COMMONS

Trans - Canada Pipe Lines wants to put the line through the U.S. to supply western gas to Eastern Canadian markets.

PCs FORCED 3 VOTES The Conservatives forced five of the standing votes. A spokesman said the reason was to demonstrate the party's dissatisfaction with some of the provisional rules adopted last year.

One Conservative inspired vote reflected opposition to a government's bill to unify the armed forces. That vote was for money to pay a substantial part of the defence department's bills.

The NDP forced a standing vote on the energy board appropriations apparently to show their opposition to the U.S.-routed pipeline. They claimed it should go through Northern Ontario in an all-Canadian route.

Howard Johnston (SC-Okanagan-Revelstoke) demanded a seventh standing vote authorizing money for the CBC. The final standing vote was a general one, in effect approving the estimates.

TOOK 31-MINUTES It took the Commons 31 minutes to pass the hundreds of clauses in the 1966-67 estimates after Deputy Speaker Herman N. Batten called a halt to debate at 5:30 p.m.

The house went past the regular 6 p.m. Friday adjournment to get the job done. Except for the forced standing votes, all other estimates went through with voice approval only.

There was only one note of protest to the rapid-fire disposal of the estimates. "It was sounded by Ed Nasserden (PC - Rosthern). The Saskatchewan member rose about halfway through the voting and said he objected to "this way of carrying through so many millions of dollars" of estimates.

Government benches, touchy about any accusation relating to government closure of debate, erupted with cries of "order, order."

ORDERED EARLIER Mr. Batten told Mr. Nasserden the House had ordered the cutoff three days ago according to the rules.

"This does not stop me" from rising and expressing my objection," Mr. Nasserden replied as the Liberal MPs raised objecting cries again.

Closure has been a bad word around Parliament since the Liberal government applied it to end the 1956 pipeline debate. They were defeated in 1957.

With the estimates out of the way, the House will start committee study of the bill to establish a national medical care plan, which already has received second reading - approval in principle.

Next is the discussion of a government resolution to provide up to $30 a month in supplementary benefits to some old age pensioners. Somewhere beyond this will be the government's mini-budget carrying tax increases.

Davis-Fulton (PC - Kamloops) asked that the old age supplement be put ahead of the medical care bill. George McIlraith, government House leader, turned him down and said it has to be passed soon to allow the provinces to take dovetailing steps.

BATHE IN THE HILLS The Canadian government set aside Albert's Bow River hot springs for public use as long ago as 1865.

He reminded his audience that next year, the first official World's Fair in Canada will be held in Montreal, and suggested that tourists from the eastern provinces and states who have been coming to P.E.I. will be heading for Quebec. To compensate tourists must be lured from points farther west. "Let's expand," Mr. Fraser urged, "let's plan, let's do what we can to bring these people here, and to make them want to return again."

HE CAN GO OUTSIDE AGAIN

Laval Choir To Perform Here

SUMMERSIDE — The Laval University Choir and String Orchestra from Quebec City will highlight a four day Acadian Mardi Gras to be held in Summerside February 4-7.

The Laval group will feature 148 people, and besides their concert, they will sing the Sunday afternoon Mass at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church.

The Acadian Mardi Gras Association announced their month-long Mardi-Gras plan, including the highlight of the Laval aggregation, following a Friday night meeting. The association is sponsored by L'Assomption Society of Summerside.

OTHER HIGHLIGHTS Other highlights of the four-day program are a centennial costumes Acadian Mardi Gras ball on opening night, Saturday, Feb. 4, and a mammoth bingo game on Monday.

Also featured will be a youth jamboree and hootenanny, a traditional Acadian supper including frito and rapure on Tuesday evening, and an Acad-

Several members of the newly-formed Rustico Lions Club were guests and went home the proud holders of the Summerside "sons" — a necessary part of the equipment for a meeting. This will mean a return visit to the Rustico club by at least six of the Summerside Lions to proclaim their song.

Reg Thompson, in his "centennial light" report, stated that the street lights plans are progressing well and that some construction work has already started.

It was decided that one-third of the Lions pledge be paid this year to the Centennial Swimming Pool.

Lynn Gallant and Clayton Underhill were appointed to meet with Principal Russell of Parkside Elementary School to arrange for a suitably engraved plaque to be placed in the retarded children's classroom in that school.

Plans were made for several members to attend a cabinet meeting in Moncton and the club agreed to meet their expenses for this meeting.

The Lions were reminded of the Rustico club's "charter night" on December 10 and it is hoped that a good representation of Summerside Lions and ladies will be able to attend.

The speaker was thanked by Charles MacKenzie. A report of the Men of The Kirk Steering Committee was given by F.A.S. Jones, chairman. Recommendations included an election of officers to be held at the February meeting and the number of meetings to be held during the season should be five.

Ian Rankin, Phil Barlow and W.R. Burnett were appointed a nominating committee. Rev. Malcolm A. McCuaig who presided also led in a hymn sing. Accompanist was Miss Elizabeth Taylor.

Ken MacKenzie expressed the thanks of the meeting to the ladies for the supper.

Premier Campbell Leaving Today For Nfld. Meeting

Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island said Friday he expects union of the Maritime Provinces will come up for discussion at the Atlantic Premiers' Conference in St. John's, Nfld., Monday.

He added in an interview that "if Nova Scotia and New Brunswick are going to continue to discuss Maritime union, this government will appoint representatives to participate in the discussions."

"We will decide on the basis of these discussions if economic and political union or both are practical and what the long-range benefits of such a union would be to Prince Edward Island."

Previous Progressive Conservative administration of Walter Shaw had been cool toward the idea of union. The Liberal Premier said the Corridor Road, participation of the Atlantic Provinces in a power grid system and the attitude of the four provinces to transportation, financing and industrial development will also likely come before the one-day meeting.

Referring again to Maritime Union — or even Atlantic Union — Mr. Campbell said he expects a report from Premiers Stanfield of Nova Scotia and Robichaud of New Brunswick on the progress of union discussions between the two provinces. Talks have been underway since Premier Robichaud first brought up the proposal at a previous meeting.

Mr. Campbell added: "I propose to state the willingness of this government to appoint representatives who will be prepared to sit in on future talks."

This will be the freshman P.E.I. Premier's first time at the Atlantic Premiers' Conference. He leaves here Sunday accompanied by highways Minister George Ferguson and John Mullally, co-ordinator of Federal-Provincial Programs.

The Province of Prince Edward Island has submitted a number of subjects which have been placed on the agenda for discussion. These include: Atlantic Union; Offshore Mineral Rights; Atlantic Province's Transportation study; Atlantic Development Board programs, especially highway construction; Federal ventures for Regional development; electrical power development and requirement and the Corridor Road.

Premier Campbell expects to return to the Province on Wednesday. During his absence Hon. Gordon Bennett, will be Acting Premier.
