Unconsciously Humorous.

It was Stetson who on landing from the steamer after a stormy voyage exclaimed, "Thank God, I am once more on vice versa!"

Mrs. Billington on her return from America brought home many Stetson stories. One of the best had reference to the sudden necessity of enlarging the programme of a variety entertainment. His manager had, as he believed, successfully filled the bill. Stetson arrived on the scene in the midst of the opening numbers. "What is on now?" he asked. "Well, it's just a pretty, sentimental duet by the brothers So-and-so." "Sentimental, eh?" said Stetson. "That's good." It was one of those duets that have supplied George Grossmith and other entertainers with some of their best burlesques of part singing. The tenor asks a vocal question, the baritone replies—a kind of litany, with variations. In this case the tenor was a feeble looking youth of 50, with one of those voices that may be music or an escape of gas.

Stetson stood at the wing and contemplated the duetists—youthful tenor of 50, aged baritone with the manners of 20 and such a wig!

"Where are the friends of my youth?" began the tenor in pathetic tones that hardly reached the orchestra.

"Where are the loved ones gone?" responded the baritone in a gloomy gurgle. "Farther back," said Stetson from the wing. "They'll hear you better lower down the stage." Having thus got them well out of the way of the curtain, "Ring down," he said to the prompter at his elbow, and the drop fell. "On with the next number in the programme," he said, "and send those two gentlemen to my room. How long are you engaged for?" he asked them. "Two weeks, Mr. Stetson," they answered with deferential humility. "How much?" "Fifteen dollars a week."

"Very well, my poor fellows. There's your money," he said. "I won't detain you. Go and find the friends of your youth." When you tell this story, it is necessary that you should sing the lines to their right tune and with characteristic imitation of two played out voices, and bear in mind how cynically courteous Stetson would be in commending the faded duetists to go straightway in quest of those friends of their youth.—Newcastle Chronicle

OLD JIM BRIDGER.

Sir George Gore, a wealthy Irish sportsman, began in 1855 a hunting expedition among the Rocky mountains which occupied two years and exceeded anything of the kind ever seen on this continent. The outfit consisted of 50 persons, including secretaries, a steward, cooks, flymen, dog tenders, servants, a train of 30 wagons and numerous saddle horses and dogs.

Old Jim Bridger was Sir George's guide and interpreter, and no man on the frontier knew the glens and passes of the mountains so accurately as he did. Though illiterate and as unconventional as an Indian, Bridger was honest, kind, generous and shrewd—just the man to attract the Irish sportsman.

In his "Old Santa Fe Trail" Colonel Inman describes the companionship of the two men—one a rich, educated, well-souled Irish nobleman, the other a man who from boyhood had lived on the plains, depending on his tact and rifle for food and life.

Sir George would lie in bed until 10 o'clock in the morning; then he took a bath, ate his breakfast and set out generally alone for the day's hunt. It was not unusual for him to remain out until 10 at night, and he seldom returned without "meat." His dinner was then served, to which he extended an invitation to Bridger.

After the meal was over Sir George was in the habit of reading from some book and drawing out from Bridger his ideas about the author.

The Irishman usually read from Shakespeare, which Bridger reckon'd was too highfalutin for him.

"That thar big Dutchman, Mr. Full-stuff," he commented, "was a leetle too fond of lager beer."

Sir George read the "Adventures of Baron Munchausen" to Bridger, who remarked that he'd be doggoned if he swallowed everything that thar baron said. He thought he was "a liar," yet acknowledged that some of his own adventures among the Blackfeet would be equally wonderful, "if writ down in a book."

Bridger thought Sir George a successful hunter, an opinion justified by the records of the two years' hunt—40 grizzly bears, 2,500 buffaloes, numerous antelopes and other small game.

"The Logic of Dress"

A booklet which tells the style of suit worn to best advantage by the "Short stout" man, the "Portly," the "Round shouldered," the "Very erect," the "Slipping shouldered," the "Tall thin" and the "Tall Stout."

It indicates the peculiarities and purpose of the "Tuxedo," the "Frock Coat," the "Walking," "Shooting," "Sack" "Double Breasted" and "Norfolk" Suits, with their effect upon the appearance of different types of wearers.

It contains practical pointers on cloths, interior construction, shape retention, the birth and motive of "fads" and other trade secrets of the tailor.

Valuable Property BY AUCTION

I am instructed by S. G. o. Thorne to sell at auction, on that very desirable property, situated on the Lower Spring Park Road—head of Pownall Street. The house is in excellent condition, contains fine large shop, dining room, kitchen and pantry, and thirteen spacious and well finished rooms. Large frost-proof cellar, together with barn. The halls and rooms are all painted—with two exceptions. In fact everything is in first class condition, and affords an excellent chance for some one to do business; as it is an old established stand.

TUESDAY,

May 3rd, at 12 o'clock,

A portion of the purchase money may remain secured on the premises.

Terms at sale.

Before the Bullfight.

"Now," said my friend, "we will go to the chapel." "The chapel?" "Why, yes, the next room is a small chapel where every torador goes before the fight to pray and ask God and his patron saint that his life be spared and that he be given the courage and strength to take that of the bull." We entered the small chapel, at one end of which was an altar covered with flowers and lighted candles, in the middle a crucifix, and behind a painting of the Virgin Mary. One of the toradors came in and, kneeling at the altar, began to pray. What a contrast! This man, covered with silk and gold, kneeling in front of the kind and sweet lover of humanity and asking (in order to kill) the protection of him to whom all lives are dear and precious.

"You see the man there kneeling and praying?" said my friend. "Well, he is Manuel Garcia, generally called 'Espantero,' the greatest living torador. He is the first espada of Spain and is celebrated for his great courage. When he sticks his sword in the bull's neck, he never jumps aside, as other toradors do—no, he wants to stop the bull there to kill him on the spot. As it is nearly impossible, he has often been seriously wounded by dying bulls. He has saved over 100,000 pesetas. He will retire from the ring a rich man in another year."

The man had finished praying. He left the chapel, shaking hands with his friends, and I could not help thinking, "A rich man in one year—yes, provided"—But I did not dare finish my thought even to myself, and, raising my eyes to the crucifix, I murmured involuntarily, "God, spare him!"—A.
