

ANNOUNCEMENTS

CITY & QUEEN'S

DIAL 3644 free delivery to your door and get the best values for your food dollar. Weatherby's Clover Farm Food Market.

AUCTION "45" Score Cards for sale at Guardian - Patriot Central Printing.

WE TREAT the sick well! Giggey's Pharmacy. Open 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m.

FOR MEN'S work clothing buy in Moore and MacLeod's basement.

OPENING CARD Party Dunstaffnage School Monday, Nov. 9th, at 8:30 p.m.

REGULAR dance Bonshaw Inn Tuesday night. Burns Orchestra We cater to weddings and club banquets.

BOOK FAIR at Queen Charlotte High School Library, Friday November 13. Books for children, teenagers, and adults.

RESERVE November 28th for hot chicken supper and bazaar, Victoria A.H.L.L.

HOT TURKEY, and plum pudding, Marshfield Hall, November 11th. Sponsored by W. I.

CORNWALL United Church scallop, and turkey, supper, November 11th, 4:30 p.m.

OPENING Card party Dunstaffnage school Monday, Nov. 9th, at 8:30 p.m.

CARD PARTY every Monday night Saint Plus the Tenth Parish Hall, Parkdale.

BUNBURY W.I. Xmas Bazaar and tea at Bunbury School. Sat. Nov. 14, 3:30-5:30.

CARD PARTY West Royalty Hall beginning Tuesday November 10th, at 8:15 p.m.

OYSTERS, open fresh daily, 60 cents half pint, Queen Street Meat Market.

THE SALVATION Army Home League will hold a Pummage sale at the Salvation Army Citadel (back Hall), Great George Street, on Tuesday, November 10th at 1:30 p.m. Please phone donations to 4355.

HOYT'S BEAUTY Salon, November special on permanent waves: $15.00 cold wave or machineless $10.00; $10.00 for $7.50; $7.50 for $5.00. 183 Queen Street, Phone 6311.

SHUR-GAIN Amateur Cavalcade in Uigg School Hall on November 17th, at 8 p.m.

RESERVE NOVEMBER 11 to 20. Evangelistic Services First Baptist Church, Charlottetown. Guest speaker, Rev. E.J. Bailey of Montreal.

PRINCE COUNTY

RESERVE November 21st for Hof Chicken Supper in Newton School.

RESERVE Saturday afternoon Dec. 5th, for Kensington Presbyterian Church Pantry Sale and Bazaar in Church Hall.

KING'S COUNTY

RESERVE Wednesday, November 11th for Turkey Supper in New Perth School. Auspices Women's Institute.

SHUR-GAIN Amateur Cavalcade will be held in Fortune Hall on Thursday, Nov. 12, at 8 p.m. Send entries to Mrs. Major Reid, Rollo Bay.

NEW PRESIDENT IS CONGRATULATED

Earle Atkinson (left) retiring president of the Alberton and West Prince Board of Trade is shown extending congratulations to his successor John Coughlan of O'Leary who was elected president at the annual meeting in Alberton last week. Secretary-Treasurer Cyril Leard was re-appointed to his sixth consecutive term of office.

Births, Deaths, Marriages

(When death notices are received too late to be included on this page, they appear for one edition on page two and are transferred to this department in the next edition.)

BIRTHS

MACLEOD — At P.E.I. Hospital on November 4th, to Mr. and Mrs. Roy MacLeod (nee Emma Nicholson), a daughter. Weight 4 lbs, 10 ozs. Lynn Anne.

WALSH — At the Charlottetown Hospital on October 29th, 1959 to Mr. and Mrs. John Walsh, Georgetown, a son Kenneth James. Weight 8 lbs 3 1/2 ozs.

HEGART — At the Charlottetown Hospital November 5th, to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hegart, a daughter, Deborah Elizabeth, 7 lbs. 13 1/2 ozs.

MELLISH — Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Mellish are happy to announce the birth of their daughter, Elizabeth Ann Louise on October 21st, at the Kings County Hospital. Weight 8 lbs, 3 ozs.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to extend sincere thanks to Dr. Kennedy, and Beer, My special nurse Mrs. Darrach, also nurses, and staff of Prince County Hospital for their kindness and wonderful care while a patient there. Also all relatives, friends, and neighbors whose visits, treats, messages, and other kindnesses were greatly appreciated. Mrs. Oliver Bernard, New London.

Mr. Edmund MacMillan and family wish to sincerely thank their friends and neighbours who assisted them in any way during their recent bereavement to those who sent flowers, cards and letters of sympathy, a special thanks to Dr. Stuart and nurses of P.E.I. Hospital and Miss Helen Wilson who so feelingly rendered the solo "Beautiful Garden of Prayer" accompanied by Mrs. Donnie Allan and to the Rev. G. A. Elliot, Rev. Dr. T. A. Wilson, Rev. Dr. A.S. Weir who conducted the funeral service.

IN MEMORIAM

FRIZZELL — In loving memory of daddy, Clarence A. Frizzell, who passed away November 9th, 1953. This day we do remember, A loving thought we give, To one no longer with us, But in our heart still lives. Always remembered by the family.

BURGOYNE — In memory of Gerald Burgoyne, who passed away November 9th, 1954. Ever remembered by his sons David and Russell.

MACDONALD — In fond and loving memory of my dear husband Douglas MacDonald, who passed peacefully away November 9, 1946, age 73. Calm and peaceful he is sleeping. Sweetest rest that follows pain. We who loved him sadly miss him.

But trust in God to meet again. Sadly missed by his wife and family.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS, OTTAWA

NOTICE OF FUTURE TENDER CALL

THIS IS NOT A TENDER CALL but only an advance notice that tenders MAY be called before the spring of 1960 for the following highway and bridge construction projects on the Cabot Trail in Cape Breton Highlands National Park.

- (a) Grading, Culverts and Base—Mile 29.5 to Mile 34
- (b) Paving—Mile 15 to Mile 34
- (c) Grand Anse Bridge — Approximately Mile 24.7.

Plans, profiles and detailed estimates are unlikely to be available before snowfall. Contractors interested in bidding for the projects are requested to inspect them at the earliest possible date so that when tenders are called the salient features of each project will be understood. Further information pertaining to the proposed work may be obtained from the following:

- (a) Chief Highways Division, Hunter Building, Ottawa, Ontario.
- (b) Supervising Engineer, Highways Division, Room 717, Ralston Bldg., Hollis Street, Halifax, N.S.

Contractors wishing to visit the site of the work should make prior arrangements through the Supervising Engineer.

Robert Fortier, Chief of Administrative Services and Secretary.

IN MEMORIAM

GREEN — In sad and loving memory of my dear mother Mrs. Jacob Green, who passed away November 8, 1955. As time goes on four years have passed Since death its gloomy shadows cast Within our home, where all was bright And took from it a shining light We often stand beside your grave With hearts still sad and sore And think we hear your loving voice Calling us once more The flowers we place upon your grave May wither and decay But the love for you who sleeps beneath Shall never fade away. Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by daughters: Ethel and Blanche.

MACCORMACK — In loving memory of our dear dad, Joseph J. MacCormack, who died November 8th 1954. Someone remembers someone cares Your name is whispered in our prayers I smile a tear, a thought sincere How often we wish you were here God chose to take you from us No one can take your place Today brings back sad memories That time does not erase Lovingly remembered by wife and family.

MISS HUGUETTE-MARIE CHARETTE set up her own practice in spite of them and now is about to reach a milestone in her career as she defends in her first murder case.

She was selected last week by Court of Queen's Bench to defend Ronald Kyle Alexander, charged in the May 15 death during a robbery of bank manager Alexander Heron in Timiskaming, Que.

Miss Charette, 28, fluent in French and English, makes distinct history in becoming the first woman lawyer to defend a man charged with murder.

She was born at nearby Pointe-Gatineau, Que., and graduated in 1956 from the University of Ottawa law school. Admitted to the bar in 1957, she spent a year with a large firm in neighboring Ottawa.

MALE COMPETITION — She said in an interview she could see there was no future for her there. "Usually companies want male lawyers."

She found that "the case was the same in the civil service" when she sought employment there. "They don't like to hire women."

The alternatives were to go into other work—as did the only other woman in her law class who now is a secretary—or open her own practice.

She chose the latter, although admitting it was unusual for such a young lawyer, and particularly a woman, to go into practice alone. She opened an office in Hull a year ago.

"I'm surprised," she said, "I'm doing very well." She was chosen to defend Alexander as "a major step."

STARTS THURSDAY — The trial opens Thursday, following the trial of Ernest Cote, 23, of Timiskaming, who is also charged in the bank manager's shooting. Alexander, also of Timiskaming, is 20 years old and unmarried.

The manager died of two bullet wounds in the head after he spooled the robbery attempt by grappling with an armed man.

Asked why she chose criminal law as her specialty, she said it is more humane.

"I'd sooner deal with human character." In civil law the main consideration is money.

The attractive lawyer says she has no immediate plans for marriage. She wants to develop her law career.

POPULAR PRODUCT — A total of 1,550,000 air conditioning units were sold in the United States in 1958, compared with 11,000 in 1940.

SAID RIDICULOUS — Frank Chafe, CLC representative here, said "umping fishermen and loggers together in one organization is ridiculous."

He said the only reason affiliation could be advocated would be to provide "a captive group for political purposes."

The NBWW was formed to replace the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) during its strike against the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company.

Mr. Daley told the fishermen

Funeral Director

N. D. MacLEAN

FUNERAL DIRECTOR

15 King Square Charlottetown

Dial 5549

Successful Woman Lawyer Charges Sex Discrimination

By DON ATTFIELD Canadian Press Staff Writer HULL, Que. (CP)—A successful young woman lawyer says there is discrimination against women in her profession both among large law firms and governments.

Miss Huguette-Marie Charette set up her own practice in spite of them and now is about to reach a milestone in her career as she defends in her first murder case.

She was selected last week by Court of Queen's Bench to defend Ronald Kyle Alexander, charged in the May 15 death during a robbery of bank manager

Alexander Heron in Timiskaming, Que.

Miss Charette, 28, fluent in French and English, makes distinct history in becoming the first woman lawyer to defend a man charged with murder.

She was born at nearby Pointe-Gatineau, Que., and graduated in 1956 from the University of Ottawa law school. Admitted to the bar in 1957, she spent a year with a large firm in neighboring Ottawa.

MALE COMPETITION — She said in an interview she could see there was no future for her there. "Usually companies want male lawyers."

She found that "the case was the same in the civil service" when she sought employment there. "They don't like to hire women."

The alternatives were to go into other work—as did the only other woman in her law class who now is a secretary—or open her own practice.

She chose the latter, although admitting it was unusual for such a young lawyer, and particularly a woman, to go into practice alone. She opened an office in Hull a year ago.

"I'm surprised," she said, "I'm doing very well." She was chosen to defend Alexander as "a major step."

STARTS THURSDAY — The trial opens Thursday, following the trial of Ernest Cote, 23, of Timiskaming, who is also charged in the bank manager's shooting. Alexander, also of Timiskaming, is 20 years old and unmarried.

The manager died of two bullet wounds in the head after he spooled the robbery attempt by grappling with an armed man.

Asked why she chose criminal law as her specialty, she said it is more humane.

"I'd sooner deal with human character." In civil law the main consideration is money.

The attractive lawyer says she has no immediate plans for marriage. She wants to develop her law career.

POPULAR PRODUCT — A total of 1,550,000 air conditioning units were sold in the United States in 1958, compared with 11,000 in 1940.

SAID RIDICULOUS — Frank Chafe, CLC representative here, said "umping fishermen and loggers together in one organization is ridiculous."

He said the only reason affiliation could be advocated would be to provide "a captive group for political purposes."

The NBWW was formed to replace the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) during its strike against the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company.

Age Reminders Displease Nehru

By WATSON SIMS NEW DELHI (AP) — The prime minister of India leaned forward at a children's rally and was sorry to be old.

"My birthdays are chasing me and I cannot escape them it seems," said Jawaharlal Nehru, "although I would like to go away and spend the days un-mindful of it.

"If anyone reminds me of my age I do not like it. But how to avoid it? Everybody knows it."

Next Saturday, Nov. 14, Nehru's 70th birthday will catch up with the only prime minister 400,000-000 Indians have known in 12 years of independence.

The anniversary will find Nehru enjoying popularity among his people probably unparalleled anywhere in the world. Millions of Indians adore him not only as a political leader but as a saint. Some Hindus worship him as a reincarnation of Vishnu the protector.

At three score and 10 years, Nehru speaks with great prestige in the world's councils. Leaders of East and West respect him. The non-aligned peoples of Asia, totalling with India nearly a fourth of the world's population, generally follow him.

Yet there will also be shadows over the anniversary. More than at any time in years, the policies and institutions to which Nehru is devoted are under strain.

FRIENDSHIP SOURED — Friendship with Communist China was a foundation stone of India's foreign policy, laid by express direction of Nehru. This year the friendship soured. The prime minister's birthday finds Chinese troops holding sectors of Indian territory and claiming 40,000 square miles more.

The situation has given Nehru's critics an opportunity to say, "I told you so"—and they have said it over and over again. Newspapers in India are more hostile to the prime minister than in past years. He has quarrelled more with the press and his political opponents.

Some critics claim that non-alignment, with which Nehru identified himself, has become impractical. They say India must reconsider her military policies now that Tibet has vanished as a buffer region and Chinese troops are on Indian soil.

Even the nature of non-alignment has become controversial. For example, Nehru had long made clear that if trouble should arise between India and Communist China, he would not expect the little states which lie on India's side of the Himalayas to be non-aligned.

"Much as we appreciate the independence of Nepal," Nehru said eight years ago, "we cannot allow anything to go wrong in Nepal or permit that barrier (the Himalayas) to be crossed or weakened because that would be a threat to our own security."

When this year the Himalayan wall was breached in India itself, Nepal made clear it wanted to part of the quarrel. Even the Tibetan border state of Bhutan, though in some respects a protectorate of India, seemed to want non-alignment.

ADVERSITIES FACED — In the face of adversities Nehru said India would defend her soil if necessary. But he pledged to continue a policy of non-alignment and co-existence because the principles involved did not depend upon treaties with China.

"They stand by themselves as principles which we hold to be correct," he said. "We shall hold on to them even if all the world says 'no' to them. When people are wise enough they will come back to these principles."

More than ever during 1959, political observers have professed to see cracks in the National Congress, a juggernaut of the public opinion and endeavor that won independence from Britain and remained to overshadow Indian politics.

Mohandas Gandhi was among many Indians who felt the Congress should disband when independence was achieved. Such observers felt the Congress, being spread from left to right over the

weakened because that would be a threat to our own security."

When this year the Himalayan wall was breached in India itself, Nepal made clear it wanted to part of the quarrel. Even the Tibetan border state of Bhutan, though in some respects a protectorate of India, seemed to want non-alignment.

ADVERSITIES FACED — In the face of adversities Nehru said India would defend her soil if necessary. But he pledged to continue a policy of non-alignment and co-existence because the principles involved did not depend upon treaties with China.

"They stand by themselves as principles which we hold to be correct," he said. "We shall hold on to them even if all the world says 'no' to them. When people are wise enough they will come back to these principles."

More than ever during 1959, political observers have professed to see cracks in the National Congress, a juggernaut of the public opinion and endeavor that won independence from Britain and remained to overshadow Indian politics.

Age Reminders Displease Nehru

By WATSON SIMS NEW DELHI (AP) — The prime minister of India leaned forward at a children's rally and was sorry to be old.

"My birthdays are chasing me and I cannot escape them it seems," said Jawaharlal Nehru, "although I would like to go away and spend the days un-mindful of it.

"If anyone reminds me of my age I do not like it. But how to avoid it? Everybody knows it."

Next Saturday, Nov. 14, Nehru's 70th birthday will catch up with the only prime minister 400,000-000 Indians have known in 12 years of independence.

The anniversary will find Nehru enjoying popularity among his people probably unparalleled anywhere in the world. Millions of Indians adore him not only as a political leader but as a saint. Some Hindus worship him as a reincarnation of Vishnu the protector.

At three score and 10 years, Nehru speaks with great prestige in the world's councils. Leaders of East and West respect him. The non-aligned peoples of Asia, totalling with India nearly a fourth of the world's population, generally follow him.

Yet there will also be shadows over the anniversary. More than at any time in years, the policies and institutions to which Nehru is devoted are under strain.

FRIENDSHIP SOURED — Friendship with Communist China was a foundation stone of India's foreign policy, laid by express direction of Nehru. This year the friendship soured. The prime minister's birthday finds Chinese troops holding sectors of Indian territory and claiming 40,000 square miles more.

The situation has given Nehru's critics an opportunity to say, "I told you so"—and they have said it over and over again. Newspapers in India are more hostile to the prime minister than in past years. He has quarrelled more with the press and his political opponents.

Some critics claim that non-alignment, with which Nehru identified himself, has become impractical. They say India must reconsider her military policies now that Tibet has vanished as a buffer region and Chinese troops are on Indian soil.

Even the nature of non-alignment has become controversial. For example, Nehru had long made clear that if trouble should arise between India and Communist China, he would not expect the little states which lie on India's side of the Himalayas to be non-aligned.

"Much as we appreciate the independence of Nepal," Nehru said eight years ago, "we cannot allow anything to go wrong in Nepal or permit that barrier (the Himalayas) to be crossed or weakened because that would be a threat to our own security."

When this year the Himalayan wall was breached in India itself, Nepal made clear it wanted to part of the quarrel. Even the Tibetan border state of Bhutan, though in some respects a protectorate of India, seemed to want non-alignment.

ADVERSITIES FACED — In the face of adversities Nehru said India would defend her soil if necessary. But he pledged to continue a policy of non-alignment and co-existence because the principles involved did not depend upon treaties with China.

"They stand by themselves as principles which we hold to be correct," he said. "We shall hold on to them even if all the world says 'no' to them. When people are wise enough they will come back to these principles."

More than ever during 1959, political observers have professed to see cracks in the National Congress, a juggernaut of the public opinion and endeavor that won independence from Britain and remained to overshadow Indian politics.

Mohandas Gandhi was among many Indians who felt the Congress should disband when independence was achieved. Such observers felt the Congress, being spread from left to right over the

weakened because that would be a threat to our own security."

When this year the Himalayan wall was breached in India itself, Nepal made clear it wanted to part of the quarrel. Even the Tibetan border state of Bhutan, though in some respects a protectorate of India, seemed to want non-alignment.

ADVERSITIES FACED — In the face of adversities Nehru said India would defend her soil if necessary. But he pledged to continue a policy of non-alignment and co-existence because the principles involved did not depend upon treaties with China.

"They stand by themselves as principles which we hold to be correct," he said. "We shall hold on to them even if all the world says 'no' to them. When people are wise enough they will come back to these principles."

More than ever during 1959, political observers have professed to see cracks in the National Congress, a juggernaut of the public opinion and endeavor that won independence from Britain and remained to overshadow Indian politics.

Age Reminders Displease Nehru

By WATSON SIMS NEW DELHI (AP) — The prime minister of India leaned forward at a children's rally and was sorry to be old.

"My birthdays are chasing me and I cannot escape them it seems," said Jawaharlal Nehru, "although I would like to go away and spend the days un-mindful of it.

"If anyone reminds me of my age I do not like it. But how to avoid it? Everybody knows it."

Next Saturday, Nov. 14, Nehru's 70th birthday will catch up with the only prime minister 400,000-000 Indians have known in 12 years of independence.

The anniversary will find Nehru enjoying popularity among his people probably unparalleled anywhere in the world. Millions of Indians adore him not only as a political leader but as a saint. Some Hindus worship him as a reincarnation of Vishnu the protector.

At three score and 10 years, Nehru speaks with great prestige in the world's councils. Leaders of East and West respect him. The non-aligned peoples of Asia, totalling with India nearly a fourth of the world's population, generally follow him.

Yet there will also be shadows over the anniversary. More than at any time in years, the policies and institutions to which Nehru is devoted are under strain.

FRIENDSHIP SOURED — Friendship with Communist China was a foundation stone of India's foreign policy, laid by express direction of Nehru. This year the friendship soured. The prime minister's birthday finds Chinese troops holding sectors of Indian territory and claiming 40,000 square miles more.

The situation has given Nehru's critics an opportunity to say, "I told you so"—and they have said it over and over again. Newspapers in India are more hostile to the prime minister than in past years. He has quarrelled more with the press and his political opponents.

Some critics claim that non-alignment, with which Nehru identified himself, has become impractical. They say India must reconsider her military policies now that Tibet has vanished as a buffer region and Chinese troops are on Indian soil.

Even the nature of non-alignment has become controversial. For example, Nehru had long made clear that if trouble should arise between India and Communist China, he would not expect the little states which lie on India's side of the Himalayas to be non-aligned.

"Much as we appreciate the independence of Nepal," Nehru said eight years ago, "we cannot allow anything to go wrong in Nepal or permit that barrier (the Himalayas) to be crossed or weakened because that would be a threat to our own security."

When this year the Himalayan wall was breached in India itself, Nepal made clear it wanted to part of the quarrel. Even the Tibetan border state of Bhutan, though in some respects a protectorate of India, seemed to want non-alignment.

ADVERSITIES FACED — In the face of adversities Nehru said India would defend her soil if necessary. But he pledged to continue a policy of non-alignment and co-existence because the principles involved did not depend upon treaties with China.

"They stand by themselves as principles which we hold to be correct," he said. "We shall hold on to them even if all the world says 'no' to them. When people are wise enough they will come back to these principles."

More than ever during 1959, political observers have professed to see cracks in the National Congress, a juggernaut of the public opinion and endeavor that won independence from Britain and remained to overshadow Indian politics.

Mohandas Gandhi was among many Indians who felt the Congress should disband when independence was achieved. Such observers felt the Congress, being spread from left to right over the

weakened because that would be a threat to our own security."

When this year the Himalayan wall was breached in India itself, Nepal made clear it wanted to part of the quarrel. Even the Tibetan border state of Bhutan, though in some respects a protectorate of India, seemed to want non-alignment.