

Hello, there! Glad you have stopped around to see us again. By this time you can't have escaped hearing about the P. W. C. Valentine Formal. Our social committee have made elaborate plans for appropriate decorations.

Plans for the Prince of Wales Variety Show are moving along rapidly. Tryouts for the chorus line are being held—along with the breaths of those who watch them cough, cough, sputter.

The February exams are looming upon the horizon, and P. W. C. equivalents to the report card will soon be dropping with a dull thud on many doorsteps.

The Fourth Year class had another session around the cracker-barrel, and a change was made in the slate of officers. Millie Dunn is now secretary of the class.

This year, as in other years, P. W. C. will have a college day, about the middle of February. Special sport events will be featured, when teams will be imported from other colleges to play against ours.

The new styles sported around the campus recently are said to be a direct outcome of the fashion show held at that last most successful social.

Remember—if you sing, dance, act, speak, Shobovian, or have any other talents, known or hidden, please—pull-eeze contact the variety show committee now, at once, promptly, soon—or any other adverb.

So that's the gimmick for this week, folks. Watch for us in another issue soon. We'll be right in there pitchin'—with the Hatch, Match and Despatch items—well, Natch!

SABRINA HERALDED AS SEASON'S MOST DELIGHTFUL SCREEN EVENT As fresh as a breath of spring is Billy Wilder's brand new romantic comedy delight, "Sabrina," which is due to open today at the Prince Edward Theatre. Co-starring a trio of Academy Award-winners Humphrey Bogart, Audrey Hepburn and William Holden, the Paramount film is based on the smash Broadway play, "Sabrina Fair."

The motif of "Sabrina" is as charming and as gay as anything that has yet flashed on a motion picture screen. It is a modern day Cinderella tale with lovely Audrey Hepburn being the center of attraction. Audrey portrays the role of a chauffeur's daughter, whose father drives for an immensely wealthy family, of which Humphrey Bogart and William Holden are sons.

As a child on the sprawling Long Island estate, Audrey develops a crush on William Holden, the young playboy brother, but she goes unnoticed. However, after a trip to France, where she is transformed from a gangly-legged girl into a lady of fashion and charm, both Holden and Bogart become captivated by her.

Island Odds And Ends

When the new Federal building in Charlottetown is completed the Post Office, it is understood, will take over most of the ground floor. Those who are familiar with the problem of handling mail in the present office say that the new quarters will provide the long needed extra space which the growing volume of business demands.

Other occupants of the ground floor will be the National Employment Office, which serves more than three hundred people daily for weeks on end, and even in quiet periods has upwards of two hundred callers daily. The Employment Office, now located on Grafton Street, has its insurance branch on the ground floor, and its Employment branch on a second floor. In the new building the whole office will be accommodated on the street floor.

Charlottetown merchants report the month of January as a very good one for business, as compared to January one year ago. Contributing factors to the improvement were the better price for potatoes, and the more or less snow-free country roads. Only in the last few days has enough snow fallen to hinder traffic on the main roads of the Province. So with money to spend and good wheeling underfoot, a goodly number of farmers came to town during the month, to do a bit of shopping.

The improved airport facilities when Charlottetown is seeking may or may not come quickly, but come they will in the end. Because the airplane is taking over the handling of freight, and the mail, it must be built, indeed, who cannot foresee the day when airports everywhere will more and more take over the functions of our railroad freight yards. Already the plane is nosing the trains out of passenger-carrying business and air freight is growing rapidly in Canada and the United States. The airport on the Brackley Point Road, if it is to keep pace with the age in which we live, cannot remain as it is too much longer.

The annual showdown for Provincial curlers is at hand; the meeting of Charlottetown, Summerside, Montague, Alberton and Souris, to determine who will represent the island at the Dominion Bonyplid in Regina this year. Locally Clifford MacDonald's team, your youthful team, surprised local curling circles by trimming everybody in sight for the right to represent Charlottetown in the Provincial competition. Dr. Wendell MacDonald's team, which carried Island hopes into the Dominion MacDonald Briar Cup final last year, also qualified for the Island playoffs, one game behind the all-conquering Clifford MacDonald team. Some very competent curlers' fell by the wayside before the two victorious MacDonald-led teams, and interest in the game was at a high pitch while the local teams fought for supremacy.
