

EXPENSIVE CANVAS

Geoffrey Agnew, left, of Agnew and Sons, London art dealers, points to canvas which his firm purchased in London for 36,000 guineas ($109,840). The once almost valueless painting, showing Christ healing the blind, is believed to be an El Greco. It fetches but 17 guineas ($90) when it was sold in 1888. Spokesman for Christies, London's famed auction room, said it has been concluded that the picture is an El Greco. Thomas Agnew, the purchaser, said the picture was painted in Venice in 1775, the time spanish master El Greco worked there. (AP WIREPHOTO)
