Induction Service Held For Rev. Leslie R. Files

The Presbytery of Prince Edward Island of the Presbyterian Church held a special meeting last evening in St. John's Presbyterian Church, New London, to induct Rev. L. R. Files into the pastoral charge consisting of the congregations of Clifton, Geddie Memorial, Long River, and South Graville.

The moderator, Rev. M. C. Currie, conducted the service of worship and the acts of induction. He was assisted in the service by Rev. Donald Nicholson who preached the sermon. Rev. Donald Campbell who addressed the congregation, Rev. B. C. Lowery who addressed the newly inducted minister, and the acting clerk, Hugh Lowry who narrated the steps and also read the Scriptures and led in prayer.

Mr. Files is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Files of Wallaceburg, Ont. Born on a farm in Bickford, Ont., he moved with his parents to Wallaceburg at five years of age. He attended the D.A. Gordon Public School and the Wallaceburg District High School, graduating in 1956.

While at school Mr. Files had interest in art, music and sports. He played hockey for his high school, and was on the Blue Water Juvenile Championship Team of 1954. In 1957 Mr. Files enrolled at Waterloo College, Ont., in the arts faculty, obtaining his bachelor of arts degree in 1960.

Assured of a call to the Christian ministry, Mr. Files entered theological studies at Knox College, Toronto, in September 1960. He was awarded the bachelor of divinity degree, April 29, 1963.

In 1963-64 Mr. Files took further studies in the field of systematic theology under the noted reformed theologian, Professor John Murray, of Westminster Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, Pa. Under Professor Murray he completed a master's dissertation on the subject, "A Biblical and Theological Study of Natural Theology" and on May 29, 1964, he received the master of theology degree, following which he was appointed to the New London pastoral charge here as an ordained missionary.

Mr. Files is married to the former Winifred Knox, daughter of Presbyterian missionaries to India, Rev. and Mrs. F. C. Knox. Mr. and Mrs. Files have one daughter, Yvonne.

Following the service a social hour was spent in the adjoining hall.

Dragoons Band Gives Musical Instruction

SUMMERSIDE — The Band of the Royal Canadian Dragoons of Camp Gagetown, N.B., will give musical instrumental instruction today in Kensington Regional High School to over 150 young island musicians.

The band, which gave concerts yesterday in Tignish and Evangeline regional high schools, had been brought to the province by the P.E.I. Music Educators' Association.

At the instrumental clinic the children will be separated by instruments and be taught a number of concert works by the bandmen.

At 3:30 they will be brought together as a united band conducted by Prof. Rodney MacLeod of Mt. Allison University, who adjudicated the Tignish Music Festival two weeks ago.

The Dragoons band will give a public concert in the high school at 8:15 this evening. There will be no admission charge but a silver collection will be taken.

The "united band" concert by the youngsters will also be open to the public.

Silver Tray Presentation Honors 47 Years Service

"In deep appreciation for your many years of service to the citizens of Charlottetown" the inscription read on the silver serving tray presented last evening to Doris Gill on her retirement after 47 years in the water department.

The presentation was made in council chamber at city hall by Sidney Green, chairman of the commissioners of sewers and water supply. It was followed almost immediately by the presentation of a pin bearing the crest of the City of Charlottetown as Mayor Walter J. Cox expressed the hope Miss Gill's retirement would not mean the end of so many pleasant meetings.

Mr. Green said such occasions are both happy and sad; happy in that they offer time to do as one wishes, but sad because they mean the severance of old ties. He stated the commissioners, as had their predecessors, "always held you in high esteem and on behalf of our department and all the citizens" he presented the tray.

A large group was on hand with all sections of city hall life represented as well as men from the works section of the commission and employees of all offices. The council was represented by Councillor John Morris and a full city hall staff was on hand.

Break Case Is Adjourned

SUMMERSIDE — Carl Arsenault, Summerside, charged with break and entry, had his case further adjourned to June 10 at 7:30 p.m. when he appeared before Magistrate R. S. Hinton, Q.C. in town police court yesterday.

The accused is represented by Melvin G. Campbell, and Crown prosecutor is George B. McMahon.

Two town residents appeared on charges of letting their dogs run at large within the town limits. Tusson Arsenault pleaded not guilty. After hearing evidence given by Anthony Hippenstall, the town dog catcher, Magistrate Hinton fined the accused $1 and costs of two days.

Clarence Gallant pleaded not guilty to a similar charge and his case was set over until Monday.

LBJ Hails Creation Of OAS Force

WACO, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson urged Friday the creation of new inter-American machinery to keep the peace and guard against "forces of slavery and subversion" in the Western hemisphere.

"When hours can decide the fate of generations, the moment of decision must become the moment of action," Johnson said in a commencement address at Baylor University.

Johnson hailed the creation of an inter-American peace-keeping military force in the re-organized Dominican Republic.

"This may be the greatest achievement of all," he said. Johnson announced that he issued orders Friday morning for the withdrawal of 1,700 more U.S. troops from the Dominican Republic, bringing to 3,300 the total of men recalled.

Display Of Children's Art Shows Need Being Fulfilled

By JANE LAPSLEY
Confederation Art Gallery

Hon. Judy LaMarsh toured the Father's of Confederation Centre on her visit to Charlottetown last week. When asked what impressed her most about the centre she replied that the thing she really enjoyed most was the children's art.

Art from city schools is on display for two more weeks in the concourse around the sculpture court. This is representative of the work of some 3,740 school children under the guidance of Mrs. Doris McKay, Mrs. Daphne Irving, and the city teaching staff. As Mrs. McKay says, this work is only a small part of the work that she would like to have exhibited but that even the centre has limitations on space.

This exhibition, which compares favorably with the gallery classes of Canada showing is all the more remarkable when one thinks that 14 years ago there was virtually no art in Charlottetown school. Originally Frances Johnson came down from Ottawa and organized a children's art centre, and inaugurated and supervised work in the schools.

Mrs. McKay, now supervisor of art in city schools is a graduate of Brockport Teachers College, and a student from Rochester Institute of Technology. She subsequently taught junior and senior high school in New York state. Her assistant, Mrs. Irving, is a graduate in fine arts from Mount Allison University, and has taught in Fredericton, N.B.

NATURAL INTEREST
Starting with private classes in Charlottetown, Mrs. McKay says that children used to gather outside the window and gaze longingly at the lesson inside. Art teachers know that a child's interest in and need for art is as natural and necessary as breathing. Mrs. McKay answered the call to teach and has worked unstintingly for 11 years to help Charlottetown children develop their natural abilities.

This exhibition is proof that her efforts have been rewarded and she says that she has been encouraged and supported in this work by the efforts of the city teachers. Much of the work in the exhibition is the result of the teachers own ideas.

To mention a few of the teachers experiments, crayon etching, the near-eastern conversation piece in profile by a grade six Spring Parker.

NEW TECHNIQUES
New techniques are much sought after by art teachers to introduce variety into the art work. The recent lectures and demonstrations at the centre sparked off the idea for swirling the painted newspaper under the tap, and this produced delicate glass-like effects which were then considered for design and turned into paintings on collages.

With many new techniques and materials wax crayons may seem old hat but Mrs. McKay feels that used skillfully they have the good qualities of oils. Nora Curtis, Bonnie Rhynes, Dene Palmer and many others are able exponents of this medium. Crayons used as wax resist (with paint laid over the crayon work) are unfailingly effective as the brilliance of the colors and the soft edges give a sparkle and a freedom to the designs. Freedom was noticeable in the Rochford Square crayon work.

Figure work with a wooden mannikin and 10-minute poses arranged by the students, shows that despite all the experimenting students are still getting some academic grounding, as well as the imaginative free style approach. Tuition in basic construction is important, not just to keep conservative parents on the side of the teacher, but in order to teach an understanding of form.

It is encouraging to see that the centre has given impetus to this exhibition when one compares it with the previous one, but we might remember that it is thanks to Dr. Parkers foresight and Mrs. McKay's pioneering that the groundwork for an expanding art program in the schools has been well and truly laid. Let us hope for more exhibitions like this one to brighten our concourse.

produced by scratching into two layers of color to reveal the color beneath, was done under Eleanor Fraser at West Kent. Also at West Kent, Mrs. McKay has introduced her grade one pupils to simple but ingenious paper handcrafts, while at Spring Park a teacher has helped her class produce a delicate transparent wire effect with fingerpaint and a comb.

WIDE RANGE
In this show we progress from the stark realism of the homesick girl sitting by her suitcase (Carol Roberts, St. Jean), to the complete abstraction of "St. Patrick driving the snakes out of Ireland" (Lorraine McDonald, St. Jean). In the case of the homesick girl the students were asked to express an emotion through color as well as design. (This is good therapy as well as art.) In the case of the abstract, the oil pastel was a voluntary work done at home. A sign that art has really become part of a student's life.

With the teachers' encouragement and the students' imagination we travel to Mexico (Rochford Square), to Polynesia and Egypt (Spring Park) and fly with the ghosts at Hallowe'en (Don Carmichael).

Grade seven pupils experiment with book titles, some eye catching "Op" type art, and capture the magic of our winter scenes. They also give us some sparkling decorative design. (Dona Carmody, Beverley Kelly and Timothy Williamson). Geraldine Martin's birds based on simple number shapes also show a flair for decoration.

In the glued paper work we have magazine clippings on colored paper, and decorative paper mosaic birds (Isabel Coffin, West Kent). Donna Lund (Spring Park) found paint a powerful medium for his Canada Goose, as did Debbie Hardy (Prince Street) for her winter "Night". George Gallant (St. Jean) puts life into his bird with a soft B pencil and water color. String and scotch tape inspired

Y's Men's Club Lays Plans For Summer Recess Activity

SUMMERSIDE — Bob Hogg was chairman of the final meeting of the current season for the local Y's Men's Club held at the Y Centre Thursday night.

Leaders were Tom Turnbull, superintendent; Don Horn, fitnessmaster, and Jim Rogers, devotion. A guest at the meeting, Mrs. Vera Peter of England, was introduced by her son-in-law, Eric Jones.

A lobster supper was served by the Y's Menettes and this was followed by a general business meeting. Items of business were finalized to ensure the continuous activity of the club during the summer's recess. These included the sponsorship of 10 boys to a maximum of $100.00 in the current boys' club financial campaign, a grant of $150.00 to support the Little League Baseball program and $100.00 to the YMCA as a donation to the YMCA camp building fund. It was also agreed that the club would sponsor at least one teen-age boy to attend the leadership training course being held in Saint John, N.B. this coming August.

Coming events in which the members were expected to take an active part were announced as follows: A hymn sing for departing Y's men to be held in the Y Centre this coming Sunday at 8:30 p.m.; a blood donor clinic on June 7 and 8 at the Royal Canadian Legion Home; and the annual work party at Camp Tamawaby on Wednesday June 2nd. For this work meeting, all Y's men were asked to meet at the Y Centre at 5:30 p.m. ready and equipped to go to work.

Alternative Store Sites Submitted To Commission

SUMMERSIDE — Francis "Ginger" MacQuarrie, president of the town board of trade, said yesterday he had presented to the secretary of the P.E.I. Liquor Commission, a report recommending alternative sites for the new liquor store here.

George Meikle, chairman of the civic affairs committee, submitted the report and the recommendations to Mr. MacQuarrie Thursday after the committee reviewed possible sites.

Mr. MacQuarrie said the commission will hold a meeting next Wednesday when Blake Wood, chairman of the liquor commission, returns to the province.

At that time, the commission will review the recommendations and announce where the liquor store will be built.

It is possible the commission will select a site other than what is suggested.

"We had a nice conversation and the secretary was most cooperative," Mr. MacQuarrie said of his talk yesterday.

IS WINNER

Patricia Foley, 16-year-old student at Tignish Elementary School, recently was declared provincial winner in a Canadian Youth In Action poster competition for grades 7-9 (sponsored by the Junior Red Cross). The winning posters from P.E.I. were sent to the national office in Toronto for all Canada judging. Patricia is a daughter of police officer Edward Foley and Mrs. Foley, Tignish.
