Russians See Yanks Criticized On Screen

This is the second of five articles by a Phoenix columnist who recently spent three weeks touring Russia. By DON DEDERA
Arizona Republic Columnist
(Distributed by The Associated Press)

KIEV—What are Soviet people told about the United States?

I saw the Russian (Pyccknn) Theatre the day we arrived, was a movie with the eye-catching title, Behind the Ramparts of America. It was the most popular show in town. Next day and I asked for tickets a half-day ahead and were lucky to get seats.

The lights faded. A color cartoon leaped to the screen. An American woman tourist, aglow with make-up, haughty in furs, strutted down a Soviet street. Behind her loped her henpecked husband in porkpie and trenchcoat, carrying a camera and a baby.

Light laughter rippled through the Druzhba audience. The couple looked like Jiggs and Maggie, and their baby grew up to be Marilyn Monroe, chomping gum, gulping martinis, and dancing the twist.

PICTURES FLAWS

Then the main feature began. There was nothing funny in it. It was a travelogue of a troupe of Russian folk dancers who toured the United States some months ago. While they were cheered and entertained by Americans, the Soviet cameraman recorded every flaw, every ugliness in sight.

In Washington, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, Denver, and Los Angeles, the cameraman photographed:

"Crazy quilts of neon, swaggering cops with guns, decrepit produce stands, slums, striking workers, every woman and girl in capri pants and sunglasses, going-out-of-business signs, war statues.

—Unemployed languishing in filthy parks. War headlines. Extreme TV commercials. Parades of soldiers, parades of high school girls, parades of boy scouts, all marching to dubbed-in jazz.

—In Washington, Bob Kennedy with his feet on his desk. Philadelphia, a crack in the liberty bell. Boston, dilapidated tenements near the harbor of the tea party. Chicago, sex and crime, with scenes taken as fast from the roaring twenties. In New York, every Negro deprived of food and labor and dignity.

PROPAGANDA AT ITS BEST

Behind the Ramparts of America was a full - blown masterpiece of Soviet propaganda. The travelogue followed the clean-cut, wholesome, Communist dancers through the depraved centres of capitalism.

Later from memory I was able to jot down 50 gross exaggerations, the worst of which was picturing a little boy, at the grave of his soldier father, as a warmonger.

I began to realize the wisdom of an American medical student I had met in Leningrad. He had said:

"There is nothing non-political here, and anyone who believes he can accommodate with a devoted Communist is a fool. At home I am a lot less black-and-white about my opinions. Here I turn off my brains and argue as arbitrarily as they do."

Next day, after the Druzhba show, we met our new Intourist guide for Kiev, Nelya was dark, stout, thrivish and friendly.

"And what do you wish to see?"

"Your slums," I said. "Your juvenile delinquents, your war monuments, the bronze statues of Stalin, your pedestrian accidents, your criminals."

But instead we went to a children's camp, and to some palatial metro stations, of the pride of Kiev.

HELPED BY NUNS

NEW YORK (AP) — Quick-working nuns helped evacuate 295 patients Wednesday when a fast-moving fire broke out in a hall of St. Mary's Hospital in Brooklyn. No patients were injured. The three-alarm blaze was brought under control within 20 minutes. All 295 patients, including 65 newborn infants, were taken temporarily to a lawn surrounding the five-storey building.
