Had Audiences With Pope On Recent Visit To Rome

The amazing recovery and tremendous vigor of His Holiness Pope Pius XII following his serious illness of a year and a half ago created a vivid impression upon Rev. J.P.E. O'Hanley, Ph.D., parish priest of All Saints Church, Charlottetown, who returned from a visit to Rome last month.

REV. DR. O'HANLEY

In a brief interview yesterday described his two audiences with the Holy Father during his visit to the Eternal City. For Father O'Hanley it was a re-visit to the City in which he had studied and obtained his Doctor of Philosophy degree in 1937.

Father O'Hanley and Father Harold Croke, parish priest of St. Malachy's Church, Kinkora, made the trip to Europe together this year. While Father O'Hanley spent much of his time in Rome Father Croke visited numerous centres throughout Europe, including Lourdes and Paris, as well as London, Dublin and Cork.

Father Croke also had two audiences with Pope Pius XII. One on the day following his arrival in Rome and the other on the day before he left for home.

Father O'Hanley studied in Rome from 1935 until 1937 and as he said yesterday he found "Rome revisited, much more interesting than Rome visited for the first time."

While in Rome in 1935-36-37, he concentrated on his studies. On his recent trip he had the opportunity to examine in detail many of the things which had fascinated him in his brief days but which had escaped his serious observation due to pressure of work.

In many respects he found Rome little changed. The churches, the streets and the State buildings had remained about the same. There was less agitation among the people about the government than there was in 1937 under the domination of Mussolini.

Father O'Hanley said the American influence was easily noticeable. There were many advertisements of American products particularly gas, chewing gum and ent and gave a report on the ducks and geese hatched in the pond. Considerable discussion took place with reference to trout fishing in this area.

After the close of the business meeting a lunch of coffee and doughnuts was served by the game warden and assisted by some of the members of the association. Many trout stories were in progress as time for departing arrived.

Church Vacation School Classes

A very successful Church Vacation School was held in Milltown Cross, King County, during the week of July 9, with the closing at the Public Worship Service of Sunday, July 16th. The total registration was 60; the children, primary, junior and intermediate, coming from Georgetown, Whim Road, Sturgeon and Milltown Cross.

Such a Vacation School was developed from discussion that arose from the Sunday School Convention and Vacation School Workshop that was held in Montague.

Rev. W.A. Paterson, Georgetown, a leader, was ably assisted by Rev. J.M. Fraser and Mrs. Fraser, Montague, Miss Janie Llewellyn, G. getown, and Miss Veronica Layton, Montague.

From 9:30 a.m. until 12 noon, there were two periods of studies, handicraft for the girls, and camp work for the boys, and a period of recreation. The subject of the studies was "The Land where Jews Lived, and the theme sang was "Tell me the stories of Jesus."

It was a new experience for many of the children, and the interest and response was to say the least, enthusiastic.

A large number of the parents assembled on Sunday to hear the "Review of the Work", and to hear the actionings and memory work of the pupils and to see the handicraft of the girls and boys.

Mr. Percy King, the president of the Sunday School Convention expressed the appreciation of the congregation.

LITTLE SANDS

Mr. Lemuel MacLean is now home in Little Sands, after being a patient in the Provincial Sanatorium for some time. His many friends wish him continued good health. Best wishes for a good recovery also go to his wife who has been ill at her home recently. It has been reported that she is somewhat improved in health.

Mrs. George H. Blue, Little Sands, was in Charlottetown on Friday of last week.

Mrs. Angus MacMillan and son, Barry, left Wood Islands East on Thursday July 5, for a visit to their former home in the Magdalen Islands.

Mr. William H. Spencer and daughter, Miss Marian of Oberlin, Ohio, arrived in Little Sands, on Sunday noon, July 8, to visit with Mr. and Mrs. Alex Blue and Lila. The Blues accompanied the Spencers to Eldon on Monday night.

Miss Marian Spencer is a niece of Mrs. Alex Blue's. She has another aunt in P.E.I., namely Mrs. Rowan Sencabough, Oak Valley, where the Spencers' accompanied by Alex Blue and Lila are visiting on Tuesday.

Mr. Lynwood Blue, who works in New Brunswick visited his home over the weekend. His brother A. B. Cecil Alexander (Sandy) of the Halifax Naval Base was also at home. Their father, Mr. George H. Blue, Little Sands, started to work on the Dunning as spare man, July 9.

The writer took time out of her busy day Saturday to gather and arrange a bouquet of wild flowers that grew about the home. There were the tall daisies with their nodding heads. The tall stately buttercups mingling with the smaller ones; the tiny white clusters of the araway, all nestled among the green of the wild pine-apple, with sprigs of timothy, couch grass and Shepherd's Purse.

School have been successful in securing the services of Mrs. Donald Livingstone of Hopefield for the ensuing year.

As I looked about for the paint brush in its yellow dress and its red, orange and yellow beauty, and the stiff little purple flowers, that grow on the chives or onion grass (as the children call them). As I looked closely in the grass, I found the tiny white star flower (all unnoticed at first) to remind us of the Star of Bethlehem, the Hope of the World. Placing them all in a yellow bee hive flower bowl, I thought what a thing of beauty and all the time just round about our door all unnoticed and unheeded in our rush to make a living.

Then I thought how God planned it all for our pleasure. The colours themselves and the flowers remind us of God, the purple and gold of the Robes of Christ, the White of purity and the green as God saw fit to carpet the earth all remind us of His Love.
