ECONOMIC CHAOS FORESEEN

Anger At British Gov't Widespread In Rhodesia

Sir Roy Welensky, former prime minister of the defunct Central African Federation, predicts that economic chaos will result from sanctions imposed on Rhodesia. But he doesn't think the country can be starved into submission. A Canadian Press reporter who visited Rhodesia outlines Sir Roy's views in this story.

By DAVE MCINTOSH
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (CP) — In the airport bar at Lusaka, Zambia, the waiter refused a proffered Canadian dollar in payment for a beer.

"Only American dollars, bwana," he said.

Not 50 yards away an RCAF Hercules transport plane was disgorging emergency gasoline supplies for Zambia.

It is an hour's run by Viscount airliner from Lusaka to Salisbury. The plane was crowded with whites. There was not a single African passenger. It was a fine flight and the landing here was smooth.

Salisbury's airport is impressive by any standards and especially after Lusaka's collection of old Nissen huts.

There is little delay. The immigration officer is courteous. The immigration form requires you to state your race. A reply such as "100-yad dash" doesn't raise the ghost of a smile. The officer looks into a plain winter-bleached Canadian face and asks only: "Have you been in Rhodesia before?" The customs officer is a young woman, also polite and efficient.

FIRST-CLASS HOTEL
The downtown hotel is modern, equal to any in Canada. Yarmouth boaters are on the breakfast menu. Toast is served in a silver rack. There is tea—but no tea bags.

If Rhodesia crumbles this hotel will be the last bastion, a long-time guest observes.

At 6 a.m. it is already hot. Africans on foot and riding bicycles begin to fill the streets on the way to their menial jobs. There is little public transportation because all the whites have cars.

The oil embargo is an irritation but so far only a minor one. The normal ration is 1½ gallons a week but the oil refinery is closing and Rhodesia hasn't enough railway tank cars. Even if it finds a petroleum source, rationing is bound to get tighter.

The new and used car business is falling off. The Ford assembly plant is laying off workers. Garages haven't as much work to do. A theatre which used to draw a packed house of 420 people every night now is getting about 70 customers each performance.

RUN CAR POOLS
There are car pools or lift clubs as they are called here. "I never knew I had so many friends," one car owner with an extra ration said.

Another wrote a letter to a newspaper to thank a garage for allowing him enough extra fuel for his cigarette lighter.

A country innkeeper has installed a hitching post in his parking lot for farmers riding horses to fetch the mail—and down a quick one.

But this light-hearted attitude is by no means prevalent.

The mood of Rhodesia is anger at Britain and especially at the British Labor government for imposition of sanctions.

William Harper, minister of internal affairs, tells a Rotary Club luncheon the name of the British government must be made to stink in the nostrils of the world and particularly those of the British people. He adds: "We can take it but we also intend to dish it out."

NEWSPAPERS CENSORED
This is hardly a tone conducive to negotiations with Britain, as the Rhodesian Herald noted in one of its editorials which was not censored.

In the Rhodes cinema, where the Iperess File is playing along with a South African newswreel which doesn't show a single black African, many in the audience determinedly re-

Tignish Activity Well Under Way

A large turnout of spectators are following hockey action at Tignish and a large number of skaters were testing their blades on a fine sheet of ice at the Arena during the past week. Community hockey headed the schedule during the early part of the week.

The juveniles beat the Shore Sea Gulls 8-1. Mimitingans, Ramblers walloped Arnie's Flying Hawks 14-4. Juvenile team and Lady Slipper Jets tied 6-6. The Ramblers blanked the Sea Gulls 29-1.

Tyne Valley trounced the Tignish Aces 9-1 on Arena ice on Wednesday evening. Tallying for the Valley were E. Gregg, R. MacArthur (2), I. Bagiole, M. Cameron (2), T. Birch (3), C. McCall, and Alfred Handrahan for the Aces.

On Friday evening an overflow of fans watched one of the fastest and best games of the season as the Aces lost by a small margin of 5-4 to O'Leary Maroons.

It was action packed hockey all the way on very fast ice, with the Aces scoring early in the game and holding on to a 4-1 lead until last half of the third period. Scoring for the Maroons were: G. Rogerson 3, D. Ellis, and B. Dunville and for the Aces — L. Richard, A. Hackett, C. Bernard, A. Hackett, Penalties went to Culicutt, I. Strang, G. Rogerson, D. Dennis, A. Fennesse, A. Handrahan and J. Chervinsky.

Referees were Joe Dorsey and G. McGregor referee-in-chief.

The little league Paperweights and Pee-Wee teams were transported to O'Leary on Friday evening by Joe Dorsey, William Handrahan, Jerry Buole, Earl O'Rourke and Clifton Gavin who coached both teams to victory. Scoring for the Paperweights was Danny Arsenault of Slipper Drive. For Pee-Wee team Glen McRae, 2. Percy Morrissey, and Larry Arsenault.

main seated when God Save the Queen is played at the start.

Emotionalism is the guiding factor now, says Sir Roy Welensky, former prime minister of the defunct Central African Federation which embraced now independent Zambia and Malawi as well as Rhodesia.

Sir Roy lives 7½ miles from town in a bungalow surrounded by musassa, wistaria and Chinese lantern hedges, groaning grape vines and fig and papaw trees. His home is no more luxurious and a good deal less than most white homes here. He runs a small farm which grows fruit and flowers.

The bulky 59-year-old one-time professional boxer told his 8 a.m. visitor that Rhodesia can't be starved into submission but that the sanctions will probably result in lower living standards and industrial chaos.

MARCH KEY MONTH
He said he feels the real test of whether the economic embargo is successful or otherwise will show in March when Rhodesia tries to sell its big crop of tobacco.

"Beware the idea of March," he said.

"I believe Rhodesia can feed herself. On the other hand, if the success of the sanctions means lowering of living standards with resulting industrial chaos, there is a good possibility of them succeeding if they are honored by all nations."

Sir Roy, who opposed the Nov. 11 declaration of independence, said his principal fear is that the Rhodesian question will go to the United Nations Security Council without British consent. Under Article 7 of the UN charter, the sanctions could be made mandatory and enforced in such circumstances.

Sir Roy said he believes Britain wouldn't cast a veto on Rhodesia's behalf because the repercussions in the rest of the Commonwealth would be grave.

NO-MILITARY THREAT
He said he doesn't believe there is any military threat to Rhodesia from any African state in the foreseeable future. Danger would arise only if one of the big powers was willing to back UN actions with force. This could lead to a major conflict in Africa.

Sir Roy also said the Rhodesian government will be compelled to buy at least part of the tobacco crop, using funds intended to pay external debts, if the ban on Rhodesian tobacco lasted until the end of this year. There was a great likelihood Rhodesia would lose some of its principal tobacco markets for a long time.

Sir Roy, out of public office since the collapse of the federation in 1963, said with a broad smile that both he and Prime Minister Pearson of Canada know something of the difficulties of trying to run a federal system of government.

NEED CONSTANT REVIEW
Mr. Battle said the five broad objectives he listed will need constant review and critical examination.

A country-wide research program would be completed this fall by two university professors on economic development of reserves, advancement in education, government responsibility at various levels, and development of self-government and band councils.

Another study now being made through the Canadian Welfare Council covers the relationship of Indians and the law.

Such studies would establish guidelines for future policy.

"These are the directions in which we are going," Mr. Battle said. "The next five years will see real progress and achievement in these important fields."

Steel Firms In U.S. Concerned Over Imports

CLEVELAND (AP) — U.S. Steel producers continue to show concern over foreign competition, says Steel Magazine.

"In the midst of it (foreign competition) is cited as the No. 1 problem," the trade publication reports in its current issue.

"In Chicago, half of the steel imports are said to be of Japanese origin. A number of warehouses over recent months have supplemented their stocks with foreign steel."

While U.S. steel production was soaring to a record of 131,361,000 tons last year, imports also set records. Latest figures show steel imports through the first 11 months reached a record high of 9,711,104 tons, Steel reports. For all of 1964 imports totalled only 6,430,506 tons.

Meanwhile, domestic production continues to rebound and is in "its sharpest upswing in almost three years," Steel says.

The upswing results "primarily from the winding up of liquidation of inventories . . . and the need for steel to support a continued high rate of consumption."

Production climbed last week to 2,440,000 ingot tons—which would mean an annual rate of 127,000,000 tons—compared with 2,185,000 tons for the week ended Jan. 1.

Indians' Self-Government Is Reported Ottawa's Aim

TORONTO (CP) — The Indian affairs branch would like to see Indian bands operating in much the same way as municipalities, R. F. Battle, director of the federal branch, said Saturday night.

Mr. Battle, speaking to a student conference on Indians at Trinity College here, said development of self-government among Indians is a major objective.

Self-government was one of five objectives he listed as necessary if "real and lasting results" are to be achieved.

The five objectives:

1. An accelerated education program. Emphasis had to be placed on vocational training, retraining, assistance in job placement, adult education greater use of provincial schools. About 44 per cent of courses, kindergartens, and a greater use of provincial schools. About 44 per cent of Indian children now attend provincial schools. High school enrollment had doubled in the last five years.
2. Expanded resource and industrial development. Indian affairs traditionally had concentrated on development of resources like furs, fish, forests and farmland. Needed now was provision for loans and other
