

Happenings of The Week

Two interesting and unique events in the social life of the City and Province are scheduled this week and the first of next.

The first has to do with Queen Mary's Carpet. This famous carpet, now in Canada, is in possession of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

Much has been written about the carpet—a million most traveled and sought after stitches of wool worked into twelve individual panels and border, signed by Her Majesty Queen Mary—and it is confidently expected that many will take advantage of this rare opportunity to view his remarkable work by a Queen whose love of beauty and craftsmanship have gone hand in hand with devoted service to the country.

Accompanying the carpet to this Province is Mrs. K. J. G. Draper, vice-president and Post War Service Convener of the National Chapter, I. O. D. E.

The second event has to do with the Scroll of Friends and Log Book which Princess Margaret presented to the Girl Guides of Canada on behalf of the Girl Guides of Great Britain. It will arrive by air in Charlottetown on Monday, November 13th, and be deposited for safe-keeping in the City Hall overnight, and on Tuesday afternoon will be on display at Prince of Wales College Auditorium. Wednesday afternoon it will be on display at the Clover Club when the semi-annual meeting of the Provincial Girl Guide Association will be held.

Arrangements are being made to have the Scroll and Log Book on display at Montague on Thursday, November 16th and in Summerside on Friday, the 17th.

Presiding over the occasion were Mrs. Lillian Duchemin and Mrs. R. E. Sutherland, while those serving were Misses Patricia MacMahon, Gladys Hart and Dorothy Cullen. The guests were ushered by Miss Ethel Sutherland, and the refreshers were Miss Ella Cronin and Mrs. Arthur Bruce.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett J. Hayward and family have taken up residence at Villa Waters for the winter months.

The many friends of Mrs. Rena Tomlins, City, are sorry to learn of her illness. She is a patient in the Prince Edward Island Hospital.

Mrs. Robert Wilson entertained at bridge last evening in the home of her mother, Mrs. W. M. Brauhaut, Rochford Street. Mrs. Wilson leaves shortly for Brazil.

Mrs. Alfred McNeill gave a delightful afternoon tea for her many friends Thursday. The tables were beautifully set with pink and white snapdragons and candelabra in the dining room and mauve mums and candelabra in living room. Mrs. George Rogers and Mrs. Wendell Barbour poured tea while Mrs. H. T. A. Brown, Mrs. Anthony Pitt, Mrs. James Power, Mrs. Keith Johnson, Mrs. Robert Driscoll, Mrs. Arthur Hogan and Mrs. Allison Rogers assisted in serving.

Previous to her coming marriage Miss Ethel Moore, R.N., was tendered a miscellaneous shower by her classmates at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Heber Jones, Malpeque Road.

Dr. and Mrs. Steele have returned from a delightful trip to the coast where they visited in Vancouver.

A banquet was held last evening at Sandy's Restaurant in honour of Mr. John Conolly, who recently resigned from the staff of P. W. C. after 17 years of service. Fifty-five members of the staff with their wives were present. Dr. McKinnon presided and in that capacity expressed the regrets of the staff in losing Mr. Conolly, and their best wishes for his success in the future. Presentation of a beautiful watch was made to Mr. Conolly on behalf of the members of the staff, and roses were presented to Mrs. Conolly. Congratulatory remarks were made by Dr. J. H. Blanchard and Dr. G. D. Steele with whom Mr. Conolly was associated for many years.

Rev. Dr. J. Keir G. Fraser and Mrs. Fraser have arrived in the city from their summer home in Alberton and have taken up residence at Kent Manor, 281 Kent St. They motored down with Mr. Herbert Clark who returned home today.

The Loveliness Of You

"Ah yes!—the world is literally crammed with beautiful women. Of this fact the men in our North America are especially aware, and because of it, the world keeps going around on its axis! But so many of us bemoan our fate, due to the fact that we are not as striking perhaps, as the next girl. This is merely "stuff'n' nonsense". The clue to standing out from the masses is to be an individualist, and this is achieved by placing emphasis on your best features. Deliberately accent your apparent assets by the use of proper make-up, as the difference between two pairs of eyes—the unforgettable one and the "also-rans" can be determined by make-up. If your hair is your "crowning glory," time and money will be well-spent on its care. On the other hand, your irregular features may give you that "different" appearance, as an erratic eyebrow or a bold nose.

Now is the time when the Business Girl is contemplating the big buy of her career—a fur coat. You will be well-advised to choose a coat that will be nice with hemline fashions, cut with smart lines but not extreme. This year shoulers are rounded and fullness is well distributed in the coat. Muskrat is lovely and very youthful-looking too. However, Persian is more in demand today by both the young set and those of middle age. Persian, though comparatively reasonably priced is very luxurious in appearance.

Did you know that you can now obtain new color tint rinses for your hair that can be shampooed in or out in a matter of minutes? Smart women everywhere are tinting their hair in blue or red, to match a dress, when wanting to make a lasting impression on that special someone. This season, do something new with your hair and change your tune to "Must try" from "Wouldn't dare" and experiment with hair coloring by brushing on water-color rinses in beautiful hues of blue, violet, silver red or beige.

ELLEN'S DIARY

By An Island Farmer's Wife

Very silent this old house is now and rather lonely we fancy as it settles down in exquisite moonlight to its night of rest. The millpond is calm and bridged with silver, the span so bright the black dog occasionally barks his curiosity into the silence. In the afternoon, its surface was broken into glinting wavelets. That was before the wind of day had called his happy breezes from hill and valley and woodland, to bear them home up the creek in the sunset. We remember how winsomely one had caressed a small lad's hair, as he played with his sister in the sunshine of the front veranda when the two were left in our care and keeping. Jeanie had gone then to join the farmers at the saving of their turnips, sensing it is likely the pleading expression in masculine eyes turned hopefully to this or that dwelling, as succeeding loads of the succulent roots were brought to the cellars. "Seems as if there's not going to be another day but this," we hailed her, somewhat breathlessly as we shook a rug in the yard. And Jeanie laughed, "Events thicken!" she said "and wouldn't you know—this is Saturday!"

A beautiful Saturday it has been, born out of sunlight and waning by that of the moon. Balmly, delightful, inviting young and older to linger out of doors—offering a taste of October's best weather to the folks on the farms. Affording them ideal conditions to work at the turnips, to continue the potato-rotting or maybe the plowing, sun loving the fields, sunning roving winds of Autumn, blue sky above. But as well, the crisp rustling leaves of the season and a formation of wild Geese flying south. "Listen!" grand daughter, raised a finger in warning. "Don't you like to hear them sailing!" It was a lonely call, that one, which drifted back from a hilltop today to the two who watched their flight until the dim lines were lost to us in the distance.

We entertained one, among others this evening at Alderlea, who also goes South, commencing an annual trek which takes a pair by car there presently. A sister. Continued on page 8.

Leftover Ham If there is leftover ham, chop it and combine with cooked macaroni and medium white sauce; top with well grated cheese. Brown in the oven, and serve with hot biscuits and a mixed green salad with French dressing.

Button Bag A button bag near the clothes washer is convenient for holding any buttons that may be wrung off the clothes; they are sometimes hard to match.

Book Treatment A few drops of oil of lavender here and there throughout a book-case will prevent mold.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. Is it ever permissible for a dinner guest to mention any preferences in foods? A. No. He should accept what is offered, and under no circumstances make reference to some other kind of dish he particularly likes. That would be the height of ill-breeding. Q. Should the best man and the ushers stand in the receiving line at a wedding reception? A. No, the bride and bridegroom, maid of honor, and bridesmaids are the only ones who stand in the receiving line. Q. When a woman is playing golf with a man, should she drive first, whether the honor is hers or his? A. No; she should observe the rules of the game, driving first only if it is her honor.

SOME CAUSES OF FATIGUE

It is reported by an observing wholesale druggist that 25 per cent of all the middle-aged physicians in a certain city are using vitamin B1 or vitamin B complex to offset their feelings of fatigue or tiredness. Some striking results in giving middle-aged men a "B1" or "B complex" have been reported. Another cause of tiredness or fatigue in middle-aged men is believed due to change of life. Just as gradual wasting of the ovaries causes the change in women, so it is stated, does wasting of the male sex glands cause change of life. Whether this form of treatment helps to reduce fatigue, or fatigue is due to lack of vitamins, is still under experimental research. In American Practitioner, Dr. Murray Y. Silver states that fatigue is frequently attributed to low blood pressure, but most patients with so-called low blood pressure have low normal pressure. In a previous article I referred to a family in which both parents and three adult children all had low blood pressure. What may not be considered is that if an individual has some chronic low infection over months or years, his blood pressure will be high for some time, then become low and remain low. With low pressure, there is most often a tired feeling. Dr. Silver states further that Continued on page 3.

A CRITICAL state of affairs, with the energies, inner forces and faculties keyed to adrenalin and drastic action. Blindness: Its cure is one of our Lord's most frequent miracles. (Luke VII-21, Matt. IX-27, John V-3, IX-27). Blindness was very common among the people of Biblical lands, due to the cold sea air on the coasts, the dust and sand pulverized by the intense heat, the constant glare and, in the desert regions the absence of green objects to relieve eye strain. Jana, with a population of 5000, had 500 blind persons alone.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Feminine Psychology

Why Do Loving Mothers Treat Their Daughters As They Do?

One of the unexplainable mysteries of feminine psychology is the attitude of mothers toward their daughters and why, loving their daughters as they do, they treat them the way they do.

Mystery No. 1 is that even intelligent mothers seldom try to fit their daughters for life. Apparently mothers still believe in Santa Claus and think that no matter what happens to other girls their own are going to be saved from all the work and worry and hardships of existence. So she spoils and pampers her daughters. She encourages them in selfishness and extravagance. She goes shabby that they may have fine clothes. She makes callouses on her hands so that they may keep their soft and manicured. She is humble before their insults and makes them feel that they are she-who-must-be-obeyed.

She doesn't even teach them how to cook, sew or market, although she is aware from her own experience that these are the things that every woman most needs to know, and that on her skill in the domestic arts will depend much of the success of her marriage.

Every girl who goes into business goes in handicapped by the lack of discipline, the lack of self-control, the laziness and inefficiency that her mother has bred in her. Half of the waiting women who ruin into the divorce courts do so because their husbands do not treat them as their mothers did. They consider it cruel and inhuman treatment to be expected to do their share of work and bear their part of the load in the matrimonial partnership.

GIRL FAMILY GOAT

Mystery No. 2 is, curiously enough, that mothers consider that they own their daughters and that their daughters have a greater duty to them than their sons have. If there is ever any call for someone to be sacrificed on the family altar, it is always Nanny that Mother picks out for the goat. If their is sickness, it is always Nanny who must sit up and nurse the sufferer. Mother wouldn't dream of asking Tom to do it, because Tom needs his sleep and is tired after his hard day's work. Nanny may have stood behind a counter or pounded a typewriter from early morn till dewy eve, but Mother never remembers that.

Mother never asks the boys to do hand's turn around the house, but she saves up the chores for the girls to do when they come home from business. If there is a call for anyone to give up a career or stay single in order to take care of old parents, it is always poor Nanny who is elected for martyrdom. Mother considers it the girls' duty, not the boys'.

Mystery No. 3 is why mothers are so anxious to get their daughters married. Most of them haven't found marriage a picnic that one could recommend for real enjoyment and a good time. Some of them have had husbands who drank and beat them; some were married to men who were shiftless and no-account; most of them had husbands who never showed them any tenderness nor affection, and who were grouchy and high-tempered and hard to get along with. All of their married lives they have had to work hard, pinch pennies, go shabby and have had few pleasures to brighten their lives.

NOT CHOOSY ABOUT MAN

One would think that the last thing on earth that a mother would want would be to let her daughter into a life that would be a repetition of hers. But this is not the case. Most mothers are so eager for their daughters to marry that they are not even particular about the bridegrooms and they will actually aid and abet their daughters in marrying men who have malodorous pasts, men who drink too much, men who have no way of providing for a family, men who have never been able to support themselves.

Why mothers should be so anxious for their daughters to marry, no one knows. It is not because they are a burden on them, because virtually every girl makes her own living in these days and helps her family. It isn't because the mothers think the girls will be happier or better off married than single. It is just Mystery No. 3. And curiously enough, mothers, as opposed to their sons' marrying at they are pleased with their daughters' marrying. At a wedding one can always tell which is the bride's mother and which the bridegroom's. The bride's mother is wreathed in smiles. The bridegroom's mother is the lady in tears.

Mystery No. 4 is why mothers seem to think that the marriage ceremony endows a girl with almost supernatural wisdom and bestows upon her the ability to take care of herself. In a word, they think that marriage turns Dumb Dora into Mrs. Solomon, and changes a clinging vine into a sturdy oak. As long as Sally is single, Mother scoffs at her opinions, feels at liberty to correct her, tells her what to do and what not to do and considers that she can't be trusted to go anywhere alone, although Sally may be 40 years old, have a college degree and hold down an executive job. But if Sally had married at 16 Mother would have immediately thought that she was an oracle and asked her advice and considered her a sophisticated woman of the world.

Funny about mothers, isn't it, and the way they treat their daughters?

How Can I!!!

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I care for leather shoes? A. Every few nights, when taking the shoes off, rub them with a soft cloth slightly smeared with Vaseline jelly. They will wear much longer and will not require as frequent polishing. Q. How can I remove the discoloration from a coffee pot? A. Boil the pot in a strong solution of borax, then wash in the usual manner. The result will be satisfactory.

Morning Smile

In the olden days, when whaling voyages often lasted five, seven, and even ten years, the mate of a whaling boat about to leave port tapped the captain's shoulder and said: "Sorry, captain, but your wife is crying her eyes out on the dock." "What's the matter with her?" asked the captain. "She says you didn't kiss her goodbye," was the reply. "Well," snorted the captain, "I'm only going to be gone for two years!"
