

Coldwell Makes Plea For National Health Plan In Speech At Wellington

"I want to see it possible for every man, woman and child, in his country to have the very best of hospital and medical care without individual payment," M. Coldwell, M.P., CCF national leader, told a full hall at Wellington, last evening in an address to the first of three public meetings he will attend during a visit to this Province.

He said he wanted to see this piece of social legislation implemented during the life of the present parliament.

Referring to this proposed comprehensive health plan he said "I have not used the term 'free' because there is nothing ever free, and if we are going to have a plan of this description we are going to have to pay for it. We are going to pay for it, by our ability to pay. Those who can afford to contribute most will be assessed most, and those who have least will pay least, but all will receive the benefits of the finest we can give them in hospitalization, medical and health services."

"I am happy that we of the CCF have promoted these plans across the country," Mr. Coldwell said, "until today governments have to consider them. Public opinion has been aroused and the demand is being made. The CCF province of Saskatchewan has taken the lead and is providing the only such program on the continent." He said that Canada and U. S. are the only two democratic countries left in the Western World without a national health plan.

Eisenhower Causes Laughter

DENVER (AP)—President Eisenhower touched off gales of side-splitting laughter in his hospital room Sunday by snapping a bright bow tie into place on his gold-colored pajamas.

Vice-President Nixon told newspaper men about the hilarious incident, and added:

"Mrs. Eisenhower said that when she went into the room and saw the bow tie she practically rolled on the floor."

Nixon sized up the president's joke as a good indication of how he is recovering satisfactorily from his heart attack.

The vice-president described the tie as "dark green with little red figurines with white dots in the middle."

SUSPENSEFUL THRILL DRAMA AT CAPITOL—SUMMERSIDE.

One of the years most suspenseful thrill dramas, combined with a vibrant love story, is brought to the Capitol screen with the showing of "Bedevilled," starring Anne Baxter and Steve Forrest.

The new MGM offering is the first American motion picture to be filmed in Cinemascope in its entirety in the French capital, and Director Mitchell Leisen took full advantage of the Cinemascope cameras and the latest color processes to capture both the magnificent and picturesque pictorial qualities of Paris' boulevards and most famous buildings.

Not only do such well-known spots as the Eiffel Tower, Napoleon's Tomb, the Arc de Triomphe and Sacre Coeur serve as integral settings for the story's exciting action, but the drama also plays itself against Paris' side streets, elegant apartments and hotels, with its hair-raising climax a chase of fugitives and pursuers across the city's rooftops.

In the latter role, Steve Forrest fulfills the high hopes held for this promising young M-G-M actor as he rests his previous performance as Robert Taylor's brother in "Rogue Cop." Now filling his first stellar assignment, he wins a compelling sympathy as the young theological student caught up in a sinister adventure.

What's news at Inco?

HOW THE NEW FLASH SMELTING PROCESS OPERATES—First, Inco installed a $2,000,000 plant to separate oxygen from the air—325 tons of it a day! Oxygen, piped from this plant, plus finely ground copper concentrate and flux are blown into a specially designed furnace and the mixture is ignited. Heat from the burning sulphur and iron smelts the ore and the molten copper matte is drawn off. In this process, sulphur and oxygen combine to form sulphur dioxide (SO<sub>2</sub>). The sulphur dioxide is liquefied and sold for use in Canada's pulp and paper mills.

INCO RESEARCH HELPS STRENGTHEN CANADA'S ECONOMY

NEW FLASH SMELTING PROCESS SAVES 65,000 TONS OF COAL A YEAR

In the production of copper at Inco, smelting operations used to require approximately 65,000 tons of imported coal every year.

Now, Inco is smelting copper concentrates without coal. A patented flash smelting process, developed after years of Inco research and extensive pilot plant tests, produces copper matte more economically than ever before.

The principle of the new flash smelting process is based on the fact that sulphur and iron, when combined with sufficient oxygen, will burn with an intense heat.

Since the ores mined at Sudbury contain high percentages of both sulphur and iron, Inco devised this method of smelting the ore.

In the flash smelting process, Inco employs hydro-electric power to freeze oxygen from the air. Coal is no longer necessary and sulphur is recovered as liquid sulphur dioxide. Hence, Inco's production costs are lower. Like so many other developments of Inco research the new flash smelting process has helped strengthen Canada's economic position in the world today.
