

Declares Gov't. Should Have Aided Island Co-op Services

"Substantial government loans saved the wheat pools of the West some years ago and I believe the government of Prince Edward Island was very shortsighted in permitting the Island Co-Op Services to go down the drain," said Mr. Ralph Staples, president of the Co-operative Union of Canada, Ottawa, in addressing the annual dinner of the Producers Co-Op Association Ltd. of this Province last night.

The speaker said that presumably the government did this because there was insufficient co-operative strength brought to bear and perhaps this indicated a lack of unity in co-op services in Canada. "My view is that the co-op movement is indivisible," he said. In support of his view that governments should support Co-ops he quoted from a report of the International Labor Organization that all possible measures should be taken to promote relations between governments and co-ops with the governments making financial aid available.

Alberta's CCF Head Explains His Views On Soviet System

EDMONTON (CP) - William Irvine, Alberta CCF president just back from a European tour, says that when he remarked the Supreme Soviet had a "democratic nature matched by few Parliaments" he was referring to its handling of one particular piece of legislation.

Mr. Irvine said the Russian administration distributed a pension bill through the country two months before it was introduced in the Supreme Soviet. This had permitted free discussion by the people and an opportunity to make recommendations for changes in the legislation.

He said Tass, the official Russian news agency, quoted him correctly on this point but that Reuters, in a translation from the Russian, had given a wrong interpretation.

A July 19 Reuters story quoted Mr. Irvine as saying in an interview with the Bell Telephone Co. and then on Test Department with the Canadian General Electric Co.

He went to Edmonton where he was employed as Construction Resident Engineer with the C.N. Railways. He went overseas in World War I with a Highland Brigade, returned to Charlottetown for Convalescence and then went to Montreal and took a refresher course in electricity, attending Montreal Technical College.
