J. S. Justice Dept. Studies Newspaper Price

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The justice department said today it is studying the situation that is developing on the pricing of newspapers...

Noting reports of a $5 per ton advance by one Canadian producer, an official of the anti-trust division said: 'We are not conducting an investigation as such, but we are studying the newspaper pricing situation. In the past a price increase by one newspaper producer usually has resulted in a general rise.'

Mark Golden Wedding With Recent Receptions

MR. AND MRS. BERTRAM WILLIS

On Tuesday, October 11, a large number of relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Willis gathered at their home in Kingston to offer them congratulations and best wishes on their occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Prior to her marriage, Mrs. Willis was Sarah Fraser, Hampshire. For the reception, the dining room was decorated in a golden theme. The table was lovely with a lace cloth, gold candles in crystal holders, vases of gold 'mums and a three-tiered bridal cake decorated with a miniature bride and groom and gold trimmings.

Miss Fay Edwards, granddaughter, received the guests at the door during the afternoon and Miss Marlene Kilson, granddaughter, was in charge of the guest book.

Pouring tea were Mrs. Daniel MacLeod, Mrs. Charles Willis and Mrs. Elmer Younker. Serving were Mrs. Glydon Willis, Mrs. John Edward, Mrs. Norris Kilson, cutting the ices and replenishing were Mrs. Horace Willis, Mrs. Sterling Willis and Mrs. Stanley Willis.

During the afternoon a presentation was made of a travelling case by the sisters and brother of Mrs. Willis.

In the evening friends and relatives from the community gathered and Mr. Cyrus Holmes acted as chairman. Mr. Wilbur Younker read the following address: Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Willis, Kingston, P.E.I.

Dear Friends: On this, the occasion of the 50th anniversary of your marriage, we, your neighbors and friends from the community about, have come together to your home to offer you our heartfelt felicitations, and to join with you in the happy celebrations. Your Golden Wedding Day.

It is a joyous event for you and yours, and for us, and one not given to us in anything for reach. Providence has been especially good to have you come up the years in your ideal companionship together to this great day. So we come to rejoice with you in your happiness, and also to try to convey to you at this time something of the feeling of esteem, respect, and good will we entertain for you in our hearts.

God has blessed you with a family of five sons and two daughters, all with our own families now, and we hope that each of us will conduct his or her home in the same way you have conducted yours.

During your married life, you have witnessed the unfolding of a half century of history. You have lived in times of war and in times of peace, in days of prosperity and in days of depression. You have seen many inventions which made life easier, more streamlined and more complicated, and many advances in medical science which have made our life longer.

Throughout those years, your ideals have remained unchanged and while you have adjusted yourselves to this modern age, you have never forgotten that the duty to love God and ones' neighbor applies to all and at all times.

As we, the members of your family glance back today over the years spent at home, we will recall that they were years of happiness. Our home was a happy one, filled with love of God, love for each other and a tender parental love.

We also recall the Christmas season when all the families went their way to the old home to spend Christmas.

Now dear Father and Mother, you have given us a fine example of parenthood, a splendid social life. You have brought us up to the best of your ability, for all these things we want to thank you from the bottom of our hearts.

May God richly bless you both on this very special occasion and may he so will that you may long be spared to enjoy the fruits of your labor of love.

As a token of our esteem please accept these small gifts in grateful appreciation of your loving family, The Family.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis were each presented with a gift of jewelry from the family. Mrs. Norris Kilson, (Eleanor) made the presentation.

Timely Notes On Fur Farming

Last week two major retail fur fashion events were staged in Montreal by Henry Morgan and Co., Ltd., and the T. Eaton Co., Ltd. Eaton's introduced to Montreal the first Canadian made collection of Revillon, Paris, furs.

Following a press luncheon, the furs were modelled daily at the luncheon and at tea time in the store the rest of the week. Jacques Haran, vice president of Revillon, came to Montreal from New York for the occasion. Eaton's have exclusive distribution rights to Revillon-designed furs in Canada. Following Eaton's, Morgan's had a fur fashion tie-up promotion with Rolls-Royce of Canada, Ltd., which is staging a presentation of its new automobiles. They also put on a show of 30 fur garments — mostly EMBA mink, including 10 full lengths, largely Ritter-designed furs — to tie in with the private pre-view party in the store in the evening.

At the semi-annual meeting of the Mutation Mink Breeders' Association held in Chicago, Oct. 11, Arthur MacArthur, Jaynesville, Wis., the president, stated: General production is expected to be less because of excessive heat and resulting higher diseases incidents than usual. During 1954 EMBA produced 350,000 more pelts than during the 1953 season and last year the association sold a total of 1,687,705 pelts and received $46,510,355.60 for an average of $27.80 per pelt or $22.22 better than 1953. Argentas averaged $21.18; Autumn Haze $28.37; Azure $49.76; Cerulean $37.42; Desert Gold $36.77; Jasmine $30.06; Lutetia $40.46 and miscellaneous $17.81. These furs were distributed through American Fur Auctions, Hudson's Bay Co., New York Auction Co., N. Y., New York Auction Co., Minneapolis, and Seattle Fur Exchange, Hudson's Bay Co. handled the largest amount, $20,801,760 with New York Auction Co., N. Y. second with $19,725,351.

By the end of 1955 the Association will have spent over $700,000 for advertising the EMBA trademark, with over $200,000 of this amount devoted to publicizing the new EMBA types. For the past six months of this year over 142 full page ads will have appeared in magazines and other periodicals, 91 of which are European, Canadian and South American.

And here's a tip to merchants and it concerns not 'hiding your light under a bushel.' Littman's fur factories, Milwaukee, Wis., this year will have the largest volume year in its history. Art Littman states that for the past year the store has carried on an aggressive merchandising and advertising campaign promoting medium priced furs as well as mink. 'Our sales will beat by a great margin last year's record and we will continue on a stepped up newspaper advertising campaign. Advertising, he says, always stresses quality at bargain prices. He believes that aggressive advertising and merchandising program backed up by heavy stocks, will continue to pay off in sales.

Farmers Chinchilla Cooperative of America have a double page ad in last week's Women's Wear Daily. It publicizes the fact that advertisements full page and cover page are appearing in Vogue, Harper's Bazaar, Town and Country, The New Yorker, The New York Times Magazine, Gentry, Park Avenue, Social Review, The Social Spectator and Polo Magazine. The headquarters of the above company is Salt Lake City, Utah, and they claim to be the sole producers of Empress chinchilla.

In Ed Gold's column in Women's Wear Daily, appears the following: Still ruling the fur kingdom as expected is mink. Observers seemed impressed with the response at Russek's, Ltd. to a mink stole and cape promotion with garments listed for $795. Pastels were drawing heaviest action but sapphires and very dark skins were accounting for a goodly share of the volume. In a budget department's mink promotion stoles in standard shade at $299 was the most effective item.

Ranchers were told that there would be less dark ranch mink available to the public in the 1955 crop. That was the statement of Dave Loffman, manager of the Great Lakes Mink Association at its annual meeting in the LaSalle Hotel, Chicago. He said that dark ranch mink pelts will be from 5 to 7 1/2 per cent less than the 1954 crop. One of the principal reasons is that more and more of our members are striving for better production of the more highly priced mutants. He estimates that ranchers produce four mutants to one dark mink now that public demand is greatly increased on the former types.

Practically everywhere in the United States mink seems to be the fur. A despatch from St. Louis, Mo., dated Oct. 13 is as follows: Everything else is down but mink is flying high, say fur buyers here with some noting 50 to 60 per cent increases in six months sales period to last year at this time. The accent on color is one of the buyers' reasons for the steady popularity of mink this season, another states. 'There is just not a fur that substitutes for mink'. Special prices on minks heralded in three-quarter and full page advertisements have brought many people pouring into fur departments in St. Louis. One store's mink business is tripled in a 6-day period. Mink is being offered in all styles and departments are carrying large stocks. The classic and pocket stoles are sale leaders priced at $598. Color favorites are silverblue, sapphire and standard ranch mink.

Those who say they can control their drinking habits should be reminded of the fact that every drinker, however seasoned, will sooner or later show depreciated skill and lowered performance.

Pressure for so-called 'social drinking' is frequently strong. It is not always easy to refrain when one's associates are indulging, especially when they make assurances that no harm can come from a mere glass or two.

Rare indeed is it that the person attending a liquor party deliberately plans to get drunk. He simply plans to 'have a few with the boys.' He may drink in moderation, but far too often one drink leads to another, and he falls under the influence of alcohol.

Alcohol is an enemy in disguise, and must be identified as a peculiarly subtle and dangerous foe. Alerting oneself against him requires a strong will and a fervent mind.

W.C.T.U. NOTES

Chaplain (Lieutenant Colonel) Joseph C. Sides, U.S.A.F. Staff Chaplain, Central Air Material Area, writes:

In the days of kings and queens, alcoholic beverages were reserved for royalty. Only on feast days were the rank and file permitted to indulge.

With the rise of popular government, however, people began to think of drinking in terms of human rights. In this way the curse of alcohol has crept into our customs in a surreptitious manner. It has been like inviting a guest considered to be of noble lineage, only to discover him capable of wreaking havoc in the very home to which he was bidden.

This intruder breaks up homes, takes money that is needed to buy food and clothes, impairs efficiency, and ruins careers. It is the greatest single cause of highway accidents. Men who were normally gentle have been known to rape, maim, and manslaughter when under its influence.

to us, to reach many another lovely, milestone on your road of life together.

We beg you now to accept those gifts. May you realize that this shows only in a small degree the high regard we entertain for you, and with this we extend our best wishes for your continuing good health and happiness and pleasant journeying in the years which lie ahead.

Signed on behalf of the friends and relatives of Kingston Community.

An electric blanket, gold satin bound blanket, and two cups and saucers, were presented by Mrs. Whitfield Yeo, Mrs. Edgar Newson, and Mrs. Erroll Green. The Women's Institute presented Mrs. Willis with a life membership pin, an address read by Mrs. Whitfield Yeo and presentation by Mrs. Tyrus Holmes. Mr. and Mrs. Willis received many beautiful individual gifts and cards.

Music for the evening was supplied by Mrs. Everett Holmes, Mr. Heber Campbell and Miss Hilda Gallant. Solo, "Save a Little One," Mr. Davis Ward; Step Dance, Mrs. Myron Holmes; Solo, John Wilfred Gallant; Several Solo Selections by Leo Gallant.

Lunch was served by the Ladies of the community and the remainder of the evening spent in dancing. On Tuesday, Oct. 4, Mrs. Willis was presented with a zippered leather-bound Bible from the Women's Missionary Society of which she is an active member.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis were also honored at a family dinner on Sunday evening, Oct. 9, at the banquet room of the Rendezvous Restaurant, Charlottetown. All the members of the family were able to be present with the exception of the eldest son, Lemuel, Jr., Portland, Oregon, and Mr. Willis' brother, Lemuel, Los Angeles, Calif.

Following the dinner, Charles Willis called on Mrs. John Edwards, (Georgie), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis who read the following address on behalf of the family: Dear Mother and Dad: It is with great joy and thanksgiving that we your sons and daughters, our husbands and wives and your grandchildren gather here this evening to celebrate with you the fiftieth anniversary of your marriage.

God has blessed you with a family of five sons and two daughters, all with our own families now, and we hope that each of us will conduct his or her home in the same way you have conducted yours.
