other guest speakers. Deane, Duffey and Taggart. Introduced by Mr. Victor Ling, Mr. Dunstall took as his subject, "Public Acceptance", in which he stressed the changed public attitude toward both life insurance and life underwriter.

Referring to the life insurance salesman, he said, "If we examine the record we will see a gradual evolution from the day when the term 'life insurance agent' was a by-word to the present day recognition and acceptance of the life underwriter as a semi-professional man and a leader in his community."

He attributed this change in public attitude to the fact that the life underwriters, through the Life Underwriters Association, have established a high standard of ethical conduct and business

At the afternoon session of the Provincial Home and School Association which meets next Tuesday at Prince of Wales College, a panel of speakers will bring highlights of the National Home and School conference which was concluded in Fredericton last week. Pictured above, left to right is a portion of the panel as they made preliminary plans yesterday with Mrs. J. Gordon MacDonald, provincial president. They are Mr. Allison MacLean, Summerside; Mrs. Dorothy Lantz, Mrs. MacDonald and Mrs. W. E. Scantlebury, Charlottetown. Others who will appear on the panel are Rev. Eric Robin, P.P. North Rustico; Mrs. Arthur Clark, Summerside; Miss Ruth Ellis, Summerside.

Efforts Praised

Warm tribute was paid yesterday afternoon to Mr. J. O. Hyndman who fifty years ago founded the Life Underwriter's Association of Prince Edward Island.

Mr. Leslie Dunstall, Executive Vice-President of the Life Underwriters of Canada, related how Mr. Hyndman deplored the conditions under which insurance underwriters were working and through his efforts was able to establish a Provincial organization from which sprung the National organization in the following year.

practices, and have also set up a high educational standard through the program of study to the designation "Chartered Life Underwriter" of Canada (C.L.U.).

INSURANCE GOOD PROPERTY

Speaking to the subject, "Life Insurance is Good Property", K. H. Deane said, "There is an ever increasing appreciation by the public today of the fact that a permanent life insurance policy is a good piece of property to own. It is property just as surely as either type of investment and, when considered in all its aspects, represents a better long-term investment than most people realize. A sound program of permanent life insurance should take the role not only of providing protection but, of almost equal importance, it should constitute the major portion of the average Canadian's investment dollars."

"Most life insurance companies operating in Canada have policies which will give an excellent return after allowing for the money that must be paid out in the form of death claims. This mortality cost should be looked upon in the same light as the premiums we pay each year for car or fire insurance. The balance of the premium should be considered as an investment, and for most of us there is none that is any finer."

Orel N. Duffey, C.L.U., spoke on, "Knowledge is Power". He said, "Today, as never before, the life underwriter is receiving an ever-increasing measure of recognition from the insuring public for his professional ability and the unselfish service he renders his community."

"He is regarded more now as a friendly advisor rather than a collector or salesman as in the past. This change in public opinion has been brought about by the life underwriter's awareness of his responsibilities to policyholders, and by his sincere efforts to give sound advice in filling their life insurance needs."

"The life underwriter today faces a challenge: that of not only maintaining, but increasing that prestige and esteem in which he is now held. This challenge can only be met by offering an improved service to clients through improved knowledge of life insurance, and how it can best be used to the advantage of

Social Welfare Bureau Drive Starts Next Week

A special meeting of the Catholic Social Welfare Bureau canvassers was held last night at the Community Centre with the president Dr. L. I. Duffy presiding.

The work of the Welfare Bureau canvassers was outlined and instructions were given to the canvassers for the annual drive which gets underway next Wednesday, June 15.

Among the speakers were Sister Mary Henry, Director of the Welfare Bureau. She outlined the work of the Bureau and the role which the Bureau played in helping needy families and persons throughout the past year when unemployment was so high.

She also pointed out that Child Welfare and adoption played a very important part in the Bureau's work and should be the Bureau's chief concern. However circumstances forced the Bureau to deal with relief cases to a far greater extent this past year than under ordinary circumstances.

Co-chairmen of the Basileia parish canvassers, Messrs. George Cheverie and Roy MacGillivray spoke as did co-chairmen Messrs. Frank O'Neill and Eugene Kelly of the Holy Redeemer parish.

Dr. Brendan O'Grady outlined instructions for the canvassers while Father Murphy spoke of the merit of the campaign in the national organization with the work of the church.

Following the meeting, cards were distributed among the unusually large number of canvassers present. Very encouraging reports were received from the special names canvassers who began their campaign this week.

SAYS FARM CONDITIONS FAR FROM SATISFACTORY

OTTAWA, (Special)—Farm conditions in Prince Edward Island are far from satisfactory, J. Angus MacLean, Conservative M.P. for Queen's told the House of Commons Friday night. In the debate on agricultural estimates, Mr. MacLean recalled that while the value of farm products grown in the Province in 1952 was $20 million, it dropped in 1953 to $12.0 million and last year to $12.8 million.

The official index of farm production Mr. MacLean said, showed each individual according to his needs."

OTHER SPEAKERS

Grant Taggart spoke during both the morning and afternoon sessions. His subjects were: "Forty Years With Dotted Lines" and "Organizing for Work". He said, "What sort of an answer would you expect of me if I were asked to relate my most thrilling experience in the life insurance business? Well, it was not when I wrote my first $100,000 case, it was not when I finally insured one man until he had more than a million of insurance; it was not when I first qualified for the presidency of my company's leading producers' club. It could easily be that the most thrilling experience I ever had was when I was able to deliver the proceeds of a policy which had lapsed several years before the death of the insured, but which had been continued on automatic extended insurance. It was the amount which paid the mortgage on a farm a matter of weeks before it was to have been lost through foreclosure."

"It has been from little policies that I have had the heart-warming experiences of seeing homes and farms saved from mortgage foreclosure, children well-dressed and educated and many other things accomplished that should reasonably be the lot of every family."

Mr. R. J. Rupert, C.L.U., Regional Vice-President of the Association in speaking on the subject, "Our Professional Association", traced the growth and explained function of the group. In an interesting manner he explained how the lot of the individual life insurance salesman had been phenomenally improved through the Association's program of education.

Company-Agent relations and in its dealings with legislative bodies in matters pertaining to the business as in public relations generally. He urged the wholehearted support of the industry's "Professional Association" by every Island life insurance man.

To Attend CMA Meeting, Toronto

Dr. W. J. P. MacMillan and Mrs. MacMillan leave for Toronto on Monday morning where the former will attend the 20th annual meeting of the Canadian Medical Association. Dr. MacMillan, as a member of the executive for 20 years, enjoying the distinction of being the senior member in point of time, will attend meetings of the body prior to the general meeting.

This meeting of the association gives promise of being the biggest gathering in the history of the organization as it is being held conjointly with the British Medical Association. Approximately 700 British doctors and their families are scheduled to arrive in Toronto early next week. There are 25 members in the Executive and 280 in the Council.

The top-rating members of the medical profession in Great Britain, Canada and the United States are slated to speak at the meetings, which will extend over a period of two weeks.

Dr. T. C. Routley, who was secretary of the organization for 30 years and is now president of the combined British and Canadian Medical Associations, will preside at the featured sessions.

had 14 weekly broadcasts — audience participation shows, interview programs, dramatic sketches and his favorite of all, "Art Baker's Notebook". He considers this program "a personal visit with a good friend."

Because Art's listeners became customers of any product he advertised, he soon established himself as the "voice of sincerity." Also, he has always been most particular about the choice of sponsors. An example of a Baker-listener-relationship is this: A woman called one of his sponsors to ask that a certain item be sent to her home. The cost of the article was between forty and fifty dollars. The salesman asked if it should be sent on approval.

"Well I suppose you can send it that way if you want," said the lady, "but if Art Baker says it's okay, that's good enough for me!"

And for over your years Art has been a national television favorite with his "You Asked For It" series, as well as "The Dinah Shore Show" on radio and television, coast to coast.

Baker has also made his mark in motion pictures. His life is one giant merry-go-round between radio, movie lots and television studios.

Strangely enough, Art Baker still finds time for some relaxation. He likes to shoot a game of pool now and then loves to see a good show. His most enjoyable pastime is spending as much time as he can with his four children and grandchildren.

But his theological studies were interrupted in 1917 when he sailed for France as part of the American Expeditionary Forces. A superior officer thought Baker was just the man to help keep up the soldiers' morale — he had a lusty voice and seemed to be a natural born song leader, and so Art found himself leading 10,000 troops in community singing!

After his return from France, he joined an evangelist unit touring the country and for ten years did everything with this group except preach. Because he had an easy way with the boys and girls, his special field was children's work.

When the group hit California, Baker decided this was the end of the trail as far as he was concerned. He settled down in Glendale, going into business for himself — not the ministry, nor as a song leader, but in the refrigerator business. That developed into nothing but frozen assets and he found himself stone broke!

One fateful day, Baker saw an ad in a local paper. It went something like this: "Wanted — Man with platform experience and ability to inspire others." That seemed to fit like a glove. He answered the ad and soon was working for the Fox and Henshaw Cemetery as a lecturer in the mausoleum, telling visitors about the great works of art. He also announced the company's radio program, "Tapestries of Life."

Another eventful day, Baker walked into the Los Angeles offices of NBC to see the sales manager. The head of the artist bureau who was in the office offered Baker an audition. A few days later he was on the air.

From then on, he couldn't stop being on the air. At one time, he

He is the son of Mrs. Winnifred Leonard of 27 King Square and received his early education at Queen Square School and Prince of Wales College. Bill's plans for next fall include further Post Graduate Study in Business Administration.

The theft of two dressed dolls, a sum of money and several other articles from the Art Exhibition in the Civic Centre has caused general disappointment on the part of those responsible for the display.

The Exhibit was thrown open to all in the hope that the young people would profit by viewing the pictures and other items. No suggestion was put forward as the beginning that children must be accompanied by parents, but in view of the probability of the articles referred to having been picked up by children "on their own", unaccompanied children may have to be forbidden admittance.
