Primitive Man.

Man's closest relative in the family of nature is the ape. This is a familiar fact. But it is not so generally known that man approaches in bodily conformation more and more nearly to his inferior relative the lower and lower his state of cultivation. Where and when was the line drawn? Quite recently some skulls and skeletons of races contemporary in France with the reindeer have been discovered, and they have afforded material for the above conclusion. The characteristics of the animal, the low forehead and the projecting mouth disappear in man's conflict with circumstances. Mental labor of course develops the brain, and the forehead becomes upright and the projecting countenance recedes under the skull. It is also the belief among scientists that the primeval Europeans were cannibals and inferior, in spite of their white skins, to the lowest type of existing savagery—the Australian bushman. All this chain of deductions and much more were recently made at a paleontological congress in Copenhagen.—New York Times.

Wordsworth and Samuel Rogers had spent the evening with Coleridge, and as the two poets walked away together Rogers remarked cautiously: "I did not altogether understand the latter part of what Coleridge said." "I didn't understand any of it," Wordsworth hastily replied. "No more did I!" exclaimed Rogers, with a sigh of relief.

What Paper Costs.

Ladies who go shopping have little idea of the cost of their trip, even in such a minor detail as the cost of paper for the packages they have sent home. A Baltimorean has recently compared the weight of paper with the food supplied to the purchaser. In one day's purchases it is said that the paper wrapping amounted to about 10 per cent of the total. In a list of supplies costing about $1.40 he found that the paper which was weighed with the provisions cost 14% cents.

The Kind He Bought.

Hope is a flatterer, but the most upright of all parasites, for she flatters the poor man's but as well as the parasite of his superiors.—Shenstone.

No More War

Swords will be beaten into plough shares later on; but farmers do not need to wait till the "Peace Conference" is over, before buying their plough shares, as they can do so at once, by calling at the Masonic Temple Store, where the share, or other plough extras can be had for less money, and better than any imported. Prove this at once, by trying them.
