MR. AND MRS. R. DANA ROBINSON

Charlottetown Girl Is Married In Waltham

Immanuel Methodist Church, Waltham, was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding on Saturday, October 12th, 1957 at 7 p.m. when Barbara Glines, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian L. Herring of Charlottetown, P.E.I., was united in marriage to Mr. Roy Dana Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Robinson of Waltham, Mass.

Bouquets of white feather carnations softly lighted by white tapers, decorated the altar, while tall baskets of pastel gladioli and mums formed the setting for the double-ring ceremony performed by Rev. Ernest R. Case.

Mr. Bradford Wright, church organist played the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Barbara Trembley, Bridgewater, who prefaced the ceremony with "O Promise Me" and "The Lord's Prayer" during the ceremony and "Through The Years" during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked radiant in an original model floor length gown of rose point Alencon lace and tulle over satin. The lace bodice, fashioned with Sabrina neckline and long sleeves tapering to points over the hands, topped a full bouffant skit of tiered tulle, with sequin and pearl studded lace panels, which also extended into a chapel train.

Her fingertip veil of imported silk illusion was held in place by a lace headdress scattered with sequins and seed pearls. She carried a cascade of Sweetheart Roses.

Mrs. Doris Flanagan was matron of honor for her sister. She wore a full skirted ballerina length gown of rose taffeta, with draped bodice and three quarter length sleeves. A small rose taffeta hat and veil completed her costume. She carried an arm bouquet of multicolored feather carnations and mums.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Vera Coleman, sister of the bridegroom and Mrs. June Burgess, cousin of the bride. Their identical gowns were Imperial blue taffeta and fashioned similar to that worn by the matron of honor. They carried arm bouquets of mums and carnations.

Miss Barbara Flanagan, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a floor length dress of rose faille weave taffeta. Her headdress was a bandeau of flowers and she carried a colonial nosegay of mixed autumn flowers.

Master Michael Flanagan, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. He carried the wedding rings on a white satin heart-shaped cushion edged with Chantilly lace ruffles and with satin streamers, knotted with lily-of-the-valley falling from each corner.

Mr. Alden Wambolt, West Newton, attended the groom and the ushers were Mr. Garth Herring, Charlottetown, brother of the bride, Mr. William Suplit, Waltham, Mr. Harold McKenna and Mr. Richard McKenna, West Newton.

Following the ceremony a reception for two hundred and twenty-five guests was held in the church vestry, where the bride's mother received the guests in a rose-beige satin sheath dress with matching sequin hat and accessories. Her corsage was cream colored rosebuds.

The mother of the bridegroom chose a Dior blue lace over taffeta costume for the wedding and wore a corsage of pink and white rosebuds.

The buffet luncheon was served from an attractively arranged table, centred with a bouquet of mixed autumn flowers, flanked by pink candles in silver candelabra.

Mrs. Austin L. Burgess, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Robert King, sisters of the groom presided over the tea services. The three-tier wedding cake, topped with wedding bell and miniature bride and groom was circled with pink tulle and white baby mums and was cut in the traditional manner by the bride and groom.

Miss Ruth Robinson, sister of the groom was in charge of the guest book.

For travelling, the bride wore a beige and brown two-piece knitted suit, beige velour hat, brown and beige accessories and muskrat jacket. Her corsage was a yellow orchid.

Following a wedding trip to the Laurentian Mountains and Prince Edward Island, Mr. and Mrs. Robinson will live at 9 Wadsworth Avenue, Waltham.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Pro And Con Of Fairs Is Interesting Conversation

"We know his secret now" Mack offered with a young chuckle this morning. "Uncle Rob is off to the fair!"

And so it was. His crop sheltered in barn and bin, his paths of choring pretty clearly marked for Jamie and Gage to follow the round of it in his absence, he joined another farmer bright and early this morning and was away to attend the Maritime Winter Fair. It is an excursion which, much interested in livestock as he has been since a small fellow, should prove to be of much enjoyment and value to him. The trip proposes, if all goes well, to include also atendance at "The Royal" in Toronto.

His respite from the farming was well earned. And if James owns to his moments of concern as to how those boys at home will get along with the work while he is away" the responsibility they assume will help them to realize something of the demand wide and varied, that farm-management entails — the farm-work being to our mind often the lesser part of the occupation. Jamie is naturally a dependable lad alert to the care and keeping of stock, and Gage in his apprenticeship will too perform honoralby such duties as fall to his hands.

"Do big fairs help farmers? Some, a westesn survey shows. But too few farmers reap any benefits" an interesting article on the subject in a recent issue of farm-paper runs.

"When a farmer goes to the fair does he go for the agricultural shows, or for the other attractions?" was one of the questions the survey answeret. It found "Mostly he went for the other attractions. Though he used the farm-show as a salve to his conscience for taking the day off. Of course, some farmers went to the farm end and stayed there. Mostly these were purebred breeders and farmers without small children who had to be taken to the (midway) rides."

It is only natural as we have noted at fairs, that "where the heart is" there folks will be found. There are of course farmers and farmers. But those who love the land and its ways, who find a pride and satisfaction in the occupation, will be taken up with the agricultural side of it. They may as a secondary interest stroll down the midway or attend some of the races if they like — and know "the ponies," but invariably they will be found in the stables admiring and "sizing up" the animals about, or near the ring where the livestock judging is in progress. Much interested in the placings, their one regret as we have heard it voiced, that they could not be several places at once to take in the judging of some other kind or "breed begin run elsewhere at the same time.

"Now about the rest of your plowing" we overheard James broach the subject to Jamie this afternoon.

"We'll see about that after the turnips are done" Jamie replied with a half chuckle. "Don't you know by this . . . haven't you learned yet that you can't cross a bridge until you come to it?" he queried lightly.

"Yes," James smiled back, "but I like to have my plans made. It pays to, I've found."

We'll plan — and quick! When we get in those turnips." Jamie promised. And the day goes now on steps as hushed and magic as those on which it came to us at dawn.

Until tomorrow — — — Diary — Goodnight. . . . .
