

LATTER DAY SLAVES.

Slaves of the Stomach are Doomed to a Miserable Lot.

From Which Only Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets can Rescue Them—But this Remedy is Positive in its Cure—It Never Fails.

Slavery, in its original form, has been abolished in all civilized nations. But slavery of a more horrible form, slavery that means continual, unceasing suffering, ended only by a lingering and miserable death, still exists, wherever civilization holds sway.

The slaves of the stomach form a large proportion of the population of our country.

And the stomach is a more tyrannical master than any old time slave holder could be.

Ask any victim of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Billiousness, Heartburn, Flatulence, Headache, Waterbrash, Constipation, etc., what his lot is.

He will tell you that "Life is a burden." He would give much to learn how he could escape from his bondage.

Yet escape is easy.

The use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets for a short time, will break the chains of any Slave of the Stomach and give him perfect freedom.

It is needless to describe the symptoms of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, etc. Every victim knows them, only too well.

It is of more interest to him to know what will cure his disease.

That information is given here.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—and they only—will cure Dyspepsia, etc.

They are absolutely certain in their result. They always cure.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists, at fifty cents a box, (each box containing full double treatment) six boxes $2.50, or sent, on receipt of price, by The Dodd's Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

LADIES

A WORD WITH YOU.

A perfect fitting corset permits of perfect freedom of movement and never distresses: such a corset is the most comfortable article of Ladies wearing apparel.

Most corsets are little better than "Straight-jackets" and they certainly were never designed for comfort.

French corset-makers have won world wide fame as corset cutters, and in gay Paris, the centre of the world's fashion, no corset enjoys the fame and enormous sale of the tailor-cut hand finish.

A VISIT TO THE MAGDALENS

courteous,—the gentlemanly purser, Mr. Tall, alone of those we saw, boasting British blood. With a new set of boilers to restore her to her original rate of speed, 16 knots, and also a new set of conditions in the contract bringing up the service to the requirements of the times, we feel sure that all concerned would hail with satisfaction the continued connection of steamer and crew with the Magdalene route.

The nationality of the Magdalener is French. He is a descendant of the unfortunate Acadians who took refuge in those lonely isles from the tyranny of the oppressor at the Deportation. They are the same admirable people today, with slight infusions of Irish, Scotch and Jersey blood, now thoroughly assimilated, of which we read with such tender sympathy in the soul-moving lines of "Evangeline," when fire and sword and tempest conspired to scatter them over the ocean.

"Only along the shores of the mournful and misty Atlantic, Linger a few Acadian peasants," wrote the sad-hearted poet. But his vision was of the black and bitter past, for today the sturdy descendants of this cruelly expatriated race are rapidly recovering every inch of their ground and rightfully aspiring to a place and a part in the life of this great country, which another Longfellow may weave into a poem, half a century hence, entirely free from the note of sadness in their past which touches so keenly the sensitive heart, but none the less likely to excite our sympathy and admiration.

The Acadians of the Magdalenes, disadvantaged as they were always, have admirably kept alive the spark of faith and patriotism. The terrible sacrifices made for them by their devoted and intrepid missionaries, will only be known at the last great day. They are manifestly a colony of splendid citizens now; with their own clergy, doctors, merchants, mechanics, sailors and farmers—a little colony, which, but for some necessary public works and the presence of an odd demagogue, might well be written down as enjoying the only modern Utopia of which we have any knowledge.

These public works there is every prospect they may secure shortly, as the Minister, with the Federal member, is at present enjoying the beauties of the Islands and making himself strong with the people in case of an appeal to their suffrages. A breakwater should certainly be built by the Federal authorities at House Harbor, where an extensive business is carried on, and where boats and vessels are obliged to seek an imperfect shelter from the gales which often sweep the bay. Such a piece of work would give the steamer a secure landing-place, too, and greatly facilitate freight and passenger embarkation. And they are entitled to this, in justice. They have helped build all the railways, canals and national works of the Federation like as Prince Edward Islanders, and get little or no direct good of them.

The Quebec Government is being asked to bridge the channel between All Right and Grindstone, too, and surely this is the least it can do after these people, bearing their pro rata of all the expenditure for Public Works, and that on account of sundry casualties frequently transpiring in the old French province. This bridge, which would not cost over much, would link the three important islands together and make travel expedient and easy. Petty interests may stand in the way; but the general good should never be sacrificed to such, or a necessary improvement be withheld, on the excuse that all are not of one mind.

We shall, in our next, speak of the islands in particular and the incidents which fill up a week in their fresh and invigorating breezes.
