a more minute inspection of the great Northwest.

Personal.

Miss Harriet Mytton arrived from London, England, last evening, and will remain in Summerside until next spring.

The daughter of General Flagler, of the War Department at Washington, and Miss Cammilleri are guests at Government House.

Mr. Joseph Roche, of the Boston Transcript, is visiting his parents and friends in this city. He is in good health, and maintains that there is no place like little P. E. Island in which to spend the summer vacation.

The friends of Judge Kelly will be glad to learn that His Honor has so far recovered as to feel justified in leaving the City Hospital and returning to his home Accompanied by Mrs. Kelly he will take passage in the Fastnet to-morrow.

It seems only the other day that Father Burke, the Rev. J. A. Gordon, Messrs. Ferguson, Stewart, Wright and others left to take a trip across the continent; and now they are home again, having travelled—well, about 9,000 miles. Father Burke went to Alberton last evening to be present at the tea of to-morrow, and the others came east to be welcomed at their several homes. We hope to continue the detailed account of their very interesting trip, a portion of which appears to day.

The Guardian reports that while in British Columbia, Hon. D. Ferguson was presented by a friend with a valuable silver-headed walking cane made from a piece of oak from the first steamship that ever rounded Cape Horn and ploughed the waters of the Pacific. A little while ago the hull of this ancient craft could be seen stranded on the coast of British Columbia near Vancouver. It was intended to have it sent to the Chicago exhibition, but some days ago during a storm with a high tide the remains of the old Beaver were carried away by the waves—which goes to show that the best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft—to sea."

The McMillan Case.—An Important Decision.

CHARLES MCMILLAN, who was committed to jail for two months for a violation of the Act passed by the Local House at its last session, was last evening released from imprisonment by order of His Lordship, Chief Justice Sullivan, who decided that the warrant of commitment under which he was detained was illegal and void. The facts are that McMillan, a saloon keeper in Charlottetown, was convicted and fined $100 or two months imprisonment for violating section 8 of the Act, which enacts that no liquor shall be sold from ten o'clock at night until seven o'clock in the morning. The information was laid before the Stipendiary Magistrate by City Marshal Cameron, and after the conviction was made, McMillan was committed to jail under a warrant of commitment directed "to the Marshal, police constables or other peace officers of the said city," and was executed by one of the ordinary policemen After McMillan was committed to jail, Mr. Stewart was retained to obtain his release, and he applied to the Chief Justice for a Habeas Corpus under which the prisoner was brought before His Lordship and his discharge moved for on the grounds, 1st, that the warrant was illegal in being directed to the Marshal who was the prosecutor, and 2nd, that the Act was ultra vires. Mr. Davies, Q. C., on behalf of the City opposed the motion and produced an affidavit of the Marshal stating that he never interfered in the arrest, but left the whole to Policeman Doyle. Mr. Davies argued that the warrant was perfectly legal, and that Cameron had taken no part in its execution. Mr. Stewart, for the prisoner, contended that the warrant was illegal, and void, and whether Cameron executed it or not made no difference whatever: it was directed to him as well as to the other constables, and whether he did or did not execute it was of no importance—a prosecutor must keep aloof from the execution of documents. The question of the constitutionality of the act was barely touched on by either of the learned counsel. His Lordship reserved his decision until yesterday afternoon, when he ordered McMillan's discharge on the ground that the warrant was illegal. On the validity of the Act he expresses no opinion, but states that the Ontario case of Hodge and the Queen which went to the Privy Council, cited in the argument, would seem to be an authority for holding that section 8 of the Act is ultra vires.

Cricket

A return match took place at Victoria Park yesterday afternoon between teams from H. M. S. Pylades and our local club, resulting in a decisive victory for our boys by a run and nine wickets. Stumps were pitched about 2.30, and the ship's team went to bat. Hilgro, the colored bowler, and Cook bowled effectively for the ship, and McQuillan and Courtney, for the home team, disposed of the ship's batsmen in fine style. The score:

The ship's team made 61 runs in the two innings; the home team made 55 runs in the first innings. The latter went in a second time and made 7 runs for two wickets down—a victory for the home team of one run and nine wickets to spare. During the afternoon the officers of the ship entertained the Lawn Tennis and Cricket Clubs to refreshments served in a marquee erected on the grounds.

EDUCATIONAL.—As the Institute for the Western Inspectorate does not meet this year, a committee was appointed to recommend officers for the next year. The officers chosen, and at the afternoon session agreed to, were:—President, W. D. McIntyre, Kensington; Vice-President, Miss Laura Hodgson; Secy.-Treasurer, G. P. McDougald; Executive Committee, Messrs. E. S McPhail, Jardine, N. McLeod, Campbell (Inspector), and Miss Sadie Ross.

WILL LEAVE TO-MORROW.—H. M. S. Pylades will leave to-morrow for Halifax, thence to the West Indies where she will relieve H. M. S. Tartar, which ship will return to Halifax. In November next the Pylades will go out of commission and her crew will return to England.

IN clothing we have just opened a lot of all-wool youth's suits to fit from 13 to 18 years of age, bought at a sacrifice and will be sold at $3.75 a suit, a genuine bargain considering the quality. Our men's and little boys' suits will go cheap. If you are in want of any don't pass us, as we have the goods and prices that will suit you, and for your own sake don't buy a dollars worth until you see our bargains. J. B. Macdonald's Great Clothing Store, 132 Queen Street. aug1

Repairs Needed.

There are three structures at Souris that require immediate repairs. The first is the bridge across the river, the planking on either side of which is full of holes numerous and large enough to make travelling unsafe to man and beast. To prevent accident it should be at once repaired.

The next is the Marine Hospital. This building, for the want of a few dollars spent in necessary repairs, has been allowed to become, for the last number of years, practically useless for the purposes for which it is intended. Some planks and other material were hauled to it months ago, which led people to think that at long last the Marine Department had decided to do something to prevent its tumbling down, but so far nothing further has been done. If the Department means business, why not without delay put this building in fit condition for the reception and care of sick seamen?

The other structure, and most important of all, is the Breakwater. We learn on good authority that a few thousand dollars are badly needed on this work to save it from serious injury—probably by the first southerly gale that comes. The safety of the railway wharf there, in fact the prosperity of the place from a commercial standpoint requires that this breakwater should be kept up. When the Minister of Railways visits Souris one of these days, it would not be out of place to call his attention to this fact. At any rate, a breakwater so important to public interests as this one should not be neglected.

Situation in the States.

The present situation in the United States is summoned up by Henry Clews, who says:—

"In spite of dullnes and excessive heat, prices were well maintained and exhibited a persistent advancing tendency. Briefly stated, the reasons that justify confidence in the market are as follows: (1) There will be no Silver bill this session. (2) There will be no Treasury deficit. (3) There will be no Anti-Option-bill. (4) There will be no tight money. (5) There will be no further large gold exports after this week. (6) Congress is about to adjourn. (7) Railroad earnings are still very encouraging, considering the heavy returns of last year with which they are now comparing. (8) Traffic is ample, and there are smaller inducements than usual for cutting rates. (9) Recent trade combinations and larger resulting profits are beginning to inspire big capitalists with greater confidence as reflected in present movements of the "Industrials." (10) General business is sound, failures being few and the volume of business large in spite of complaints. Some branches of manufacturing are especially active; and many of our best cotton, silk and woolen mills can show a vast improvement over this time last year. (11) The coal combination gives powerful support to an important group of stocks, and is doubtless the basis of an extended speculation which may or may not prove successful. These eleven reasons include the chief influences favoring a better market.

"On the other hand, there are elements which, in the opinion of many, are adverse to any improvement. These may be summarized as follows: (1) The Presidential campaign. (2) Smaller crops than last year. (3) Probable decreased aggregate earnings for present year as compared with the last. (4) Possibility of a decline in our breadstuff exports next season. (5) Labor strikes. (6) Restricted public buying. (7) And the disruption of the Western Traffic Association. The importance attached to each of these drawbacks will vary with the individual. In my judgment they will be greatly overbalanced by the first-mentioned considerations."
