REVEEN, world renowned hypnotist, is entertaining audiences at the Charlottetown Confederation Centre. This is Reveen's third appearance at the Centre and it will be his last performance as a hypnotist as he plans to give up this career in December after which time he will perform as a magician and allusionist. His wife, Coral, appears with him in his performances which commenced last night and will run through to Saturday.

World Renown Hypnotist Thrills Centre Audience

By ANNE BOND

It's great fun to watch one of your friends suddenly turn into an unbelievably tough gangster called Louis, or to see the girl that was sitting a few seats away go into a screaming fit because she thinks that an elephants loose in Confederation Centre and is going around terrorizing little boys, or to see another girl forget who she is, where she is and why she's where she is and this is what makes up the "Reveen" show which opened last night at Confederation Centre Theatre.

It's even more fun when you realize that these people aren't embarassing themselves and won't remember anything they did, because they weren't tipsy or anything—they were hypnotized.

The show presented last night by the renowned hypnotist was built on audience participation and that's pretty nearly always a sure fire formula for success. Everybody who wanted to got into the act and even a few who didn't, found themselves rather tangled up in the spirit of a "fun show".

FIRST ACT

The show's first act is draggy, but this is probably necessary with the amount of audience participation included in it. In the first act Reeven solicits from the audience volunteers and through a series of mesmeric tests he, with amazing speed although it still comes off as tiresome, weeds out all but the best. These most responsive subjects are then put into a hypnotic sleep and the fun begins.

First they were pianists and never did you see such effort going into a composition, then they were a rock and roll band and they played their guitars, beat their drums and did the twist with gusto, and once more everybody looked at home doing it.

Intermission saw the subjects mingling in the theatre foyer with the rest of the audience, but at an aforesaid time they promptly took their seats in the theatre and the first bars of the melody that introduced the second act saw them marching back on stage in a very military fashion, to present to the audience an amateur show that was filled with laughs.

There was a tap dancer, three would be ballérinas doing excerpts from "Swan Lake", that I'm sure the National Ballet is looking for; Charles Boyer making love to a michophone, the previously mentioned gangster "Louis" who was in the throws of taking over Charlottetown and representing the other side of the law "Sheriff Tex", packin, six guns and looking like he just stepped of a fat horse and to add a little culture to the affairs Mrs. M. who proceeded to give the ladies in the audience a lecture of the evils of men (males.)

And what is even more surprising all these people did these with some skill and a great deal of self confidence.

INVITES AUDIENCE

Reveen's show is both entertaining and educational and he explained to the audience the science of hypnosis and some of the facts and fallacies associated with it. He also told the audience of the use being made of hypnosis in the medical profession and following the show last night invited members of the audience afflicted with any one of a number of nervous habits from excessive smoking to nervous headaches to remain and be hypnotized to attempt to curb the habit in the hypnotic state.

Reveen will be in Charlottetown for three more performances and will be playing at Confederation Centre Theatre until Saturday night. Different shows are presented each evening—there will be a circus show where participants will become circus performers—there will be the "Ed Sullivan Show" and the amateur volunteers will impersonate professional show business personalities and there will be the Canada-wide amateur show which is aimed at bringing to light the hidden talents of the subjects hypnotized at that performance.

Peter Reveen is a native Australian and has for twenty years studied hypnotism, mesmerism, memory training and other allied subjects. He has entertained all over Canada and the United States, in his native country and in Europe. Reveen works in the show with his wife Coral.

Past Presidents Honored At Trade Board Meeting

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN

The dinner meeting of the Summerside Board of Trade honored 14 of 18 past presidents in a presentation here last night.

Mayor George Key, Jr., in addressing the board, said that the ones being honored were the "fathers of the board of trade in Summerside". He said that indeed they were the "fathers of Summerside".

Ross MacKenzie, chairman of the tourist committee, said that more than 20,000 people stopped to take advantage of the new tourist bureau. He commended the two girls who worked there during the summer and added that most tourists were surprised to learn that the bureau was operated by the town of Summerside.

He said much work needed to be done but that efforts were being made to complete the landscaping, etc. next year. He also said that 38 visitors from Pasadena, California, had come to town this week, and were pleased with their visit.

Howard Waite spoke as chairman of the Retail Merchants Association. He said that centennial lighting and a Santa Claus lane were being investigated. Truro and Fredericton have been written in regard to their plans in this regard. He stated that the final decision has not yet been reached in regard to Christmas shopping. The committee meets this morning to decide the hours, he said.

GUEST SPEAKER

Austin A. Scales introduced guest speaker, Thomas J. Flood of Industrial Enterprises Incorporated, who gave an informative talk.

Mr. Flood opened his remarks by saying that in accepting the invitation to speak he had taken as a basic assumption the attitude that the Summerside Board of Trade have taken on the prime responsibility of actively promoting the industrial and commercial development of the community.

Mr. Flood dealt extensively with how Industrial Enterprises Inc. can assist the Board in a Development program and how the Board can assist Industrial Enterprises in their development plans as they affect the community.

"If industrial development does not take place commercial activity will stagnate", he stated. "Perhaps the best example I can cite is the enormous amount of industrial activity that will put into motion as the construction of the Northumberland Causeway gets underway, as the major population center nearest the construction nothing the community has experienced in its history can approach the effect the causeway will have on all phases of industrial and commercial activity in all areas", Mr. Flood pointed out.

FEEL EFFECT

"It will take men to build the causeway, and your pool of available skilled and qualified tradesmen will feel the effect. I suspect it won't nearly fill the need and that means that labor will be brought in. They must be housed and fed. They will want all the other necessities and amenities of life and it seems logical to me that Summerside will be called on to play a major role in supplying them", the speaker said.

Mr. Flood went on to tell the members that they should look beyond the period of time after the causeway is completed and alternative plans should be prepared to make use of the skills of those who worked on the construction of the causeway.

The speaker went on to comment on the situation that arises when almost all of the commercial and industrial eggs of the town are in one basket. "If I am correctly informed, I believe that this is the case with Summerside in reference to the location of the Canadian Forces Base which has been located there since the 1940's and has played an increasingly important role in the Commercial life of the area throughout its history," he stated.

"As far as I know the base will continue to operate in the foreseeable future. However we must always face the fact that the present state of affairs may someday cease to exist and any community in that position must face up to alternatives that might be put into effect", he stated.

"One of the first approaches is complementary development of the economy of the community." By this Mr. Flood emphasized the fact that he meant the active promotion of industries which could feed products and services into the economic opportunities generated by the base.

NEW AVENUES

The speaker further stated that an analysis of the qualifications of service personnel at the base might open up new avenues in the industry line.

"The same sort of analysis should be undertaken by the Civilian Labor Force at the base, he said. If at some time in the future the base was to curtail its activities or abandon them altogether do you have any knowledge of what forms of alternate employment could be offered to the people who would be thrown out of work. If you had an accurate picture of what they can do it would make the matter of matching up and industry to suit their qualifications that much easier, he pointed out.

"In the same vein it would be wise to prepare an inventory of the physical assets of the base to see what is available in the way of buildings and other assets to see if it might offer some direction in indicating the sort of industries which could logically take advantage of them in considering location here."

Mr. Flood closed his remarks by emphasizing that "Now is the time to be actively considering and implementing an overall plan for the future of the community."

Clergy Urges Action On Low Rental Units

SUMMERSIDE — Six members of clergy from various denominations in the town of Summerside have urged the Town Council and government of Prince Edward Island to commence action on a program of construction and operation of low rental family housing units.

In letters mailed out yesterday, the clerics request the policy of both governments in regard to "implementation of the provisions of the Prince Edward Island Housing Authority Act," but in particular, with regard to the carrying out of the low rental housing program.

The letters are signed by Rev. Austin Bradley, assistant priest, St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church; Rev. Howlett, pastor, Christian Church (disciples); Rev. J. McBride, minister, Presbyterian Church; Rev. Robert P. Matthews, minister, Baptist Church; Rev. Cecil Webber, D. minister, United Church; and Rev. Robert Tuck of St. Mary's Anglican Church.

The letter to the town council points out five recommendations, which were pointed out by a committee on housing appointed by the town council.

The recommendations were: (A) that the Town Council cooperate with the provincial housing authority in the construction and operation og low rental family housing units in the town; (B) that the provisions and penalties of the Canadian fire regulations be enforced in the town of Summerside; (C) that the Howatt Rental Accomodation regulations be enacted as a by-law of the town to serve as the community's housing standard; (D) that the owners of slum properties which are or become vacant be contacted with a view to securing the demolishment of these properties; (E) that a system of permits or licenses be instituted to govern the rental, sale and modification of housing accomodation in the town.

SLUM PROPERTIES

The letter states that the only recommendation acted upon was (D) concerning ridding the town of slum properties. The town was commended for this action.

The letter continues that action on section (A) lies with the provincial government, "although we are happy to note that the town has already designated sites for family housing."

The letter asks what decisions it has reached, in regard to three of the sections. The committee of clerics said they were willing to meet with council to discuss the matter.

The letter to the provincial government states: "We, the undersigned, as concerned citizens of the town of Summerside, respectfully request the government of Prince Edward Island to state publicly its policy with regard to the implementation of the provisions of the Prince Edward Island Housing Authority Act, passed by the provincial legislature earlier this year, and in particular with regard to the carrying out of a programme of construction and operation of low rental family housing units under the terms of the act."

Bail Is Set At $3,500 In Break And Theft Case

SUMMERSIDE —Robert Richard of Summerside appeared before Magistrate W. Chester S. MacDonald in County Court here yesterday on a break, entry and theft charge and a charge of having in his possession house breaking instruments. Bail was set at $3,500.

Two sureties of $1,750 each make up the bail.

Richard was charged following a break into Charles Ellis store in New Glasgow, P.E.I., on Sept. 15. He was represented in court yesterday morning by G. Bruce MacDonald, while George MacMahon represented the crown.

Douglas Webster of Kelvin Grove, pleaded not guilty to a charge of increasing his speed while another car was passing. He was found guilty and fined $10 and costs.

Constable Plumb of the Borden police told the court that he had attempted to pass Webster but when in the process of passing, he said the accused increased his speed rapidly until he reached 80 miles per hour.

FEARED ACCIDENT

Mr. Webster said that he was driving with his family and that he increased his speed in order to avoid an accident. He said that Cst. Plump's car was passing him on a curve and there were two cars coming to meet him. Mrs. Webster also testified.

Neil R. MacLeod in summing up, said that Webster was not in any drag racing game and there was not guilty intention. He said it was a reasonable reaction.

Cpl. John MacQuire of the Borden detachment conducted the crown case.

Owen Gordon of East Royalty pleaded guilty to failing to transfer his vehicle permit, and was fined $10 and costs.

Barry Verner Norring of Cape Traverse was fined $10 and costs after pleading guilty to speeding.

GETS TWO MONTHS

Lester Russell Yeo of Summerside was sentenced to two months in Prince County jail when he pleaded guilty to having in his possession a quantity of cigarettes obtained through an indictable offense. RCMP said that a store was broken into at Richmond and Yeo was arrested later, having 13 packs of cigarettes in his possession. He was in an intoxicated condition.

Lewis Louis Murphy, 17, of Borden, was fined $25 and costs when he pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by being drunk. He was warned by Magistrate MacDonald that he would be sentenced to a jail term the next time he was arrested for a charge connected with liquor.

Raymond Jones of St. Louis, P.E.I. pleaded guilty to impaired driving and paid $75 and costs.

Wallace Montgomery of Traveller's Rest, pleaded guilty to intoxication and theft valued at less than $50. Court was informed that Montgomery was in an intoxicated condition when he took a wallet, containing $4 and some change, from a drawer.

Magistrate MacDonald said that this was all caused by liquor. The man had appeared six times on liquor offenses this year.

On the first charge he was sentenced to 30 days in Prince County jail, while the second charge brought a two month sentence.
