

BEDTIME STORIES

The Merry Little Teasers

By Thornton W. Burgess

When everything is said and done... Most teasing is one-sided fun.

The Merry Little Teasers are the children of Old Mother West Wind. They dance this way and that way over the Green Meadows...

Now the Merry Little Teasers had been playing all day. Now, although it was dark, they were still playing about. They were up late of course they should have gone to bed when jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun hid behind the Purple Hills...

Now it just happened that Buster Bear Junior had wandered over to that part of the Green Forest where the maple trees grow and where Farmer Brown has his saw-ahouse for making maple syrup.

Young Buster Bear felt quite grown up. Young Buster Bear felt quite THE MERRY LITTLE TEASERS grown up. He wasn't. He was only a year old, but he was out in the Great World for himself and that made him feel quite grown up.

The water he drank little by little made his stomach swell. Presently he would be hungry. It was just as well that he wasn't hungry when he first awoke...

The Merry Little Teasers found Young Buster wandering about. They had come straight over from the little sugar house. They brought with them a small with which they tickled the young Bear's nose...

One reason he wasn't hungry was because his stomach, having nothing in it and having nothing to do had shrunk. It had shrunk so that at first it would hold nothing but a little water.
