THE DAILY EXAMINER.

NOVEMBER 27, 1896.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

—Reports have been accumulating from various sources in the past few days which are calculated to create the impression that Russia herself is going to act against Turkey.

—Mail and Empire: A careful examination of the proposed school settlement shows that the most noticeable difference between the terms offered by the Conservative Administration and those submitted by Mr. Laurier is in the fact that in the former no portfolio was reserved for Mr. Sifton.

—Mail and Empire: The Toronto Globe says that Mr. Vanderbilt's subscription to the Republican campaign fund was $150,000. And now would the Globe casually mention the amount contributed to the liberal campaign by Mr. Cox, the banker senator, and Mr. Mulock, the present postmaster-general, both of whom are residents of the smart little village in which the Globe is printed.

—A Manitoba despatch reports that "an indignation meeting was held at Hargrave by the citizens on Saturday night over the settlement of the Manitoba school question, after which effigies of Mr. Laurier and Mr. Clifford Sifton were burned amidst hoots and groans, and cheers for the National school system. Men who for years supported the Liberal cause expressed their determination of never again casting a Grit vote."

NEWS NOTES.

La Paix announces that the text of a treaty signed in Paris by President Faure and the czar will be published shortly.

It is announced from Washington that there will be an extra session of congress called within 20 days after the inauguration of President-elect McKinley.

Eddie Connolly, of St. John, defeated Causer, the English boxer, in five rounds. The fight took place at Birmingham, Eng., on Wednesday evening.

A Melbourne despatch says the government statistican estimates the wheat yield of Victoria at 7,000,000 bushels, which is barely sufficient for local wants.

It is reported from Calais, France, that plans are being arranged to establish a line of steamships to run between New Orleans and Calais to carry grain cotton and general merchandise.

Italian immigration in South America is increasing. On Saturday and Sunday 3,000 person started for La Plata and 150 for the United States, while 3,000 will start for the Argentine Republic this week.

COMING TO CHARLOTTETOWN.—In conversation with a reporter of the Halifax Herald, Captain Douglas stated that he was appointed by order-in-council a commissioner to investigate charges of political partizanship preferred against government officials. He had power to subpœna witnesses and administer an oath. His jurisdiction extended from the Bay of Fundy to P. E. Island and his commission included the departments of marine and Fisheries, customs and public works and the post office department, and likely also the railway employes in P. E. Island. Captain Douglas said he would not hold public court. Officials against whom charges were preferred would be notified and given ample time to prepare their defence. Captain Douglas said there were now about fifty cases for investigation and there would probably be fifty more before his work was finished. From Halifax Captain Douglas goes next week to Baddeck. From Baddeck Captain Douglas will go to Cape Breton, P. E. Island and Nova Scotia.

THE TIBER-MAGGIE COLLISION.—According to an exchange, Richard Vincombe, who piloted the steamer Tiber out of St. John's, Nfld., on the occasion of the recent fatal collision with the schooner Maggie, states that when he was on board the Tiber the steamer went out slowly with the two harbor leading lights dead astern. He left her on that course, and about ten minutes after he left her he heard shouts which apprised him of what had occurred. If the two vessels had held on the same course they were holding when he saw the schooner's green light to starboard, they could not have collided, and the Tiber must have ported to reach the place where he saw the wreckage.

SACRED CONCERT.—The public of Montague and vicinity will, we have no doubt, be glad to know that the literary committee are providing for a Sacred Concert to be held in St. Andrew's Church on the 23rd of December next. As promoters of literary entertainments the committee have always had good reason to congratulate themselves upon the success of their concerts, and they are bound to usher in this Christmas season with an unusually good public treat. The best of talent is assured, and when the curtain rises at 8 o'clock on Wednesday evening the 23rd December we feel that well filled seats will greet a well filled programme.

AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over fifty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething with perfect success. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind 1 3 5 w.

WINDOW LIGHTING.—The finest effect we have yet observed in the way of shop window lighting may be seen in the progressive store of Beer Bros. It consists of cone silver plated reflectors attached to the ceiling, which throw a soft agreeable light upon the decorations in the windows. Beer Bros. keep well up with the march of improvement.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.—The Thanksgiving Birthday Party in the Upper Methodist Church was a distinct success in every respect. The attendance was large and the programme was well carried out. The receipts amounted to about $300.

THE MANITOBA QUESTION.

Archbishop Langevin's Latest Utterance.

His Grace Archbishop Langevin delivered the following from the cathedral in St. Boniface on Sunday last. It is his official pronunciamento on the school settlement. It was delivered in French as follows:

"To-day is the saddest, the gloomies day of my episcopal career. It is, therefore, with a broken heart that I appear before you.

"The negotiations which have taken place between the local authorities of Winnipeg and the Federal authorities, of Ottawa, have resulted in an understanding which is spoken of as a settlement of the school question.

"At the outset I protest against this word 'settlement,'

"A disputed question cannot be settled without the consent and agreement of both parties. We are, without doubt, the parties the most interested in the Manitoba school question. It is for us a most vital matter, a matter of conscience, a matter of life or death.

"The majority, which enjoys the schools established in 1890, are satisfied, and we do not wish to take from them anything of their rights and privileges; we ask simply to enjoy our legitimate rights, as they do theirs. But what has been the result?

"Instead of treating with us, negotiations have been carried on with those who have taken our rights, and when the time came to finish the matter, it was not to us that the so-called settlement was shown, but to our worst enemies, to know if it was agreeable to them.

"And, when the men, whose programme has been the abolition of Separate schools in Manitoba and afterwards in Ontario, have said, 'It is well, the settlement is satisfactory to us,' the news has gone out that the question is settled, and the text of the settlement is given to the newspapers.

"I would like to know whether the Catholic minority has authorized any man, or any set of men, to accept this pretended settlement."

"Allow me to tell you, my friends, that I have cherished the hope, that we would receive the full and complete justice, which was solemnly promised to us. We would have gladly accepted any fair arrangements; we would even have accepted any substantial concessions, although we might, at the same time, have retained the right to claim all our rights."

Here His Grace went into a review of the several clauses of the document. Continuing, he said:—

"Allow me to say to you at once, my friends, that the common and neutral schools have been condemned by the Church. No Catholic can approve of these schools unless he wishes to separate himself from the Church. The details of the pretended settlement betray the real meaning of its authors. There are minute, petty, odious provisions brought in under the pernicious pretext of respecting the liberty of the parents, but, at the bottom, they practically reduce to nothing the derisive homage seemingly rendered to religious instructions. And are we now to thank them for these miserable crumbs they have thrown derisively at us? They are truly cynical. That alone renders the 'Settlement' unacceptable. These are not concessions but odious restrictions.

"Formerly we had a complete right to teach in French. Today this is reduced to a moiety. We, whose rights are guaranteed by the constitution, are put on the same footing as those who came from Iceland or from the wilds of Russia; we are not better treated than the Chinese or the Japanese. More than that, they do not permit us to teach French, except as a means to learn English. Yes, we wish to know English. It is necessary from every point of view. But there is nothing new in that, for, only to speak of St. Boniface, our little Canadian girls of the Tache Academy learn English and speak it very correctly. We are anxious, then, to learn English, but we do not wish to sacrifice our rights. This pretended compromise does not guarantee to us our French books; we are to have mixed books, half French, half English, some Protestant, some athiestic, perhaps. What would permit us to suppose that they would not do it? Do we not know them, and are we not in their hands? They say that the French language is safeguarded, and a public man has dared to write the following words in a Montreal journal: 'Those who refuse to put in operation the amendments which the Greenway Cabinet has consented to make, would commit a criminal act.' Such words made my blood run cold. As a bishop and as a French-Canadian, I protest that they make game of our nationality. Are we—yes or no Catholic before all, and is our faith not the best safeguard of our national liberties.

"We ought to be Catholics first and Canadians after. Now our faith is outraged, our religious rights sacrificed, and while, in fact, French, we are not accorded anything but that which is given to any new comer. No, do not insult our misfortune! Let no one seek to play with conscience and the sacred sentiment of nationality. I protest against this abuse of sacred things! Our poverty is not a reason for insulting our misery, for it will never force us to accept a shameful compromise.

"We wish, in the first place, the control of our schools; secondly Catholic school districts everywhere; thirdly, our Catholic histories and reading books at the least; fourthly, our Catholic inspectors; fifthly, competent Catholic teachers instructed by us; sixthly, our taxes and exemption from taxes from other schools. The remedial bill gave us all that in principle. Opposition was made to it, because it did not give enough; but what has been given us in its place? Not one of our sacred rights, not a single one."

His Grace here alluded to the fact that fifty one schools are closed, giving an explanation of why they are closed. He said all would be open soon, and continued: "Up to the present I have made no strenuous efforts because I have expected, from time to time, an equitable settlement of this matter. Now this is over, and I take control of the schools. I am not a man of one party. I am free of all attachment. I am Archbishop in order to safeguard the interests of souls, and do not think I shall compromise a sacred cause for miserable party interests. God keep me from such misfortune. I have taken for my motto: 'Depositum custodi,' and I ought to suffer everything rather than abandon it. If I yielded, the spirit of Mgr. Provencher and that of Mgr. Tache would have the right to appear before me and say: 'Bishop, thou hast betrayed thy mandate; you have forfeited honor and duty.'

"But, no, with the help of God, I shall remain firm before the tempest.

The Archbishop expected the people to be faithful to their flag, adding: "Do not separate from the clergy. To-day, not one has a right to be neutral. It is necessary by your conduct, by your words, by your acts, to show that you are with your Archbishop and he who is not with us is against us. Allow me to hope my brethern, that it is not in vain, that you have so often assured me, of your final obedience, and that you know how to remember your promises.

"Moreover, life is too short to forget our most sacred duties. Let us put ourselves in the presence of eternity, and let us act yet now, as we would wish we had acted, when the hour of death arrives. I bless you all.

A Protestant's View

Dr. Shaw, principal of the Wesleyan Theological College in Montreal, and a member of the Protestant Committee of the Council of Public Instruction, was seen by a representative of the Star at his residence, with regard to the settlement of the Manitoba school question. In answer to a question as to what he thought of the settlement, Dr. Shaw said: "I think it comes very short of the redress given by the Privy Council in the Brophy case. I have not altered my opinion of the scope of that judgment, which guarantees to the Roman Catholic minority the continuance of rights they possessed after 1870. The Barrett case decided that no rights existed before 1870 which were violated by the school Act of 1890, but the Brophy case confirmed rights arising after 1870 and violated in 1890. The Conservatives last June were like a lawyer, bravely fighting in a good case, when suddenly his client throws up the sponge and leaves him in the lurch. The Roman Catholic chiefly are responsible if the judgment of Privy Council miscarries. But law is one thing and prudence is another. The wisest thing now is to make the best of the situation and let this horrid sectarian strife die.
