MURDER COULD NOT KILL

It, but—I hope you believe me when I say I am sorry to refer to your bereavement now."

At Barbara's mention of this letter, West, Robin and Laurette exchanged swift, understanding glances. It was left to West to speak. "I see," he repeated.

"It's all dovetailing together, slowly but surely. I even recall now where I saw Sheen's name. That was possibly me? In his feeling of conspiracy he could not refrain from mentioning . . ."

"Yes, it was when we were going into Lessing's antecedents. We traced him back to that fire in Hamburg ten years ago. Among the rescued was Peter Lessing. We'll never know for sure what happened, but it seems clear enough; Sheen must have seen his chance; got the real Lessing's papers and assumed his identity. It was an unequalled opportunity to wipe a dirty slate clean and make a fresh jump-off on new ground. No doubt many of the bodies of the victims would be unrecognizable in any case. Yes, Sheen seems to have struck it lucky from that day on. The real Lessing must have been one of those solitary souls, friendless, without relatives. As a matter of fact, when we did try to trace his history before that fire, we could discover nothing about him at all—not even where he hailed from."

"There was a sympathetic look on West's face as once more he turned to Hester.

"In my private capacity, Miss Rogan, I can't say I blame you so much. If ever a man deserved the death of a dog, he did. But it isn't for me to say that. I am a police officer, you know, and . . ."

"That's all right; that's all right. Please don't worry about me.

There's no call to do that, for I haven't long left for worrying." She sensed his look of suspicion and smiled up at him, sadly shaking her head.

ITALIAN PRISONERS

VENICE, Italy, May 18.—(Reuters)—An Italian general, repatriated from a Russian prisoner-of-war camp, said that only "about 30" Italian soldiers still remain in Soviet hands, not several thousand as claimed by the Italian Government.

MacKinnon-Griffin Wedding

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Bonaventures Church, Tracadie, on Wednesday, April 19th, at 8 A. M. when Reia Pauline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Griffin, Scotchfort, was united in marriage to Vernon Ambrose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aeneas MacKinnon of Piquid.

Mass was celebrated by Rev. Kenneth McPherson. The bride looked charming in pale blue and navy with grey accessories, and wore a corsage of pink roses. The groom's sister, Mrs. Clarence Coffin, Jr., acted as bridesmaid, she chose pale blue and wine with grey accessories, and wore a corsage of Red Roses.

The groom was supported by his brother Mr. John MacKinnon. Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at Sandy's Restaurant, Marshfield to immediate friends and relatives, also Rev. Kenneth McPherson and Rev. Kenneth McKillan.

The happy couple left afterwards on a wedding trip, upon their return on Friday night, a reception was held in the Legion Hall, Mt. Stewart, where they received many lovely and valuable gifts. Mr. and Mrs. MacKinnon will make their home in Piquid West.

PENSION CO-OPERATION

Administration of the old age pensions set in Canada is carried out by the provinces with the federal government paying 75 per cent of the cost.

OSLO—(CP)—Plans have been completed here for a new central railroad station to replace the present two-main-line depots. The new station, construction of which will be spread over 11 years, will be built on the present site of east station.
