

Is the baby too thin?
Does he increase too slowly in weight?
Are you in constant fear he will be ill?
Then give him more flesh. Give him more power to resist disease. He certainly needs a fat-forming food.
Scott's Emulsion is just that food. It will make the baby plump; increase the weight; bring color to the cheeks, and prosperity to the whole body. Thin children take to it as naturally as they do to their milk.

FOR THE WOMEN

The Great-Grandniece of George Washington.

Miss Mary Washington-Bond is not only the descendant of George Washington, but she is as well one of the most beautiful girls in New York society. At the Charity Ball last winter she was considered the most beautiful woman present.

Miss Washington-Bond in the great-granddaughter of General Samuel Washington, the brother of President Washington.

Miss Bond has some rare relics which once belonged to her illustrious great-granduncle, and has also many old portraits of the Washington family.

This fair descendant of the "greatest American" is tall and slender and blonde and in every way is worthy of her ancestors. Her miniature is in the famous collection of "Beautiful American Women of Society" belonging to Peter Marie of New York.

Comfort at Home.

"If wives and sisters would try to supply something restful and quiet on the arrival of the man of the family from his daily work, might not much of the hopelessness and the discontent of home life be done away with?"

"Women work hard all day too," was the answer, "and they are just as tired at evening-time. You cannot expect a miracle from them." But it seems to some of us that just such things can be expected of them, and that were the miracle performed the hopelessness of existing conditions would vanish. The beginning of the miracle might be brought about if women, no matter how busy they were, nor what had happened during the day, would arrange to spend an hour in some sort of recreation with their husbands every evening. This recreation might take any form from quiet companionship, as the wife sewed or knitted beside her husband as he smoked, to pleasant work upon some particular hobby which she had taken up because it was interesting to her and interesting to him, and including anything in the form of out-door life after the supper, walking, or taking part in some game with him. The duties of the two are bound to be of interest to both. It is the pleasures and recreations of both which require study before they can become of common interest, and it is part of the wife's field to give sufficient thought to these matters so that they may become of practical use. The miracle might go even a step farther for the wife or daughter could cultivate some one pursuit or interest of her own throwing into it her enthusiasm, finding in it refreshment, and making of it an object by which the sympathies and interest of her husband or brother would be aroused. This is only a suggestion, but it has its significance. It has its significance, because it can be tried in any home, because whatever is done with this purpose sincerely in view is just so far a step, and a good step in the right direction, and because any wife or any sister may fit its application to her own case, and start at once to produce some little result.

A Hobby.

The independent woman who finds herself with ample leisure might do worse than follow the example of the Russian women. The women of a nation whom we look upon as semi-barbarians all have some hobby over which they become enthusiastic, but theirs is not the passing fancy of a season or an hour. To it they devote hours of serious study. Far more often than not it is some branch of science that admits of no half-hearted worship to which they have dedicated their leisure, and many of them having taken up the pursuit as a pastime, finally allow it to become the absorbing interest of a lifetime. Sonia Kovalefski, that marvellous mathematician, was a type of such women, and the one probably most widely known in this country, though she was by no means an exception among the middle classes of that great country. That the ordinary reader in the States approaching this is evidenced by the open-shelf system now being used in the New York Free Circulating Library, whose librarians say that to many people it is a revelation how many girls now go away with some book of science tucked under their arms who formerly would have asked for a novel by the "Duchess"

It Pays.

That "it pays to be civil" is an axiom that has perhaps been so often repeated that it has lost its force. If one's gentle instinct does not prompt her to be polite to everybody, her principles of policy should teach her to be so. It is never safe to be discourteous to the most menial person, for the time may come when his goodwill may be worth much to us. In travelling the value of a gentle considerate manner of speech is particularly remarkable. Railroad officials are quick to note and act upon the request made by her who speaks kindly, and acknowledges all attentions with a cordial "thank you"; and with one's fellow-travellers she who would receive kindly consideration must give it.

This is a low basis upon which to found politeness, but the humiliating fact remains that some persons are moved by principles of self-interest who are not affected by the idea of noblesse oblige.

Mr. W. H. Odell, of Brockville, Strong Believer in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Brockville, Oct 2.—Nowhere in Ontario are Dodd's Kidney Pills more appreciated than among the St. Lawrence River, and the Great Lakes. Where there is water there is damp and danger from rheumatism and colds. The kidneys are the organs most susceptible to colds and the getting out of order therefrom causes rheumatism, lumbago, etc., Mr. W. H. Odell, of Brockville, writes to an enquirer as follows:—

Brockville, Aug 25th.

Dear Sir,—I received your letter and intended to answer it before, but I am ashamed to say neglected to do so. Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me the world of good. They are a splendid cure for the kidneys and I am always ready to say so. I remain,
