MARY HAWORTH

Recognition Of God's Power Is Essential

Dear Mary H a w o r t h I am not sure you are right encouraging the slogan "I found" because it is a selfish neighbor with polite controlled detachment.

How can she achieve a peaceful sense of personal worth if everyone around her perhaps even including her husband rejects her need of approval, by reacting with "polite controlled detachment"?

Admittedly, she recognizes her own limitations, by pushing herself to do more than she is capable of. But what if she is driven to this by a sense of "survival" or "necessity" or "inclusion and popularity" if she were fighting similarly "for the good of the church, wouldn't all of us be concerned for her?"

Some of these children may be the kind of persons who also realize the value of a relationship with anybody. And the consequences can be, as he says, "a relief from the loneliness of Harvey Oswald."

Please tell us, therefore, to be attached, to be detached, and we shall all be grateful to you for your insight and security feelings that make you combative.

'Responsibility' Is The Key To Successful Management

"Smile if it kills you." It is a well-known saying. It is a policy of P.E.I.'s only female manager of a co-operative store, Mrs. Yvonne Arsenault. She is manager of the Wellington Co-op Association Ltd. and says the proper way to deal with a customer is with a smile.

"It's interesting to work," Mrs. Arsenault said, "I don't only manage - at times I am also cashier, sales clerk, stock manager. In this business responsibility is the big thing. You have to be responsible for your work and I am responsible for making a profit for the Co-op."

The 36th annual meeting of the Wellington Co-op was held at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Belle. The retiring president gave a report of the work done during the past year. Mrs. Arsenault was elected to the Co-op operation.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Chimneys Are Cleaned For Santa Claus' Visit

In a restless confusion, sending grey clouds his way, he gave, the open opening at times, to allow the sun to shine, to be happy, she decided to clean the chimneys. When the sun shined, how good it was to see. When overcast we queried, "when will we get another sunny day?"

"As I've said, we can't expect too much of November." Mrs. Arsenault said. "But then for warm water, with which to mix the meal for a soup's breakfast." "No, we may get the odd nice day, and then again we may not. Did you say that you had planned to go that flower in spring?"

"Some, No all." "Oh well," he nodded a bit absently. "I guess there'll come a day for that." November. "But now for Christmas. I have you noticed it is now little more than a long month away?" A Radio voice reminded us today. Peter looked up from his play.

"Gratified, when are you going to get those chimneys cleaned?" he inquired. "How, some calm day?" James replied. "You know why I don't need to tell you?" he smiled absently. "The happy atmosphere in the store is felt by customers and salesmen alike." Mrs. Arsenault said, "that's the way we like to keep it."

Plain Reverend Or Very Debated

LONDON (AP) - A mid-tiered cleric in the Solo district of London here over the question how reverend can be.

As matters stand a vicar in the Anglican church is called reverend. But does a very reverend, a bishop right reverend, an archbishop most reverend, have the order of things since the 13th century?

Persons who've missed out on deep abiding love from family sources in formative years, may not be so sure of their neighbors in later life. It makes up this deficit or help in their lives. Rather, the short - changed adults only sure awake of a compensating legacy of nature in the wake of such crucial natural deprivation. It is to be noted that the length of God's love of people. Study the psalms, the gospels, the New Testament, the churches, and become as were a transmitting agent on the plane of fraternal cooperation.

As the late Rabbi Joshua ben Levi once said, "God's love is his brilliant book 'Peace of Mind' (Simon Shuster's translation) which is a psychological healing, however achieved by valid techniques. The main point of the essential main step that leads to human wholeness is the power of love and cooperation with the truth as he says that 'The Divine Power works continually in us, undergirds it and supports us.'"

You might study Dr. Liebman's book if it's still on the market for guidance in becoming a better person. It is a small or personal inventory, write her in care of the Guardian.

Slight of Hand
The sneakiest way to slip left-over vegetables into the menu is to serve them "au gratin." When you're close to the means to dress them up in your very best cream sauce topped with buttered bread crumbs and grated cheese, then broil until bubbly. Our choice of cheddar or Gruyere Canadian Cheddar or Parmesan fills the bill to perfection.

Here's a new twist on serving hot green beans or spinach to guests. Just blend 1 or 2 tablespoons of light cream and 1/2 cup of butter with 1/2 cup celery seeds into a 4-ounce package of cream cheese. Then stir the cheese into the hot cooked vegetables and heat carefully until the cheese melts.
