Microwave Radio Towers To Cross Canada By 1958

MONTREAL (CP) —Microwave radio relay towers, landmarks with a significance comparable to Canada's first transcontinental telegraph and telephone lines, are becoming fa iliar to more and more Canadians as their construction progresses.

The towers form part of a system that will link Canada from Sydney, N.S., to Vancouver by 1958. The project is a co-operative undertaking by the trans-Canada telephone system, comprising seven major Canadian telephone companies.

When completed the microwave system will be the longest in the world, say telephone company officials. It will be capable of carrying television programs or telephone calls from and to centres on the Canadian mainland.

LINKED WITH U.S. NETWORKS

The Toronto - Ottawa - Montreal radio relay system, first segment of the string, carried the first TV network program for the CBC May 14, 1953.

The system was extended to Quebec City in July, 1954, after almost two years of planning and construction. In the fall of 1954, a link to Kingston, Ont., was completed and a similar spur to Peterborough Ont., was placed in service March, 1955.

A radio relay link between Buffalo, N.Y., and Toronto provides connection with U.S. television networks.

The present range is the forerunner of a relay network which will boast 137 stations along the main 3,800-mile route from Sydney to Vancouver.

Spurs to Halifax, Moncton, N.B., Saskatoon, Edmonton, and Lethbridge, Alta., will total an additional 477 miles and require 18 radio relay stations.

NEW ERA

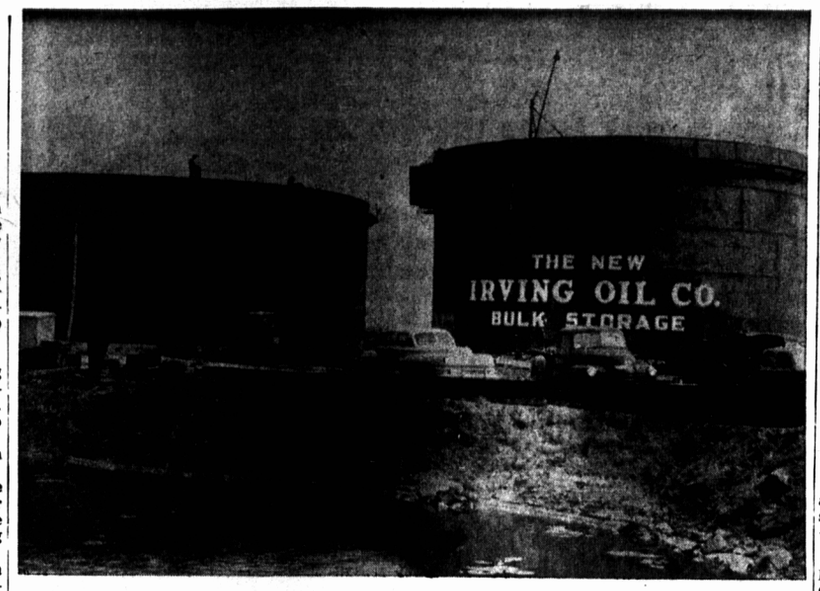
Relay stations now are being erected along the 1,200-mile Toronto-North Bay-Winnipeg section. This portion is expected to go into service in fall of 1956.

Path testing has recently been completed east of Quebec City.

Each of the seven telephone companies is building facilities for the vast microwave chain in the territory it serves and connecting them with contiguous systems.

New microwave stations have a new type of antennae with a capacity of almost 20,000 telephone circuits or 20 television channels.

These, like giant sugar scoops pointing skyward, are symbolic of a new communications era in Canada.



BULK STORAGE PLANT UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Pictured above are the two main storage tanks being constructed at the city approach to Hillsboro Bridge by the Irving Oil Company. They are of 85,000 and 65,000 barrels capacity respectively. Two 30,000 and one 15,000 barrel tanks are being assembled behind the tanks pictured. (D. A. George Photo.)

Wing of Quebec Convent Damaged

LANORAIE, Que., (CP)—Fire swept through a wing of a Roman Catholic convent Monday in this town 30 miles northeast of Montreal, forcing some 20 elderly women and 16 Sisters of Providence into the street.

Mayor Aime Piette said damage may be almost $100,000.

The women were being cared for by the nuns. The fire broke out shortly before noon in the older of two wings of the convent. Renovations on the section had almost been completed.

The nuns and elderly women were able to return to the new wing of the convent almost immediately. The usual classes for girls will also be held there beginning Sept. 7.

The fire is believed to have started in the electrical wiring.
