Active July 1st On Tap Here

A variety of activities, highlighted by ceremonies at Confederation Centre, are on tap for tomorrow as Islanders celebrate the Dominion Day holiday.

Ecumenical services at Confederation Centre, which will include the blessing of Canada's flag and the Centre itself, begin at 11 a.m.

Also included in the "Salute to Canada" program will be a parade through city streets and music by the Centre choir.

Main attraction Thursday evening will be a concert by the stars of television's "Singalong Jubilee" at 8 p.m. Included in the program are such entertainers as Patricia MacKinnon, Jim Bennett, Fred MacKenna and Bill Langstroth.

A ball had earlier been scheduled for later in the evening at the Centre, but was cancelled because of an unsuccessful ticket sale.

Summerside festivities will include a holiday dance at the Legion Home there tonight and races at the race track Thursday afternoon and evening.

Chief Justice Thane A. Campbell will be guest speaker to the chief justice dance, carrousel was not required as to whether facts could be proved to support Mr. Lamontagne's evidence.

Erik Nielsen, the Conservative MP whose questions in the House last November triggered the Dorion inquiry, said it was a matter of deep personal regret to him that Mr. Favreau had resigned.

But it was the only honorable course for the justice minister to tender his resignation. And Mr. Pearson had no other recourse but to accept it.

He said Mr. Pearson should share some of the responsibility for the resignation—he had let Mr. Favreau down seriously. Mr. Nielsen did not elaborate on this point.

Mr. Nielsen said Andre Leandre, the executive assistant to the immigration minister, had been dealt with harshly in the report and he would have supposed that one of the prime minister's announcements would have been that he was being relieved of his duties.

The prime minister had promised other announcements after the government had had a chance to look more closely at the report.

Mr. Nielsen said he imagined one of these would deal with Guy Rouleau, former parliamentary secretary to the prime minister, who was a main figure in the hearings.

The Conservative MP said he had been accused of McCarthyism and of sneering when he had brought his charges to the Commons. Now a Quebec Superior Court judge had proved him right.

tomorrow afternoon at the official opening of the Lucy Maud Montgomery birthplace in New London, which begins at 2:30 p.m.

IN KINGS CO.
Fishing, camping, golf, baseball, and stock car racing will be the attractions in southern Kings for the holiday. The stock car racing will take place at 1:30 p.m. at the Lower Montague race way. It is expected the largest crowd of the season will be on hand to see the over 25 cars perform. This program will also include lady drivers and the go-karts.

The rainbow trout season opens July 1 and many residents will be taking to the lake to try their luck for the big one and many will be heading for their favorite stream to try for speckled trout.

Campers can be seen arriving daily at the provincial park at Brudenell and the girl guides were under canvas since Saturday night at the golf course farm of Stafford Gordon. The guides in this group are from Morell, St. Peter's, Souris, Kingsboro and Montague. It is expected they will break camp on Saturday.

The high school closing dance will be held at the regional high school this evening.

Boys Credited With Rescuing Teenage Girl

MONTAGUE — Two teenage boys were credited with saving the life of Ann Griffin, Cardigan, a few days ago when she accidentally fell into the Cardigan River.

The girl, about 15 years of age, could not swim. Clarence McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. E.F. MacDonald, Montague, and Willie Connon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Connon, came to the rescue and were able to retrieve the girl from the river apparently none the worse for her experience.

Canadian Crews Are Confident

By RON HOWARD
HENLEY ON THAMES, England (CP) — Canadian crews took it easy Tuesday on the eve of the Henley Royal Regatta, but coaches predicted good runs against their opposition in the opening heats of the world's top amateur rowing event.

George Hungerford and Roger Jackson, Canada's Olympic gold medalists in the pairs event at Tokyo last year, stayed away from the one-mile, 550-yard Thames course, spending the day resting. They hope to return today with a fresh approach and "really hit it hard."

Pitted against a veteran Finnish crew in the first heat of the silver goblets, Hungerford, 21, and Jackson, 23, plan to take off at a high rate—possibly 38 or 39 strokes a minute—and wear down the older Finns; V. Lohela and T. Pitkanen, whom they beat at Tokyo.

"We want the Finns to run our race and struggle to keep up with us," Jackson, a six-foot, five-inch native of Toronto, explained. "They are both about 12 years older than us and we think we're in better condition."

In the Princess Elizabeth challenge cup for schoolboy eights, Canada has strong representatives in the St. Catharines collegiate crew, winner of the Canadian scholastic championship at St. Catharines, Ont., last month and the Shawinigan Lake school crew of British Columbia, runner-up to St. Catharines.

Lobster Carnival Plans Finalized

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN — All Lobster Carnival committee chairman reported all preparations for this year's celebration in excellent condition and carnival president Francis "Peg" MacNeill said "if we have any decent weather at all we should come out all right."

Mr. MacNeill added that the carnival committee had cut down on expenses from other years and with any luck and good weather should realize a profit around the $4,000 mark.

He pointed out, however, the entertainment, rather than cut back had been extended. "We have an extra vaudeville act this year," he said. "The size of the parade, however, has been slashed and it was noted that this year's parade will feature all Island talent."

"We may have a smaller parade," Mr. MacNeill said, "but financially we will be much better." A total of 27 floats along with a number of bands and five sets of majorettes and clowns are expected to make up this year's parade.

Committee chairman Don MacEachern reported that a total of 10 beauty queens are expected to participate in the Miss P.E.I. contest. Four entries have already been received, he said, and six service clubs in town are expected to have entries.

Everything is ready for the coronation ball and a six-piece orchestra has been lined up. The orchestra will also play for the dances at the Legion during Lobster Carnival week.

The chairman of the children's day committee said that the same contests will be held this year as in other years including the balloon blowing and bubble gum blowing contests and, best of all, the blueberry pie eating contest. Everything has been lined up also for the baby contest. The bicycle draw will be the same as in other years.

Arrangements have been completed for the mammoth bingo, as well as the livestock show and the pipe smoking contest, but Bob Molison, the chairman of the pipe-smoking contest, said that the representative of the tobacco company sponsoring the contest had indicated he would like a member of the fair sex participating this year.

Preparations are nearing completion for the carnival week feature the lobster suppers, and Charles Hogan announced the clubs and days on which they will cater during the week-long program. On Monday it will be the Kinettes Tuesday—Y's Menettes; Wednesday—CWL; Thursday—Linettes; Friday—Rotary Anns. The arrangements for Saturday are not finalized.

A larger profit than last year is expected in the canteen this year but Mr. MacNeill urged all clubs to have enough members working in the canteen on their respective days and also asked that each club assign two members to work on Saturday, the final day of the carnival.

A Maritime track and field meet is slated for Tuesday of carnival week and a suggestion was made that perhaps a small parade could be arranged for that day leading out to the sports complex where the meet will be held. It was felt that this might draw more spectators to see the athletes perform.

Psychologist Says Courts, Police Should Staff Trained Personnel

Juvenile courts and police forces should have personnel training in dealing with delinquent children, a Charlottetown psychologist told the Canadian Mental Association at the Legion home here yesterday.

Russell Ewing, chief psychologist for the mental health division of the department of health, said juvenile courts should be staffed with persons trained in dealing with such children, and "there should be someone on the police force of every community trained in handling children."

only the spiritual but also the psychological needs of their patients.

Their education, he said, should include training which would fit them to recognize these needs.

Mr. Ewing said it was the responsibility of schools to provide trained guidance personnel to deal with children in areas in which the ordinary classroom teacher is not qualified.

In addition, teachers should be trained in understanding the needs of children.

Dr. J.C. Stanley, superintendent of the Provincial Children's Hospital, said the role of such centers included providing leadership, treatment and consultation services to non-psychiatric agencies and groups.

An important function of a centre was the provision of family therapy, which would "not only help individuals in the family who are sick, but also prevent illness in those not affected."

ter shore party at North Rustico in the evening.

Yesterday morning's sessions included a panel on the roles of various professions in mental health. Panel chairman was Donald Sinclair, executive director of the Ontario division, CMHA.

Panelists were Dr. Malcolm Beck, assistant director of the mental health division, P.E.I. department of health; Travis Cushing, assistant superintendent, board of school trustees, Saint John, N.B.; Ida MacKay, assistant director of public health nursing in P.E.I.; Judge W.G. Phillips, judge of the juvenile court for Nova Scotia; Rev. Charles Taylor, professor of pastoral psychology, Acadia University; and Sister Mary Henry, executive director of the Catholic Social Welfare Bureau, Charlottetown.

The three-day convention winds up today with group discussions and remarks by Dr. J. D. Griffin, general director of the association, and Rev. Donald MacMahon, chairman of Lunenburg-Queens branch of CMHA and the South Shore Mental Health Centre, Nova Scotia.

Two Injured In Accident

MONTAGUE — Two Murray River women are patients in the Kings County Memorial Hospital following an accident involving a late model car driven by Doris Lowe, and a tractor trailer driven by Charles MacPherson of Grandview.

The car was owned by Winston White of Murray River and the two young ladies were on their way to work in Charlottetown.

The accident occurred when Miss Lowe tried to avoid hitting the trailer, rolled several times in the ditch, causing extensive damage to the vehicle. In hospital are Miss Lowe and Janet Jenkins, who were reportedly to be severely bruised and shaken up but not badly hurt.

Fishermen Won't All Benefit

All Island fishermen will not benefit from the extension of the lobster season to July 16. It was explained yesterday by a spokesman for the fisheries department.

The extension of the lobster season to July 16, he detailed, will apply to the area east and north of a line from Cape Jolin in Pictou County, N.S., to Point Prim in Queens County, P.E.I. It includes all of the waters off Kings County, P.E.I. and the North and East shore of Nova Scotia from Cape Jolin in Pictou County along the coast of all of Antigonish and Inverness counties to High Cape.

For Island fishermen, for example, the extension to July 16 applies only to those along the Kings County shores. For the other Island fishermen the season closes on July 7.

GREAT NEED
He said there was a great need for expanded services which would assist in early diagnosis and treatment of these diseases.

Some preventive measures suggested by Dr. Stanley included appointing a provincial geneticist; employing enough public health nurses; providing incentives for pediatricians and obstetricians to practise in low income areas; and establishing regional centres for the care of premature and other vulnerable infants.

DR. CARL GIFFIN, director of Cobequid Mental Health Centre, Nova Scotia, said the role of such centres included providing leadership, treatment and consultation services to non-psychiatric agencies and groups.

An important function of a centre was the provision of family therapy, which would "not only help individuals in the family who are sick, but also prevent illness in those not affected."

EDUCATION METHODS
Amy Elliot, health educator for the department of public health, Nova Scotia, described methods of educating the public in the mental health field.

The CMHA, she said, could play an important role in informing the public about mental health services available — it could provide a kind of "directory of services."

New methods of mass communication should be investigated. Another effective means of health education would be for each one of the 177 delegates to discuss the subject with friends, neighbors and families.

FEARS PSYCHOLOGY
Miss Elliot denounced what she called "fear psychology" used in anti-smoking campaigns, stating that this was "not good for mental health."

Other speakers were Roy Cooman, executive director of the New Brunswick division of the association, who outlined the structure of CMHA, and Mrs. Carol Proctor, provincial Mental Health Clinic, Moncton, N.B., who discussed volunteer service in the community.

Following the panel, delegates broke up into groups to discuss the topics, and attended a lobster
