ANTS AS THEY ARE FOUND IN FAR AWAY AFRICA.

They Devour Cockroaches, Young Mice and Other Vermin—their Meanwhile Prove Themselves Very Troublesome to Humanity, Albeit They Furnish Us a Grand Object Lesson.

The visible insect world is not only a world of wonder, but the instinct akin to reason, and the training, organized and systematic varieties of a marauding army of ants in Africa.

Suddenly, deadly, and irresistibly more than millions of the forest, into, across, and into the ditch, through the boma (wood stockade), across the square, and into every nook and cranny concealing their swarms.

Notice they generally came at night would be a loud yell from some of the men "Look out! Snuff!"

QUEER DIVORCE CAUSES.

Over the Border the Marriage Vow is Very Crisp, Indeed.

A Kansas wife recently secured a divorce from her husband because, as solemnly set forth in the petition, "the defendant pinched the nose of this plaintiff, causing it to become very red, thereby causing the plaintiff great pain and anguish of his whiskers."

An Ohio man has secured a divorce because, as he declared under oath, "the defendant pulled this plaintiff out of bed by his whiskers."

A hunched husband secured a divorce in a Pennsylvania court because, in the language of his affidavit, "the defendant struck this plaintiff a violent blow with her bustle."

A Missouri divorce was once granted because "the defendant got galling about, leaving this plaintiff supple, or he gets away he has to cook it himself."

Out in Illinois a wife secured a decree because her husband threw the baby at her when she hit him with a coal-bucket for spitting on the stove.

A Connecticut man got a divorce on the ground that "the defendant would not get up in the morning, nor call this plaintiff, nor do anything she was told."

A decree was granted in a Massachusetts court because "the defendant keeps this plaintiff awake most of the night."

A Wisconsin man got a divorce because his wife kept a servant girl "who spit on the frying pan to see if it was hot enough."

A Jersey wife secured a decision because "the defendant, the husband, sleeps with a razor under his pillow to threaten this plaintiff's throat."

A Virginia woman was set free because "the defendant does not come home till 10 p. m. and then keeps this plaintiff awake to see if he is home."

A Tennessee court liberated a wife because "the defendant does not wash himself, thereby causing the plaintiff great mental anguish."

In Illinois a decree was obtained because a long suffering husband complained that during the past year "the defendant struck this plaintiff repeatedly with pokers, flat irons and other hard substances."

In Minnesota a decree was given to a wife because "the defendant never cut his toe nails, and being restless in his sleep, scratches this plaintiff severely."

A young man who had just secured a divorce on the ground that "the defendant came into the bedroom the morning after the marriage and beat this plaintiff on the head with her soap suds."

A New York man pleaded with his petition for divorce that "the defendant would not see on this plaintiff's back; neither would she allow him to go to fires at night."

The court decided that the plaintiff was entitled to a decree on the ground that "the defendant was cruel and inhuman—St. Louis Republic."

Since palmistry, the social amusement people have reason to be careful of the inside of their hands, written over with this line and with that, let they be seized upon by the reader to their disgust.

the survey of the lines there published upon with conceit of themselves, putting them to open shams in the face of the world.

the best friend I had in the world, said, recently, an enthusiastic prophet of fate, "if I found the line of truth had not the line of looks before me, leaving his hand!"

And if she were justified in her statement, what complications and perplexities might ensue to the adherents of the palmistry!

the matter might be that no love, would propose to the damsel who had filled his eyes and touched his heart, until he had looked at her wrist and certified to himself the absence of the bracelet of command there, lest he should see before him the fate of Dame Fortune.

the right hand of her lover with his left when he had stammered his wife into the line of goodliness, and discover what traits he had developed in his right hand by scanning the original lines in his left one.

the matter had increased, if any, and what evil ones had been suppressed in his growth, and if, in short, he had desirable traits and what he looked before he was married, in law to be may also think fit to examine the line of life of the proposed bride of her son, and see if it be crossed by the mark of a great misfortune, or otherwise, in order to judge if it is best for her son to encumber himself with a sticky wife, or she may even look at the stars that signify the success of a marriage this young woman is to contract, that she may thus forecast her son's chances of long living.

Care of Lamps. At least once a month the wicks should be taken out of kerosene lamps, the burners unscrewed and boiled in water to which pearl-ash or a little washing-soda has been added.

For Daily Remembrance. Strive with thy thoughts unceasingly before they overpower thee. Use them as they will, for if thou art afraid that they take root and grow, know well, thy thoughts will overpower and kill thee.

Beware, disciple, suffer not, even though it be their shadow, to approach thee. For will grow, increase in size and power, and then this thing of darkness will absorb thy being before thou hast well realized the foul monster's presence.—Light On The Path.

Photography. A photographic camera has been especially devised for registering the quantities of lightning flashes. The slide holding the plate is inclined at a considerable angle to the axis of the lens. Consequently, the flash can only be captured when the flash comes into focus, and from the position of this point upon the plate it is possible to determine the distance of the lightning flash.
