

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. TOWNSEND L. MACNEILL

There passed peacefully away at her home in North Rustico in the early hours of April 13, Annie Viola, beloved wife of Townsend L. MacNeill.

Although she had been in failing health for some time, she bore her suffering with true Christian fortitude, ever retaining her bright and cheery manner at all times.

Mrs. MacNeill was the daughter of the late Hugh and Mary Jane MacLure, and was born in North Rustico, September 23, 1878. She was a faithful member of the New Glasgow Christian Church, where she sang in the choir for many years as well as being active in the Ladies' Aid and Missionary Society.

Besides her sorrowing husband she leaves to mourn, one son, Reginald B., one daughter, Mrs. W. D. Stevenson, and seven grandchildren; also a brother, Adrian R. MacLure of Summerside.

The funeral service was held on April 15 from her late residence and was very largely attended. Rev. M. Waterworth of N. W. Glasgow, assisted by Rev. F. W. Sawdon of Cavendish conducted the service.

Miss Doris Andrew sang "Does Jesus Care," most feelingly. Other hymns sung were "The Lord Is My Shepherd," and "Safe In The Arms of Jesus."

Pallbearers were: Messrs. W.R. LePage, Clive MacNeill, Lorne Houston, Leigh Warren, Beecher Court, Rudolph Fleming. Beautiful floral tributes bore silent expression of love and sympathy from relatives and friends. Interment was in the Cavendish Cemetery.

Card Of Thanks

Mr. Townsend MacNeill and family wish to extend to all their good friends and neighbors sincere thanks and appreciation for the many acts of kindness in their recent sad bereavement and to all that sent cards and expressions of sympathy.

Make Your Summer Safer

First Aid and Home Nursing (St. John Ambulance)

Summer and swimming go together like ham and eggs.

To make your summer safer, St. John Ambulance recommends that you learn artificial respiration before you go to a cottage or to a swimming beach. The three recognized methods are the Holger-Nielsen, the Schafer and the Silvester. None of these can be taught in a brief column like this—practice is the only way—but here are some of the fundamentals.

Be sure that the patient is lying on his stomach. If he is left lying on his back there is no chance of the water getting out of his air passages and his tongue slip back, blocking his breathing. Artificial respiration should start immediately and there should be no break, even if someone else is taking over or if the patient is being taken to hospital by ambulance. It should be kept up until breathing has been restored or a medical practitioner pronounces the patient dead.

Someone should remove wet clothes and loosen any tight clothing, especially around the neck, chest and waist. The patient should be kept warm with blankets, clothes and hot water bottles and the limbs should be massaged toward the heart to help the flow of blood.

Have someone call a doctor, ambulance and police or fire department emergency car if they are available.

When the patient has started breathing again, turn him on his back and don't let him sit or stand for several hours unless a doctor orders otherwise. Watch closely for a relapse and start artificial respiration again if this occurs.

St. John Ambulance offers instruction in artificial respiration as part of its course in First Aid and in many communities at this time of year special two-hour classes are available.

Emergency Powers Act Has Expired

OTTAWA, (CP)—The government today relinquished powers to control nearly every sector of national life without consulting parliament. The authority was embodied in the Emergency Powers Act, passed in 1951 to meet emergency conditions following the outbreak of the Korean war and was renewed yearly. The act expired today.

The legislation provided a continuation of some of the sweeping powers contained in the War Measures Act invoked in 1939. Between 1945 and 1951, certain powers were retained under Emergency Transitional Powers Acts.

The emergency powers legislation was criticized by all opposition parties and renewals since 1951 met stiff opposition.

Twenty-five cabinet orders-in-council, having the effect of legislation, were passed under the act's authority and 12 remained in effect when Prime Minister St. Laurent announced April 29 that he would be allowed to lapse.

Two of the cabinet orders are being continued under legislation one retaining a transport controller to direct shipment of grain and other bulk goods and the other permitting United States citizens to operate radio stations in Canada.

The nature of one of the orders remains a closely-guarded secret. When it was passed the cabinet approved another order excusing it from disclosing the terms. The secret order now expires without parliament knowing what it was about. Mr. St. Laurent said some time ago that the criminal code or the Official Secrets Act may be found to provide sufficient safeguards against circumstances which the order guarded against.

The passing of the Emergency Powers Act leaves the government with the War Measures Act but

Canadian-American Trade Relations Reported Nearing Critical Stage

OTTAWA, (CP)—Canadian-American trade relations are nearing a critical stage with the Canadian government deeply concerned over the possibility that President Eisenhower may give way to demands for U. S. import curbs on base metals and certain fish products.

Federal officials say that if the curbs receive presidential approval Canada will have to consider some form of economic readjustment, possibly a withdrawal of a tariff concession equivalent in physical and psychological value to the U. S. restrictions imposed.

The Canadian government, in previous trade clashes with the U. S., has shown reluctance to take such a step, fearing it may lead to new trade wars between the two great trading powers.

Governmental advisers now feel there may be no other course open. The chain of events which has increased Canadian government worries began some weeks ago when the president received a report from the U. S. tariff commission recommending curbs against groundfish fillets, the flesh of such fish as ocean perch, cod and haddock.

Later the president announced that he has temporarily given up his fight for new tariff-cutting proposals and will be content with merely a year's renewal of the U.S. Reciprocal Trade.

It was followed by a new U. S. tariff commission report, handed to the president just recently, recommending some form of tariff or quota restriction on imports of lead and zinc.

The U. S. imports about $15,000,000 worth of Canadian groundfish fillets, produced in the Maritimes, and about $80,000,000 worth of lead and zinc annually.

There still is some hope here that the president will take a stand against new import curbs. His stand against previous tariff demands has been "admirable," one official said.

Devine-Campbell Nuptials

The first day of May 1954 was blessed with bright sunshine as two young people were joined in holy matrimony at St. Mary's Church, Indian River, at 9 a.m. Freda Geraldine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Campbell, Indian River, exchanged vows with James Edward, son of Mrs. Loretta Devine of Peake's Station. Rev. Rupert MacLellan, schoolmate of the bride and classmate of the groom at S. D. U. performed the ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass.

During the mass, hymns "On This Day," "Immaculate Mary" and "Panis Angelicus" were very beautifully rendered by the Misses Brenda and Rozita Hickey.

Guests were ushered to their places which were marked with bows of white ribbons, by Messrs. Will Ledwell and Elmer Blanchard. White lilies adorned the altar while lovely baskets of pink snapdragons were arranged at rail by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Ivan Berigan.

The winsome young bride gown in floor-length white satin and chantly lace caught up with pearls and sequins, fitted bodice and bolero with a brilliant halo embroidered finger tip veil, carrying a white prayer book and cascade of sweetheart red roses entered the church on the arm of her father while the Bridal March was played by Mrs. Edgar Hickey.

She was attended by her sister Miss Mildred who wore orchid net over taffeta with matching head-dress and accessories and carried a nosegay of yellow roses and white 'mums.

The groom was supported by his brother, Merlin. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold cross and chain and to the bridesmaid a necklet and earring set.

Following the ceremony, the wedding party drove to Mulberry Lodge where some 65 guests partook of a very dainty wedding breakfast. The toast to the bride was very appropriately given by Mr. Will Ledwell and responded to by the groom. Felicitations were also extended by Revs. Louis Callaghan, P. P., and Rupert MacLellan. Many musical selections were rendered by Mr. W. MacInnis.

Mrs. Russell Campbell chose a suit of blue for her daughter's wedding with matching accessories and a corsage of pink 'mums while the groom's mother was attired in navy crepe with white hat and gloves. She wore a corsage of white carnations. The bride wore a suit of grey with white hat for travelling as they left on a honeymoon trip to Boston and New York, returning by Montreal.

Previous to her marriage Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hickey entertained in the bride's honor when a large number of her friends and neighbours showered her with a beautiful array of silver, glass, linen and a substantial purse. A bounteous lunch was served by the ladies and to the lively music of James Bearisto, Bernard MacKinnon, Ed Matthews (violin), Misses Mary Matthews, Harriet Campbell, Rozita Hickey (guitar) and Mrs. Gills and Hickey (organ).

All indulged in dancing for a few hours. Special step dancing features were given by Misses Mildred and Harriet Campbell, during the evening. The bride was also honored at many social events in Charlottetown where she has been an efficient stenographer at the Poly-din for the past five years. They will reside in Charlottetown. The groom is representative for the Mutual Life Company. The best wishes of all are theirs for happiness and prosperity.

Amends Social Gaffe About Canned Salmon

LONDON, (CP)—Duncan Sandys, Britain's supply minister, has adroitly proffered qualified amends for a social gaffe about canned salmon that brought a "kasp" from the whole table at a British Columbia dinner party last April.

"Somewhat rashly," Sandys had said he preferred fresh salmon to the tinned variety, pride of the west coast. It appeared "I had committed blasphemy."

However, the minister told a meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Great Britain Tuesday a case of canned B. C. salmon had arrived from Canada for him a few days ago.

"Without compromising my principles, I can say that of all the tinned salmon I have met, none has surpassed in excellence the tinned salmon of British Columbia," said Sandys amid loud laughter.

home followed by a service in the Presbyterian Church, Clyde River.

Services were conducted by Rev. Frank MacLean of Trinity United Church, Charlottetown, assisted by Rev. Donald Nicholson.

Favorite hymns sung were "The Lord Is My Shepherd," Two solos, "The City Foursquare" and "Abide With Me" were sung by Mr. Robert Bradbury, Quincy, Mass. Pall bearers were Malcolm Darrach, Lloyd Darrach, Ivan Darrach, Dr. Malcolm Beck, Preston Rodd, Carl Burke. Interment was in the church cemetery.
