Intense Suffering and Sleeplessness Often Lead To Insanity and Death

Paine's Celery Compound
Rescues a Toronto Lady from Terrible Agonies.

An Interesting Letter That Should Convince the Most Skeptical

The Cured Lady Says:
"Paine's Celery Compound Made Me a New Woman"

WELLS & RICHARDSON Co,
Gentlemen:—Ten years ago I was attacked with neuralgia, and though treated by six doctors the disease grew worse and nearly drove me insane. I was for one summer an out-door patient at the hospital here, but only got temporary relief. I was sleepless for nights, my digestion was bad, and I would feel a pain in my stomach every time I ate anything. Day after day I suffered the most intense agony, and I often wonder I didn't go crazy. I took endless medicines given to me by medical men, and getting worse, I became utterly disheartened. One day my deliverance came. A lady who had suffered just as I had told me that Paine's Celery Compound had cured her. I used the Compound as a last resort, and it simply made a new woman of me. The pain vanished; my eyesight, which was impaired, returned, and I felt myself growing well, and I never felt happier in my life. I am now well and strong, and all my health and happiness are due to Paine's Celery Compound. I will always gratefully remember the medicine that cured me, and speak a good word for it.

C. LEWIS

CHARLOTTETOWN IS IN IT.

Startling Statement Made by a Prominent Canadian.

"Should war break out between England and France, a decisive battle for supremacy will be fought in the Gulf of St. Lawrence."

This was the statement made a few evenings ago to a Mail and Empire representative by a statesman who is in the confidence of the Dominion Government. The gentleman in question, who is on a few days' visit to Toronto, drew quite an alarmist picture of the position in which the eastern sea coast cities of Canada, exclusive of Halifax, would be placed by a war between the two great powers named.

"It is not generally known," said the Mail and Empire's informant, "that St. Pierre de Miquelon is very strongly fortified—quite as strongly fortified, in fact, as Halifax. In case of war between Britain and France it would be possible for a French fleet, unless thwarted by stronger British squadrons, to seize St. John's, Newfoundland, St. John's, New Brunswick, Charlottetown, P. E. I., and other points along the North American coast."

"The treaty between France and Britain concluded early in the present century, forbade France fortifying St. Pierre or keeping a stronger guard at that port than 50 soldiers. It was also agreed that a British consul should always be stationed there. When the Crimean war broke out, however, France became Britain's ally against Russia. The French republic took advantage of the opportunity to fortify St. Pierre, and obtained the consent of Great Britain. The Mother Country could not very well refuse at that time, seeing that she was acting in concert with France. The move on the part of France displayed considerable foresight. She violated the treaty when acting as an ally of Britain, and instead of limiting the number of defenders of St. Pierre to 50, has kept as many as 1,000 troops there. No British Consul is permitted to reside at St. Pierre, and on the ground that the British did not object to the building of fortifications the treaty to all intents and purposes is a dead letter.

France, having built the fortifications, claims that it would be an absurdity to attempt to defend them with the aid of only 50 men, and hence maintains a strong garrison at the port all the time. But that is not the most serious feature of the situation. The seafaring population of France numbers about 90,000. Of this number there are at least 30,000, or one-third of the whole, scattered along the western shores of Newfoundland. In case a French fleet came out to Newfoundland imperfectly manned it could speedily procure crews from among the French fishermen, and would be able to move without delay against the port of St. John's or the undefended ports of Nova Scotia.

"In case of hostilities the possession of Anticosti would be an important factor. I should not be surprised to learn that M. Menier is an agent of the French Government. Certainly, from its strategical position, Anticosti would command the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and therefore its possession would be a great thing for the French fleet. Newspaper despatches state that M. Menier has landed guns on Anticosti. Should the statement turn out to be true it will show that M. Menier's purchase of the island is a mere subterfuge, and that he is really acting in the interest of the home government.

"There is no doubt that as things stand at present the French threaten Quebec and several important points in the Maritime Provinces. The only relief for the situation is to bundle them bag and baggage off this continent."

INFORMATION WANTED

Sir,—As Premier Farquharson is in a communicative mood perhaps he will supplement his information regarding the land near Government Pond by stating how his title as part owner is derived. I am under the impression that this land formerly belonged to the crown. At one time it was occupied by "Black Sam," whether that sable squatter acquired a title or not I am not aware.

"That man seems to take a great deal of interest in his work," remarked the junior partner, "although he hasn't accomplished much."

"Yes" answered the crusty capitalist, "he's a positive usurer. He can get more interest out of less actual capital than anybody else I ever saw."—Washington Star.

NO REGARD FOR LIFE.

A Man Who Steals a Loaf Treated Worse Than a Murderer.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 12.—Judge Henry S. Barker, of the Criminal Division of the Circuit Court, made a sensational charge to the November grand jury recently. He charged the city administration with responsibility for the immunity enjoyed by gamblers. Regarding the many failures of justice, Judge Barker said:

"It does seem to me crime is not punished as it should be. This court is very much disarranged to see murderers go unpunished of justice when it is almost certain they are guilty. I have frequently left the courtroom completely broken down at the failure of justice.

"The verdicts were added up in murder cases and averaged with those who were convicted of stealing during the last year. Since I have been on the Bench, it would be found those accused of murder escaped with lighter punishment than those who have taken property.

"This court is forced to the conclusion that human life, therefore, on an average, is worth less than $20. It does seem that human blood is a drug on the market."

"I regret to say this. It seems, though the people of Louisville do not want bloody crimes punished. If a poor devil breaks a shop window and steals a loaf of bread he is sure to get the full extent of the law. A man may blow off the head of a woman or a quack may kill some poor girl and go free or get off lightly. It has got so you would think the police were on trial. Lawyers argue they are responsible for the arrests. That's their duty. They are paid to find out crime and suppress it."

Judge Barker said it had become a common thing for jereos to "tamper" with witnesses and "push up" prosecutions.

He said such persons had been very bold of late, and had done such things in criminal court. He wanted this investigated.

"Talk about bringing business to Louisville," said the judge, "and getting such big affairs as the Knights Templars, Confederate Veterans and such things; the best advertisement for Louisville is to stamp out crime and enforce the law."

"Human life is the cheapest thing in Louisville."

TURKISH SOLDIERS.

They Will Suffer the Most Intense Agony With Remarkable Fortitude.

An English surgeon, Dr. Ryan, while serving with the Turkish army in the campaign of 1877-8 saw a marvelous exhibition of the fortitude that resists pain and sustains with cheerfulness a violent physical shock.

The surgeon's first capital operation was performed on a Turkish soldier whose knee had been shattered by a shell. He refused to take chloroform, and the surgeon took his leg off above the knee.

He never groaned nor uttered an exclamation, but smoked a cigarette during the operation. When the Turkish captain came around with his notebook to take down the name, age and regiment of each wounded man, his patient answered quietly all questions, though the surgeon was stitching up the flap of skin over the stump.

At the first battle of Plevna Dr. Ryan worked all day among the wounded. In his book, "Under the Red Crescent," he records that in all his surgical experience he has never known men to exhibit such fortitude under intense agony as did these Turkish soldiers.

The recovery of the wounded, considering the unfavorable conditions under which they were treated, filled him with wonder. Their injuries were terrible, but their splendid physique, unimpaired by intemperance, enabled many of them after a few weeks in the hospital to resume their places in the ranks.

"I never saw a private soldier under the influence of liquor during the whole time that I was in the country," writes Surgeon Ryan. "There were many of these men whose lives I could have saved if I could have persuaded them to take stimulants, but it was impossible to get them to touch alcohol even as medicine."

"The principles of their religion forbid the use of alcohol, and the humble Turk clings so tenaciously to his religion that he would rather meet death itself than violate its precepts."

Many of the wounded lost their lives owing to their religious belief that the loss of a limb would prevent them from entering paradise. They refused to submit to amputation, preferring to die rather than to live maimed.

HOW TO CURE CONSTIPATION

There is Only One Remedy that Can do This.

That Remedy is Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, the only Medicine known that does not Aggravate the Trouble—But that Cures Positively and Permanently.

Constipation claims as its victims very nearly the entire population of this continent. It is, in fact, so common that it is underrated in its power to cause suffering.

Few people take the trouble to endeavor to get rid of the complaint. This is because nearly all the "remedies" advertised to cure it, have effect only while they are being used. As soon as their use is discontinued, the trouble returns.

Besides this, many so-called constipation remedies make the troubles worse. There is no wonder, then, that people tire of using medicines that do no good, or that increase the evil.

It is in these points that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets differ from any other medicine. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cure Constipation. They do not relieve it only. They cure it, and cure it permanently.

It is not necessary to continue indefinitely, the use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. They do their work thoroughly, and having done it, they need not be used longer. The cure continues, after you have quit using the Tablets.

In addition to thoroughly and permanently curing Constipation, Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets tone the digestive organs, ensuring perfect digestion, banishing Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Bloating, Heartburn, Flatulence, Sour Stomach and all stomach diseases, except cancer.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cost fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50, at all druggists, or sent on receipt of price, by the Dodd's Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.
