

Subjects for Thought.

The mind is largely dependent for its strength and clearness of vision upon the purity of the life. It is true that a man should know what is right in order to do right; but it is true that he must be in the habit of doing right in order to make such knowledge of any practical value.

To live on your own convictions against the world is to overcome the world. To believe that what is truest in you is true for all; to abide by that and not be over anxious to be heard or understood or sympathized with, certain that at last all must acknowledge the same, and that while you stand firm the world will come round to you—that is independence.

When injury is inflicted on an individual, the offender is obvious, and cannot be ignored; but, when it is spread over a large number, it is comparatively obscure, and does not carry with it so strong a feeling of regret, or self-reproach, or indignation. The imagination fails to depict what is so far removed; consequently sympathy is dull and the conscience inactive.

Two persons who have chosen each other out of all the species, with design to be each other's mutual comfort and entertainment, have to that action bound themselves to be good-humored, affable, dispassionate, forgiving, patient and joyful with respect to each other's frailties and imperfections to the end of their lives.

While the male thinks of labors and battles without, the domestic woes and wrongs are the lot of women, and the wrongs are so bad, so infinitely fiercer and bitter than the great that I would not change condition, no not to be Helen, Queen Elizabeth, nor the happiest she in history.

Those who have been once intoxicated with power, and have derived any kind of emolument from it, even though but for one year, never can willingly abandon it. They may be distressed in their power, but they will never look to anything but power for relief.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain; and the little shrub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.

For a soap to clean clothes without rubbing: Take 2 pounds soda, 2 pounds yellow bar soap, and 10 quarts water. Cut the soap in thin slices, and boil together 2 hours; strain, and it will be fit for use. Put the clothes in to soak the night before you wash, and to every pailful of water in which you boil them, add a pound of soap. They will need no rubbing, but merely rinsing.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate. ONE OF THE BEST TONICS. Dr. A. Atkinson, Prof. Materia Medica and Pathology, in College of Surgeons and Physicians, Baltimore, Md., says: "It makes a pleasant drink, and is one of our best tonics in the shape of phosphates in soluble form."
