Not Fussy

(no in need should not refuse Any food that he can use.
—Blacky the Crow.

Reddy Fox and Blacky the Crow have known each other ever since both were just starting out in the Great World. They are not exactly friends, nor are they exactly enemies. More than once Blacky has warned Reddy of danger just in time. In some ways each has much the same problem in living. It is a matter of food. In winter both often go hungry at times. Then each tries to outsmart the other in finding food.

Blacky is not at all fussy about his food. He says so himself. "Caw! Caw! Caw! I can't afford to be fussy," says Blacky. And he speaks truly. Of course he likes some things better than he does others. Everybody does that. But when he can't get what he wants, he takes what he can get. So it is that he manages to live where many others would die. Almost anything that anybody else can eat is food for Blacky. And he can and does eat some things that other people won't eat. Things that have spoiled and smell badly to Blacky will eat if he is hungry enough. Perhaps he hasn't a sense of smell. Or perhaps he just doesn't have the same kind of dislikes that a few other folks have in mind. A bad smell to you or me may not be a bad smell to Blacky at all. No, Blacky isn't fussy.

"I didn't know you liked blueberries," said Blacky.

It is much the same way with Reddy Fox. Of course Reddy likes fresh meat. He likes to catch Mice and birds sometimes. Blacky likes eggs too, but does not get many. Only eggs that are in nests on the ground can Reddy get. So there are times when he enjoys Blacky because Blacky can look through all the trees where most of the nests are.

Blacky was flying over the Old Pasture in the upper part of the Old Pasture the blueberries grow. Looking down Blacky saw something red partly under the blueberry bushes. He guessed that Reddy Fox was there. Of course he wanted to know what Reddy was doing. So he flew down and perched on a big rock in the Old Pasture. From it he could look under the blueberry bushes. Sure enough, Reddy Fox was there. He was stuffing himself with blueberries.

"I didn't know you liked blueberries," said Blacky.

"All kinds of berries," replied Reddy.

"I had an idea you lived altogether on meat and fish, things that you have to catch," said Blacky.

"You ought to know better by this time, Blacky. I eat a lot of other things and I'm not fussy. I like fruit. In summer I like some greens, so I eat a little grass now and then. Now and then I find something good over in Farmer Brown's garden. But when food is scarce I'm not fussy. More than once I've dug down through the snow to get a frozen apple. Most folks would turn up their noses at frozen apples," said Reddy.

"I wouldn't," replied Blacky. He would eat a frozen apple as quickly as Reddy would and for the same reason. They are not fussy. And that is the reason they can live where others can not.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East

3 ♦	Pass	3 NT	Pass

Opening lead—king of clubs.

Some slams have to be bid without positive knowledge that they will turn out to be good contracts. Science is cast to the winds where they are no means at hand to secure necessary information.

Take this hand (who wouldn't?) where South bid a slam single-handed. North's two negative responses to the game-forcing two bid made it clear there was a club loser to begin with.

There was also a possible diamond loser, but no practical way to learn whether it would be lost North's hand, on the bidding might have included the jack of diamonds, or might have contained one, two, or four diamons, any of which would make a slam contract worthwhile. All in all, the odds heavily favored under taking a slam. So South bid it.

West won the club lead and shifted to the ace of spades which was trumped. The shift was correct. Its purpose was to expose declarer's distribution on that East would be in position to know which suits to guard if declarer ran all his trumps.

Declarer, however, played the hand to the best advantage, and the question of discarding never came up. South drew one round of trump, cashed the K-Q of diamonds, ruffed the ten in dummy, and thus made twelve tricks.

It may be argued that South ran a risk in cashing three high diamonds while there was a trump outstanding, but such argument would be unsound.

If declarer runs all his trumps, he is subject to defeat if the diamonds do not break 3 - 3 or the Jack does not fall. In the actual hand he would be defeated.

South's method of play makes the contract if it can be made. If a high diamond is ruffed, it means the contract was doomed even if the trumps had been drawn. The best chance, therefore, is to hope that the defender with the diamond stopper also has the nine of hearts, in which case the slam is made even though diamonds do not break favorably.

See Hope For Break In Disarmament Deadlock

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Hopes rose today for a break in the disarmament deadlock Russia and the West were reported to have taken the brunt of the more favorable—look at India's compromise plan aimed at reviving the stalled arms talks.

Both sides conferred with Indian delegate V. K. Krishna Menon. Menon wants to almost double the size of the disarmament commission to try to get Russia to drop her threat to boycott the 12-nation body and its five-nation subcommittee.

Both Russia and the West brushed off India's plan two days ago.

Informed sources said the Western powers, bolstered by the strong UN endorsement Wednesday for their call for new disarmament talks, now fell the Indian proposal might serve as a test of whether Russia really wants to negotiate.

Russia apparently saw the plan as a face-saving way to retreat from her boycott threat and satisfy her demand that the disarmament machinery be expanded. The UN political committee defeated her proposal that all 82 UN members be included in the arms talks, but some observers figured that demand was a bargaining manoeuvre designed to get a smaller increase.

10 MORE MEMBERS

Menon's plan would enlarge the commission by some 10 members, including representatives of Eastern and Western Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America.

Presumably the new commission would decide on the enlargement of its own subcommittee, which has carried the brunt of the arms negotiations. Russia's main complaint has been that the subcommittee was stacked 4 to 1 against her. The United States, Britain, France and Canada are the other members.

Canada already has made plain she is willing to see the commission enlarged.

The Indians intend to bring their plan before the General Assembly when it acts on the disarmament resolutions passed this week by the 82-nation political committee.

Lump Sum Is Still Taxable

OTTAWA (CP)—The Exchequer Court of Canada ruled Thursday that an inducement paid to an executive to leave one company and join another is taxable income.

Mr. Justice Jacques Dumoulin handed down the judgment in the appeal of Robert B. Curran who received $250,000 in 1951 to leave his post as manager of exploration and production for Imperial Oil Limited in Western Canada and join Home Oil Limited as president and general manager.

The appeal was heard in Calgary after the income tax appeal board ruled in May, 1956 that the inducement was taxable.

It was learned that perhaps as much as $100,000 of the amount will be collected as taxes.

The decision can be appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

WINDOW UP, TOT DIES

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Lucinda Lynn Howell, 23 months, was strangled Sunday night when her mother rolled up the window of an automobile without looking. The little girl had stuck her head out the window and doctors said the top of the glass caught her windpipe and vocal cords.

Project To Boost Hydro Development In Labrador

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The British Newfoundland Corporation says it is ready to begin development of hydro power at Hamilton Falls, Labrador, on short notice.

A. W. Southam, Brinco's managing director, says in a statement the development would be "one of the largest single hydro-electric projects in the world."

"The stage has now been reached when it is possible to place before prospective consumers practical facts and figures regarding the power available, its cost and the time of development."

He says the corporation must find buyers for close to 1,000,000 horsepower. Industrial consumers are still restricted because the country is relatively undeveloped but industrial users need not be the first customers.

"The power requirements of existing public utility companies in Eastern Canada are increasing rapidly and development of the Hamilton could satisfy a very large part of their demands."

"At present Canada has installed hydro capacity of upwards of 20,000,000 horsepower. Full development of Hamilton Falls would increase this capacity by 20 per cent, and the effect of this addition of cheap power would be a great step forward in the development of Canada's economy."

This summer Brinco completed

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
