

Untold Benefits Seen From Space

WASHINGTON (AP)—Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. told a cheering Congress here that space promises unimaginable benefits for mankind.

Addressing a joint meeting of the Senate and House of Representatives after riding through rain-soaked but frenzied crowds totalling 250,000, Glenn, first American to orbit the earth, said:

"We are just probing the surface of the greatest advancement of man's knowledge of his surroundings that have ever been made. It is hard to even envision the benefits that will accrue in many fields."

"Many women" wept openly and men strove to hold back tears as he wound up his simple, modest speech by saying: "As our knowledge of the universe in which we live increases, may God grant us the wisdom and guidance to use it wisely."

It was an emotion-packed day — emotion that ran the gamut from tears through grins to lusty laughter.

CAROLINE STEALS LAUGH

Biggest laugh came when the 49-year-old Marine lieutenant colonel told the gathering of legislators, ambassadors, Supreme Court judges and generals assembled in the House chamber how four-year-old Caroline Kennedy cut him and his brother astronaut "down to size this morning."

Seeing him off at West Palm Beach airport, the daughter of the president looked him up and down and asked: "Where's the monkey?"

It appeared the one Caroline really had hoped to see was Enos, the orbiting chimp.

"That really put us in our proper position," Glenn said.

CHEER IN RAIN

Despite a cold rain Pennsylvania Avenue was lined with cheering throngs as Glenn rode by in a procession from the White House to the Capitol.

At first sight of Glenn, the crowds burst into a great roar. From there to the Capitol, it was one, long-drawn ovation.

Glenn was introduced to Congress by House Speaker John McCormack (Dem. Mass.) as a "great and courageous American—who in a most notable manner has added glory and prestige to our country."

Glenn said his feat was accomplished by a lot of people, including his family. "Will my parents stand up, please?" he asked. His parents stood in the gallery and cheered broke out.

Then he introduced his two children and his wife, Annie, the "real rock"; his in-laws; five fellow astronauts; the director of Project Mercury, Robert R. Gulruith; and Walter C. Williams operations director of the space project.

Nuclear Warheads Available To Canadians In Emergency

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Nuclear warheads can be supplied in emergency to the Canadian Infantry Brigade group in West Germany in little more than an hour, competent sources disclosed here.

And in event of Russian nuclear attack, they could be used by the brigade whether or not any agreement between Canada and the United States for their control were in existence, other reliable sources said.

The same situation will apply in the RCAF division overseas when it is equipped with the new CP-104 low-level jet bomber. The first CP-104 squadron is scheduled to leave for Europe in November.

The 5,500-man motorized brigade group in Europe includes a battery-four launchers — of Honest John artillery rockets. The American Honest John was developed to carry a nuclear warhead.

Defence Minister Harkness has informed the Commons that nuclear storage dumps are being built as part of a NATO program in Western Europe. Some of these dumps are handy to Canadian army and air force bases in West Germany.

France, like Canada, does not permit storage of American nuclear warheads on her territory. The RCAF has two bases in France, which may create an awkward situation when the CP-104 is in service on these bases.

SUPPLY ALL FORCES

Sources said that if nuclear war broke out in Europe, NATO would supply all forces under its command capable of firing nuclear weapons with the required nuclear warheads. Any other course in an emergency would be unthinkable, they said.

NATO has declared that it would employ nuclear weapons, if it had to, to halt a Communist breakthrough with conventional forces.

The only difference between the nuclear situation in Canada and Europe is that the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile bases at North Bay, Ont., and La Ma-

Bloomers Spark Hot Controversy

WORTHING, England (Reuters)—A storm of controversy is raging around a pair of Queen Victoria's bloomers on display in a museum here.

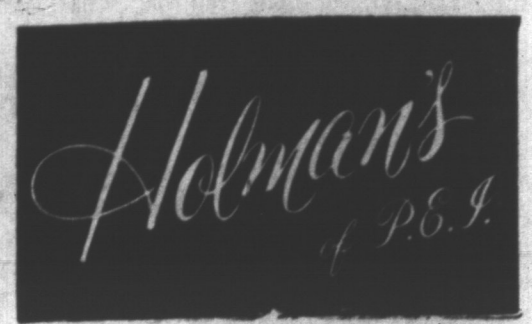

A visitor spotted them several days after the municipal museum's historical costume section opened a special display of 19th century garments and authorities have received a flood of objections from persons who think the display of such intimate articles lowers the dignity of the Royal family.

Inside the waistband of the white calico bloomers, draped on a clothesline with an assortment of other old-fashioned undergarments, was a stamp in black ink of the Royal cipher V. R. — Victoria Regina.

Assistant Curator Kenneth Barton said he found a number of boxes containing Victorian underwear in the storerooms and decided to exhibit them for a month.

"One of the boxes contained the drawers in question," he added. "According to the label attached to them they were the authentic drawers of Queen Victoria."

Chief Curator Leonard Bickerton said: "I consider Mr. Barton's action to have been in very poor taste. There is no doubt that the protests were quite justified. But the mistake was an innocent one, and we do not intend to correct it."
