Foresees Opposition

According to an Ottawa dispatch in the Financial Times of Canada, the politicians are already lining up against the royal recommendations...

The Times correspondent says it is generally conceded that the present ceiling is unrealistic, but in the end the government may be driven to compromise by raising it to 7 per cent instead of abolishing it.

Another Commission recommendation deals with the federal licensing of provincially incorporated near-banks...
The Commission's proposal for a federal agency to supplement provincial securities regulation has been received 'without enthusiasm'...

All this, of course, is speculation; but it comes from an informed source and is cited here for what it is worth. Incidentally, it is noted that the Commission's recommendations on small loans will be referred to the joint Senate-House Committee on Consumer Credit...

Deadlock At Geneva

No touch is being heard about the progress of the United Nations trade and development conference at Geneva, which perhaps is not surprising in view of the fact that very little progress is being made. The Western powers have presented a woefully disunited front at these trade talks...

Present arrangements under GATT ignore the basic differences in the economic structures of the industrialized and poorer countries.

Special measures are needed to permit the latter to absorb modern technology quicker and change their internal structure to accelerate development. The industrial countries have accumulated capital distribution and faced problems of distribution of income later.

This faces the Western countries with the dilemma of trying to help solve a problem they have never had to solve themselves. Thus reports a Geneva correspondent of the Winnipeg Free Press, who adds: 'Now that the poor countries have lost their innocence and know their own poverty, ending that poverty is fast becoming the number one international political necessity.'

Western disunity and indifference is a poor way of meeting a challenge of this kind.

Denby Dale Pies

At Denby Dale they're preparing to bake another of those giant pies that have made this little English village famous. It will be the seventh creation of the pie-makers, not counting the one that went bad and had to be buried in 1887 on Queen Victoria's jubilee.

Before they start assembling the ingredients the villagers plan to stage a party in the pie dish, which itself is something to behold. Billed as the largest of its kind, the dish is 18 feet long, 6 feet wide and 20 inches deep.

The first Denby Dale pie was made in 1788 to celebrate George III's recovery from an illness. The recovery, it seems, didn't last much longer than the pie. The second one celebrated the victory over Napoleon in the Battle of Waterloo in 1815, and the third the repeal of the Corn Laws in 1846.

Pie day this year is Sept. 5—just when our Confederation centennial celebrations are at their height in Charlottesville. Couldn't we persuade a Denby Dale delegation to come over with a hefty slice for us?

EDITORIAL NOTES

Zoologists at the Philadelphia Zoo have found that cellophane saves chickens from heart attacks. They discovered the highest rate of death from heart attack was among males that lived in cages in which the number of males and females was equal.

Planning New Cuban Action?

By Harold Morrison
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Various authoritative hints seem to indicate the U.S. administration is planning some new action in connection with Cuba...

The U.S. administration seems to retain an appearance of tranquility. All reports of unusual air-raids and troop movements in southern regions have been denied...

The conditions may be ripe for some new action on the U.S. may be taking itself into new trouble.

Our cat is Black Cat. Rave-hued in night. A very circus of mystery! She moves she flows; A blaze of sun, time, or sea, she's a sphinx, a radar, Or else, all knows all.

Our little cat is Curiosity. All things bear her scrutiny. The feather touch is a trained claw. Her nose pinks mauve. Her nose and whiskers automatic. Friends she contacts gallop. Especially after fish ingestion. Purring then, and sated quiet. Our cat is just a quick spritz. In a cat world beyond recall. She sits, Bubastis, by the wall.
