Bird Artists.

That there is a consciousness of beauty on the part of birds is plainly shown by the manner in which many of them decorate their nests and surroundings, and in some instances themselves, notes a writer in Lippincott's Magazine. Perhaps it may not be too much to claim that all birds are moved by an artistic sentiment, and that, while most of them are artistic in effect, many are artistic in both intention and effect. The appreciation of what is beautiful is a distinctly marked characteristic of most members of the feathered family, and it is only natural that the desire and ability to create beauty are found in various degrees of development among them. It is only a step from desire of beauty to an effort to produce it, but the effort and accomplishment occasionally bring about strange results in birds as well as in man. Striking examples of this bizarre form of decoration are found in the motmot, which disfigures its long tail feathers in an effort at improvement, and in the hammerhead and gardener bird, which delight in surrounding their homes with all sorts of bright colored shells, pebbles and feathers.

Sometimes the exhibition of artistic feeling is carried so far as to confound belief. Were it not for the corroborative testimony of scientific travelers, we might well doubt the tales that come to us of the boys of farther India, of the gardener bird, the collar bird and the half dozen other birds whose strangely developed decorative instincts command our admiration and wonder.

Why She Floundered.

It was after the Monocacy got out of the drydock at Nagasaki, writes Charles D. Almy in the Chicago Times-Herald, that she was bearing General Foote, the newly appointed and first American minister to Korea, Mrs. Foote and the minister's family to Janchuan, the seaport of Seoul, the capital of Korea. She was midway between the Japanese islands and the Korean peninsula. It was a perfectly calm day, with a sea as smooth as a mirror. General and Mrs. Foote were on the hurricane deck, where the awning made life worth living. The man at the wheel wondered what was the matter. The needle on the compass was bobbing from N.N.E. to W.S.E. ½ E. The officer of the deck looked at the compass in the chartroom, and it was vacillating between E. ¼ E. and W. ¼ N. In ten minutes the Monocacy was headed for Spitzbergen, Swatow, Cape Town, San Francisco and Lima, and she hadn't gone ten fathoms. Men were ordered here and there from the starboard forward coal bunker to the booby hatch to look for the cause of the Monocacy's latest antics. Finally the lookout in the foretop reported something floating two points off the lee bow. Before his voice could reach the officer of the deck the floating object was dead astern and about a mile as the sextant would figure. After waddling like a duck around that shiny sea for two hours the Monocacy got in halting distance of the floating object. It was her rudder.

The Crack Stepper.

The peculiar manner in which a well dressed gentleman walked down Chestnut street a few evenings ago attracted attention. Some of his steps were of ordinary length, while others were very short and others still very long. A stalwart policeman explained the peculiarity. "That man," said he, "is a crack stepper—that is, he is superstitious and is trying to avoid stepping on a crack between the flagstones forming the sidewalk. There are dozens of persons who believe that to step on a crack is a sign that they will meet with bad luck. They soon get into the habit of regulating their steps so as to avoid the cracks, and they are unconscious of the peculiarity of their movements. I know one man who walks on the asphalt near the curb to avoid the necessity of skipping along like a boy trying to play hop scotch. The day he was told of the superstition he lost $10,000 in a speculation. Next day he walked on the asphalt and got it all back."—Philadelphia Press.

One Consolation.

On the dock at Tripoli may be seen a curious collection of articles. They represent import and export taxes and are sold by the customs officials. The import tax is 8 per cent of the value, and the export tax is 1 per cent. If any one refuses to pay the tax, the officials take possession of one-eighth of the merchandise.

Some time ago a European foreign minister visited Tripoli in the service of his country. He had with him 300 visiting cards. When a tax was demanded on these, he was angry and refused to pay it. A high official of the government was summoned to settle the matter.

He solemnly confiscated 8 per cent of the merchandise in question, 24 visiting cards.

"Very well, keep them," cried the irate ambassador, "keep them. I resign myself. I shall not be obliged to pay you a visit of ceremony for 24 years."—Youth's Companion.

Land Tax, 1897

Owners of property are reminded that by the recent amendment to the Assessment Act, the system of valuing property for Land Tax has been changed, and it is necessary that new valuations and declarations be made this year. Such declarations to be made by the owner, occupier or agent, before the Provincial Treasurer or Deputy Receiver of the district.

In valuing property the value of the buildings must be included.

The rate of tax for 1897 is one fifth of one per cent., or 20c on every $100 of valuation.

The tax will be due on the 1st December. A discount of 5 per cent. will be allowed if paid on or before the 15th Nov., 1897.
