

Memorial Service In Old Pioneer Cemetery

The annual memorial and decorative ceremony was held recently at St. Catherine's Cemetery, and with a large crowd present from over a wide countryside, a very impressive service was conducted. This old cemetery which enshrines the ashes of the first pioneers and their descendants was started in 1810 more or less as a private burying place for the Shaws of this region, but was shortly after made an inter-denominational cemetery for the settlers of an extended area.

Situated near the banks of the river, for the main artery of contact was by river routes, in the season of the funeral processions because of lack of roads, on trails through the dense forests being available, were by boat while in winter funeral processions followed the river ice. Many of the names shown on the older tombstones are now foreign to the present generation. Some of the dead came from as far away as Wood Islands and other distant places, but the descendants of the departed are scattered far and wide throughout Canada and the United States and are legion. Many of the original burials are unmarked and the records have been a long time lost.

This historic place however holds the ashes of most of the pioneers of this locality, the men and women who braved a stormy ocean, erected their first crude shelters along the banks of this beautiful stream in the shelter of the beloved hills that reminded them so much of their Highland country, and sacrificed through their prodigious labors to establish religious, social and economic independence in this new land. It is to the credit of not only the descendants of the pioneers who rest here, but also to all our citizens who reside in this district and recognize the great gifts that our ancestors passed on to all, that this old cemetery has been made gradually an attractive beauty spot and that an annual solemn memorial service is carried on in memory of the honored dead.

This year's event was under the direction of Rev. Donald Nicholson, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, who delivered an impressive and inspiring address, to a large concourse of people. Suitable hymns for the occasion were sung by members of various congregations from adjacent districts. Mr. W. R. Shaw very effectively rendered "Now the Laborer's Task is O'er," while pipers Bruce MacLaren and Harold Sutherland gave very fine renditions of two Scottish Laments. The mournful sound of the pipes so dearly loved by the pioneers, seemed to be a fitting and dramatic episode in the memorial service. The graves were beautifully decorated in many instances by loving hands.

Mr. Shaw gave a brief outline of the work conducted to date. He stated that generous contributions have been made from time to time to the cemetery fund, but at the same time the objective of from $2500 to $3,000 which would make this historic old burial place self-supporting for the future has not yet been achieved. A substantial amount has been received however and in addition to the necessary expenditures of improvement and annual upkeep, a substantial investment has been recorded.

During the past year a new road has been made with a bulldozer around the cemetery, a facility that has been much needed up to this time. A new house to hold necessary mowers and cemetery implements is now under way and when this has been constructed the cemetery requirements will be complete, with the exception of additional trees and shrubs for decorative purposes. A very fine collection was taken at the service and it is expected that other donations will be coming in from parties at distant points and from others who for various reasons were not able to attend. Thanks are due all who have so generously supported this fine and worthy effort in honor of the pioneers.

We and Our
I saw a better performance by amateurs in P.E.I., a place you probably don't know."

I wish I had space to mention others who appear on the old group picture, but one, Mr. Arthur Gaudin, looked especially handsome and gallant, a policeman!

During Exhibition week, a few years before this, Mr. Austin Trainor directed and took the leading part in H.M.S. Pinafore at the Opera House. He showed me a clipping from The Guardian quoting some "Toronto Visitors" who said the performance was the best amateur show they had ever seen.

Mrs. Ruby Houle with whom I had a nice telephone conversation was in the play with him. They are both still active in dramatics. Mr. Trainor who resembles Churchill, sometimes gives impersonations of the great man among his other dramatic contributions. Elmer Ritchie was in the play, and E.D. B. Peake was the make-up man — one of the finest. That exhibition week, the old Opera House was a rival attraction to the races!

The Benevolent Irish Society and other such organizations still flourishing gave plays at an earlier period. And in his light-hearted booklet, "An Island Scrap-book," Mr. Benjamin Bremner states that he himself acted in a performance of H.M.S. Pinafore in 1885. He mentions an amateur theatre called "a resort of amusement" that existed in 1828.

There was certainly a theatre-loving audience on P.E.I. Robert Menell and Dan Ryan (the latter I don't know) noted Shakespearean actors came here. And such companies as the Boston Opera Co. the Carroll Players, the Mae Edwards Company and the Margie Adams Co. The latter were so generous in their services before Old Homes, Mental Institutions etc., that the then Mayor of the city of Charlottetown, Mayor Harold Jenkins, presented them with the key to the city before a large and happy audience. Old timers still speak of it! Those were the Good Old Days!

GREENDAL'S

2 STORES 144 and 150 GREAT GEORGE CHARLOTTETOWN P. E. I.

Lobsters are everybody's business!

You might think the lobster catch is just the lobsterman's business. But it's your business too. Here is why. If the lobsterman has a good catch, the whole community feels his success... the grocery store, the dress shop, the appliance store, the doctor, the dentist, the insurance agent and many others, all benefit. A poor catch means poor business—hard times.

So good catches (and good business for you) next year, and in future years, depend on conservation now.

These 2 important conservation steps should be taken to protect your future—shorts should be put back. "berried" lobsters should be put back. The shorts will increase 50% in weight in a year, and bring a better price. The "berried" lobsters will have the chance to hatch their eggs and increase the lobster population. And lobsters don't migrate. They stay put. The lobsterman will find them next year right about where he left them—only bigger, heavier, more profitable.

The man who keeps just "the keepers" is thinking smart, thinking ahead. He's the man who expects to make a decent living for his family for a long, long time. Remember his living is yours, too.
