

Rents-Freight Decision To Be Announced

OTTAWA, Feb. 26 — (CP) — The decision will be cleared tomorrow for two important decisions—freight rates and rents—that may make millions of economically-minded Canadians smile or frown.

The freight-rates decision, with more than $40,000,000 a year in rail freight charges at stake, will be announced first. At 11 A.M. AST the Board of Transport Commissioners will give a "final determination" on the railways' 1948 application for 20-per-cent rate boost.

Thirty minutes later the Supreme Court of Canada will deliver their decision on the validity of Federal rent controls.

572,000 Idle Because Of U. S. Coal Strike

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 — (AP) — John L. Lewis' miners and the operators meet tomorrow in another effort to settle the contract dispute that has reduced the coal stock of the United States to less than a normal week's supply.

Unemployment in coal-using industries passed the 300,000 mark. Counting 373,000 United Mine Workers on strike, the country's jobless from the mine shutdown now totals 572,000. The coal strike caused new layoffs in steel. The United States Steel Corporation said 10,000 employees will be laid off by tomorrow. Several thousand more will be idle by the end of the week.

Bethlehem Steel Corporation said production in its plants is down 50 per cent because of the coal shortage.

Another hammer blow is poised over railroads.

The Interstate Commerce Commission indicated in Washington that further rail service cuts may be made if the strike continues.

Chairman J. Monroe Johnson of the I.C.C. told a congressional subcommittee that any new reduction probably will amount to 10 per cent in freight and 15 per cent in passenger service on lines using coal-burning locomotives.

Passenger service already has been cut 50 per cent and freight by 25 per cent.

Quits Mining for Army

The families of striking miners are feeling the economic pinch too. Their situation is pointed up by remarks made by a 26-year-old miner recruit as he gave up mining in favor of military service.

Ray Allen, Mohawk, W. Va., said in Memphis:

"I've seen children hungry, miners idle and grumpy and their wives despairing. They are fed up with John L. and hundreds of miners have told me they're not going back to the pits.

"The miners are satisfied with the contract they had. It was the best we've ever had, and as far as I can find out they don't want any more, no matter what Mr. Lewis thinks.

While Lewis has not made his demands public, they include wage and pension demands, and an increase in the amount paid by the operators into the welfare fund. Lewis also is said to seek a guarantee of 200 working days a year.

Gen. McNaughton Gives Views On Atomic War

OTTAWA, Feb. 27 — (CP) — Uranium, or even hydrogen atomic bombs, cannot by themselves win a war, Gen. A.G.L. McNaughton announced. These weapons have vast power, but they are only "fully effective" in a surprise attack on concentrated targets.

Gen. McNaughton, Canadian representative on the United Nations atomic energy commission, discounted the efficiency of nuclear explosions when used against an army deployed in the field or against a naval force in "open battle order."

Powerful as they are, atomic weapons do not replace conventional armaments by land and sea, he told the Canadian club of Ottawa.

Atomic bombs should be most feared when unsuspecting people are concentrated in great cities, or when harbors are congested with unarmored shipping, or in closely-developed manufacturing areas.

"In consequence, what we have most to dread is the secret accumulation in hostile hands of stocks of these bombs," Russia's ability to produce a nuclear explosion increased the world's anxiety.

He expressed confidence that the democracies could maintain the technical leadership in the atomic field, but even with this leadership every effort had to be made to reach international agreement on atomic control.

The atomic materials which could be used for peaceful pursuits, placemen, even in comparatively small quantities, "may be a terrible menace to our security."

The most serious menace lies behind the iron curtain, Gen. McNaughton said.

"In consequence, we believe there still is at least a little time left which can safely be given to the process of education and persuasion."

Soviet Union Boosts Official Value Of Ruble

By EDDY GILMORE
MOSCOW, Feb. 26 (AP) — The Soviet Union tonight boosted the official value of the ruble in terms of the dollar, and switched from the dollar to gold as its monetary yardstick.

The ruble was declared worth 25 cents, compared to the old rate of a little less than 19 cents. At the same time, sweeping price reductions to the Soviet consumer were ordered.

A statement from the Council of Ministers said that, effective tomorrow, the value of the ruble in foreign exchange will be calculated according to "the more stable gold standard." Since July, 1947, the ruble's value has been calculated in terms of the dollar.

This does not mean, however, that Russia is going on a true gold standard. There is no indication that the ruble will be freely convertible into gold internally.

"The currency reform of the U.S.S.R., carried out in December, 1947, eradicated the aftermath of the Second World War in currency circulation and restored the full value of the Soviet ruble," the statement said.

"The abolition of the rationing system carried out simultaneously with the currency reform, and the substantial reduction in prices of consumer goods carried out three times in the course of 1947-1950, resulted in a still greater strengthening of the ruble, raising its purchasing power and raising its rate of exchange in relation to foreign currencies."

By the "currency reform" of Dec. 14, 1947 Russia called in all her old rubles and exchanged them at the rate of 10 rubles for one new one in order to head off inflation. At the same time, rationing was ended and price reductions ordered.

A second price slash of 10 to 20 per cent on a large variety of goods was ordered April 9, 1948. A third price slash of 10 to 30 per cent on 45 major classifications of goods was ordered Feb. 28, 1949.

The new decree cuts prices from eight to 60 per cent on a large number of consumer goods.

Revaluation of the Russian ruble likely will have no effect on Russian-Canadian trade, a government financial expert said.

Normally, Russia carried on trade in the currency with the country from which she buys, the expert said. In the case of Canada, she would tender United States currency.

Appeals For Agreement On H-Bomb

YORK, England, Feb. 26 — (Reuters) — Dr. Cyril Garbett, Archbishop of York and second highest dignitary of the Church of England, today appealed for an immediate attempt "on the highest level" to reach agreement with Russia on the hydrogen bomb.

In the event of failure, he urged "a solemn covenant" of the peaceloving and democratic peoples to use all resources against any country using these bombs and a declaration "that neither singly nor collectively would they ever be the first to use the bomb."

Writing in his diocesan leaflet, Dr. Garbett said that if the United States found itself unable to take the initiative in opening new negotiations with Russia, Britain should do so as she would be the first victim of an atom war and her interest in reaching agreement was "even greater than that of the United States."

"Agreement or destruction is the choice before us," the Archbishop said.

"It is now uncertain if the human race will be granted many more years for amendment. The making and use of the atomic bomb suddenly brought home to mankind that it now possessed the means by which it could commit race suicide.

"The hydrogen bomb, if it is ever made, will be far more destructive than the bombs which destroyed two Japanese cities."

"But these are weapons utterly devilish: Even to contemplate their use proves to what depths of degradation human nature can sink.

"We are deceiving ourselves if we imagine that their appalling destructiveness will prevent their use. Hate will lead a nation to any lengths in its passionate desire to wipe out its enemy," Dr. Garbett wrote.

"But perhaps even more dangerous than hate is the motive of fear: For a nation, dreading that a hostile state might first employ it, might use the bomb in the hope that it would thereby avert its own destruction.

"If, therefore, these bombs are made, hate and fear will almost certainly lead to their use, and within a few hours the civilization which we know would be shattered into ruins."

"Another attempt should be made on the highest level to reach an agreement with Russia. It is of secondary importance whether this attempt is made direct through the heads of states or through the United Nations.

"So far Russia has vetoed all attempts at agreement. This should not, however, be sufficient reason to refuse to reopen negotiations. It is worth risking a rebuff when the fate of the human race is at stake. This is a plain Christian duty."

Personal Messages of Inspiration and Faith

YOUR WAY TO HAPPINESS

By H. C. Mattern

A personal formula that has worked miracles in the lives of discouraged, beaten individuals is offered here by H. C. Mattern. He and his wife, Mary, make a great team. While traveling extensively for business reasons, they both work hard at their avocation—to help people solve their problems and find happiness with God's help.

Sometime in everyone's experience the circumstances of life seem to gang up on "em... one's whole structure just caves in. Life really kicks me solidly in the back in 1930. So much so that I decided that suicide was the only answer.

With my business gone, family ties broken, and eight cents in my pocket, I remember staggering blindly into an open field. The next few moments remain a blurred memory. I was lying on the ground, in agony, when somehow the images of moon and stars penetrated my consciousness.

What then occurred was a deep spiritual experience. I looked into the sky, and every fiber in me went out "with a fervid prayer: 'God, if you will help me now, ever afterward I will try to help men live again who are down and out.'

I suddenly felt reborn. This spiritual experience on top of bitter despair and disillusionment seemed to cleanse my soul. Grateful, I set out to fulfill my promise.

Faith Greatest Asset

No goal is more intangible than one where you simply try to help other people. After getting my own life on a firm footing, I directed my chief efforts toward the down-and-outers; those people who are willing to help themselves, but who need someone to assist them in charting their course.

My greatest asset during these years of building a new life was my continuing faith in God, together with the faith that anyone who will believe in himself can accomplish any goal. Here is an incident, one of many I have experienced, which reveals how such faith in self and God can perform miracles.

One day back in 1946 I was sitting in an office waiting room, thumbing through, for about the thousandth time, the book, "Your Key to Happiness." Soon I noticed that the secretary at the desk was gazing intently at the book.

"Are you interested in this book?" I finally asked her with a friendly smile.

She nodded. "Yes, in the title."

"I'll be glad to get you a copy," I replied.

She murmured something about it being too much trouble. Then, an interruption occurred, and I am sure she forgot the whole conversation.

But I didn't forget it. That night I marked out several sections, and mailed the book to this secretary.

Saw Her Again

Some months later I visited this same office again. The secretary, whom I'll call Joan Prescott, recognized me at once. "Please, Mr. Mattern," she said, "I must see you tonight. I must talk to you."

I invited her to have dinner with my wife and me, but she preferred instead to have us both come to her apartment. I noticed that she was under considerable tension.

When Mary and I arrived at Joan Prescott's apartment, we had hardly seated ourselves in her small living room before she was moving about restlessly, flourishing a copy of the book, "Your Key to Happiness."

"What you wrote here in the front of the book, do you really mean that by simply believing hard enough, the impossible can come true?" she asked with much agitation.

I nodded. What I had written in the front of the book was simply this: "You can have anything you really desire provided you believe in God. Write down on a paper a description of what it is that you want, then read over verses 20-27 of the 11th Chapter of Mark. Read them aloud twice a day for ten days. If you believe strong enough, the seemingly impossible will come true."

Her intent look disturbed me.

Marriage Dissolving

"I'm desperate," she admitted. "My marriage is cracking up... Nothing seems to help... My husband is overseas on occupation duty. We only had a few days of marriage before he left... I know he wants to break it off... 'If I try your system, and really pray,' she continued, 'do you think it will save my marriage—do you think I'd know in a month's time?'"

When I had given her positive assurance, she thrust a letter in my hand. "Read this," she directed me almost hysterically.

The letter from her husband announced, almost jocularly, that he had been detailed a special job in Germany that would take over a year. In a very un tactful way he mentioned that his secretary kept him from being too bored with his duties.

"If you will try my plan, and have faith in it, I believe that you and your husband will be reunited—within thirty days," I said, looking her squarely in the eyes.

Agrees to Try

With this she burst into tears, and my most capable wife then took over the situation. Before we left Joan had agreed to try my faith formula. That night Mary and I both prayed hard for her. As I lay in bed, I found myself saying over the words of verses 20-27 of the 11th Chapter of Mark.

"... I say unto you that whosoever... shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe that those things which he saith shall come to pass; he shall have whatsoever he saith.

Thirty days later—to the exact day—Mary and I had a long distance call from Joan Prescott. Her husband had just come home for his discharge—everything was patched up.

"I just can't believe it," she cried. It's a real miracle... just like you said it would happen."

Several months later Mary and I had dinner with the reunited couple. With shining eyes they told us the final amazing sequel. Joan's husband had arrived home the night of their wedding anniversary. The next morning they suddenly decided to attend church—the same church in which they had been married.

The minister that Sunday morning preached on the 11th Chapter of Mark. For his text he used verses 20-27.

TOMORROW — Do you wonder why your prayers are not answered?

Oliver Beranger suggests it may be because you are asking that your will be done, not God's will. Miss Beranger is an instructor at the University of Southern California.
