The WEEK at S.D.U.

Last Sunday was the most memorable day of the week at S.D.U. It was the most memorable because the importance of that day centered around the chapel, which is the center of College life at S.D.U. As many of you may have noticed through the press, it was at Solemn High Mass that morning that the main altar in the chapel was formally dedicated to the men of the R. C. N. who sacrificed their lives in the last war. The Mass was celebrated by the donor of the altar, Rev. Louis Dougan, assisted by Rev. Joseph Whelby, R. C. N., as deacon and Rev. Owen Sharkey as sub-deacon. The sermon for the occasion was eloquently delivered by Rev. Michael P. MacIsaac, Chaplain of the Fleet. After the service, His Excellency Bishop Boyle spoke briefly, exhorting those present to pray for the King's recovery to health. Father MacKenzie thanked the generous donor on behalf of the Faculty and Board of Governors. Members of the R. C. N. attended the service in a body.

Since the late-comers have arrived and the enrollment has been examined, we find that our family (we always like to think of the student body as one big family) has increased in the high school branch and in that all-important (don't think so) part of S.D.U.—the ranks of the co-eds. Both high school dormitories are in use with Leu Curley prefect in one and "Sport" MacDonald in the other. The co-eds total twenty-seven this year, which sets up a new record for them.

The social life of the students started off with a bang on Thursday afternoon. The place? The newly-improved Holy Name Hall. The occasion? Yes, of course you guessed it—the Thursday afternoon social. This year the socials are under the capable direction of Gerald Clinton. Some who had more "spunk" than others acquainted with the new co-eds, and with the new attractions of Notre Dame and the Nurses' Residence. "The Week" wishes Gerry continued success in his social entertainment.

"The Week" wishes to welcome to the teaching staff Mr. Joseph O'Connell (not O'Connor as previously reported) who is teaching in the Commerce department, and Mr. Gerald Pineau who is teaching high school subjects. It is understood that Mr. O'Connell is a former resident of St. Peter's. Mr. Pineau is a member of the class of '47.

We are unable this week to give you the executives for the various campus organizations as they have not all been elected. However, we do have a list of the executives for the Public Speaking Classes in each year. They are as follows: Senior—President, John Power; vice-president, Martin MacMillan; secretary, Beverly Fitzgerald; Councilors, Dave Kennedy, Edwin MacDonald, Jacques Coulombe. Junior: President, John Weir; vice-president, Mary Johnson; Secretary, Emmett Roche; Councilors, Charles Cheverie, Peter Dunphy. Sophomore: President, John Fisher; vice-president, Gerald Steele; Secretary, Mary Gil. Freshman: President, Joe Mallette; vice-president, Clair McCabe; Secretary, Tom McGaughey; Councilors, Dave McCormac, Pat Rossiter, Danny McInnis. Grade XII: President, John Walsh; vice-president, Joe Coffin; Secretary, Richard Wedge. Grade XI: President, George Mullally; vice-president, Riel Michaud; Secretary, Gerard Dalton; Councilors, Dick Deignan, Jack Doherty. Grade X: President, Leo MacMillan; vice-president, Dave Redmond; Secretary, Keith Elmershaw; Councilor, Bernard Guy.

In the athletic field at this time of year the most talked about sport is, of course, football. Already the intramural league has started, both the Senior and Junior divisions. Father Ellsworth, as in other years, is performing the duties of coach assisted by Ronnie McIvor. Much credit is due Mr. Conrad Kennedy for the efficient way he is carrying out the duties of football manager. First and second teams are strenuously working out every day under coaches A. J. MacAdams and Eldon Green. The boys and coaches have been certainly putting forth all their efforts in order to come up with a good strong team. That their efforts were not in vain was clearly shown on Thursday evening when the Saints defeated the Senior Abbies by the score of 7-0. We are confident that the boys will be in good form for the opening intercollegiate game with Mr. Allison here next Saturday, Oct. 6. Congratulations boys! We're all behind you! As a conclusion to "The Week" we think it would be appropriate to give our readers some information concerning this column. We shall try our best to publish it every week on Saturday, acknowledging the generosity of the Guardian Publishing Co. for their valuable space for this column in their newspaper. We shall try to make it interesting by including all the important happenings at our little community of St. Dunstan's during the week. We trust that it will be of special interest to the relatives of the students and especially the alumni who are still interested in the activities of St. Dunstan's, and also to all other readers. There may be times when "The Week" won't be all you expect it to be, but we hope you will overlook its deficiencies and we apologize for them now. Such has been and will be "The Week" and we hope you enjoy it.

What became of the 2,000,000 souls that once roamed its streets? That caused them to vanish like mist before the sun? History would like to know the answer, and the people living in Indo-China today believe this heavenly city was built by the gods. Nobody can dispute them. The gorgeous carvings on the buildings are beautiful enough to be the work of gods. Is it any wonder that many curious legends have sprung up around this earthly paradise, the most magnificent city ever built by man. And, what is more amazing, every stone is still in place, everything in perfect order just as they were 500 years ago when its entire population vanished and the jungle crept in and swallowed it from the eyes of the world. The most plausible explanation is that the slaves who built it turned upon their masters, killed every man, woman and child, and then died themselves of starvation.

Be that as it may, Angkor is a very real city protected by high walls, not even the efforts of the jungle to destroy it have been successful. Citizens of Garret, Ontario, started in amazement when they saw a young fellow roaring up and down the street on his motorcycle. Was he crazy? Not at all. He had had a brush with a skunk, and was trying to deodorize his clothing. Three bakeries were recently closed in Mexico because motor Strange But True By F. H. MacArthur. Ever hear of the man who went chasing after a rare butterfly and found a city lost to the world for 500 years? Sounds fantastic, I know, yet it's a fact. The man was Henry Mouhot, a French naturalist. The city's name is Angkor. The date 1861. Mouhot was pushing his way through the dense jungle of Indo-China when his startled gaze fell upon five magical towers lifting their domes above the forest. Upon nearer approach a large city unfolded before his eyes, a city of palaces, libraries, monuments, etc., all beautiful beyond description, and all in perfect preservation, it's only inhabitants being bats, and denizens of the jungle. What became of the 2,000,000 souls that once roamed its streets? That caused them to vanish like mist before the sun?
