Plane Lettering Was Replaced For Photograph

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department said Wednesday the "Royal Canadian Air Force" lettering was removed briefly from an Expediter aircraft and replaced by "Canadian Armed Forces" for purposes of photographing the result. "The new lettering was washed off and the 'RCAF' restored as soon as the pictures were taken," a spokesman said. "The plane didn't even leave the hangar." It was based at Rivers, Man. Tuesday, in the Commons, Robert McCleave (PC - Halifax) questioned Defence Minister Hellyer about the incident. The minister said he did not know why it was done but would find out. "I presume someone on the staff was doing a little praiseworthy planning," Mr. Hellyer added.

Small Layoffs Noted In U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—A small wave of worker layoffs was noted this week in the U.S. automobile, appliance and construction industries. Companies experiencing slumps in some sales have cut 1967 production. An Associated Press survey found layoffs in the auto industry reflected expectations of slower car sales in the first half of 1967. Lagging sales of large appliances also will cause a layoff of 5,600 General Electric employees. For five days, starting Dec. 15, "to bring factory inventories into line with factory sales." The year-long slump in the construction industry, coupled with cuts on federal highway programs also caused production cuts in the construction machinery industry. General Motors two weeks ago announced an 83-per-cent 1967 production cut, and then followed it up last Monday by announcing layoffs of 4,000 workers around the U.S. GM said more layoffs were planned by Jan. 9 at six other plants. Chrysler Corp. became the second of the big - three auto makers to cut employment, announcing it will lay off 450 of 4,700 hourly and salaried workers in Detroit and another 230 at its Los Angeles plant Jan. 3.

ADB Reports Staff Shortage Delays Studies

OTTAWA (CP)—The Atlantic Development Board, with some 20 separate planning studies under way in the Maritimes, is experiencing a staff shortage that has meant a delay in getting some studies started. Albert Martin, board vice-president, reported the shortage in a statement summing up a board meeting that ended Tuesday. "He said members had received a comprehensive briefing on planning activities and reviewed the over-all co-ordinated plan for the economic growth of the Atlantic region. "Board members were generally satisfied with the progress thus far. However, he expressed concern that a shortage of staff had meant a delay in getting some studies started, he said. John Deutsch, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, told the board that combined council and board efforts could pin-point and publicize the basic causes of "persistent wide regional disparities" and work to close the gap in economic growth rates. "A key to closing this gap was increasing productivity in the region. The underlying causes had to be discovered first. "David Levin, director of the board's planning division, said some 20 studies were under way in preparing a development plan for board consideration. "A typical study was examination of east coast fishing. It would provide a projection of the industry to 1975 and identify the output, employment, income and capital investment necessary to achieve optimum utilization of the resource. Similar studies are under way in forestry, mining agriculture, tourism and recreation. Other studies concern manufacturing, water resources, urban centres, education and manpower-training requirements.
