ELLEN'S DIARY

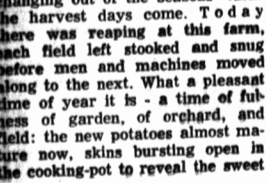

September's Alchemy

"Down by the old millstream" on the cover of the nearer spillway on the dam to be exact, there was a first frost in the garden. In the garden tender vines are marked by it and in the field those of tomato and cucumber would have come to similar grief if the farmwives owing to a feeling that such disaster lay ahead, had not spread protecting covers there in the cold of the Sunday-starglight. It is early to accept Fall's inroads. But there it was at sunrise, first frost written whitely on a "gate" of the dam!
