About half-past three, the captain of our home team received a letter from Lieut. Campbell of the Blake saying that his men were not coming ashore as the weather looked so threatening, consequently the match would have to be given up. Our militiamen, though disappointed, carried out their part of the programme and had the benefit of a good practice. The average score made was about $5.

MONTREAL, Aug. 11.—The Star publishes the following cable under date, London, Aug. 11: Hon. Edward Blake delivered a speech before a meeting of the Home Rule union last night, which is considered on all hands to be the best he has yet made in England. Mr. Blake held his large audience spellbound for an hour while closely criticising the arguments of the unionists. His reception was enthusiastic in the extreme, and is a striking proof of the reputation already won by him among the London liberals.

MONTREAL, Aug. 11.—A peculiar drowning accident occurred early this morning in the Lachine canal in this city. A small tug named William Paul docked for the night in the basin with three men on board. The engineer left the escape valve open, and during the night the water rose in the boat, drowning the men as they slept in their berths. The names of the drowned are Alfred Beauchamp, aged 30; Alex. Ratelle, aged 14, and Henri Lavoie, aged 15. The steamer was raised and the bodies recovered this morning.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Hon. Edward Blake addressed a meeting of the Home Rule Union of London last night. He pointed out the necessity of continued work to capture all possible by the elections for the home rule cause. He said the liberal majority was a substantial one. Conservative advocates of unity had analyzed and cut the majority into sections declaring the majority had emanated from Ireland and therefore did not count. Would they have said that if Ireland had declared against home rule. The Liberals must be prepared for exaggerated accounts of Irish outrages in Tory papers. That was part of their game. If the Protestants in various parts of Ireland were to combine, he hoped they would not, they could get what terms they liked from either side of a divided majority. He recommended to them an altogether different policy, namely to banish forever from the arena all religious questions and join hands with the Catholics and discuss intelligibly differences of opinion instead of the character of their creed or the color of their hair. Doubtless there would be blunders and friction in inaugurating a new regime in Ireland. Brawling would get heated, pipes burst, steam escape, but that would be soon overcome. He did not idolize democracy; he believed it was being put to the severest test as to whether it would be able to use its new power with wisdom, self-restraint and discernment, but he hoped it would be equal to the task.

THE BEAUTIFUL STAR

Has vindicated her right to be called Beautiful from the universal admiration of our patrons for the Beautiful in Art. This is evidenced by the good taste they display in patronizing the Star Tailoring Establishment when they want something particularly nice and artistic. Our success in filling the bill has passed into a proverb, namely, when you fail to get suited at the Star Tailoring Establishment you are too fastidious for this yere world.
