THE DAILY EXAMINER.

JUNE 2, 1881.

Agricultural Advancement.

We do not agree with all that our correspondent "Observer" writes. But we cordially second what he says about the importance of advancing our agricultural interests. In the neighboring Provinces, their mining and manufacturing interests are being rapidly developed; and the Island should make for itself such a name in agriculture that will, in the future, be looked to as the best source of food supply for their miners and artizans. We have noticed that the farmer who makes a point of raising good things, never fails, at one time of the year or other, to sell his surplus produce at good prices; and if all the farmers in the Island would make a point of raising good things, we believe all would prosper. The idea of reviving the old Agricultural Society and forming Farmers' Clubs throughout the country, though not new, is good; and we hope it will be carried out. Measures might then be taken to prevent the shame and disgrace of exporting thoroughbred animals which are better for breeding purposes than for beef.

The Halifax Deep Water Terminus

By a telegram to the St. John Telegraph it appears that the people of Halifax "seem to be in a fair way to obtain the most admirable facilities for the shipment of grain at their port. A considerable area of dockyard property appears to have been secured from the Imperial authorities and, as soon as the Halifax Common Council shall have granted the right of way through Water street, the work will go on, and that city will possess a deep water terminus of the best description. That, together with the Grain Elevator, which is to be erected at a large cost, will leave nothing to be desired in the way of shipping facilities, and the question will soon be decided in a practical manner whether Halifax can compete with New York and Baltimore in the shipment of grain to Europe. Halifax, which rejoices in subsidized lines of ocean steamers, to which it is to add a Brazilian line, is to be congratulated on the energy with which its demands are pressed and the success which attends its applications to the Dominion Government."

A Parliamentary "Scene."

A London correspondent says that there seems to be some danger that the members of the House of Commons may fall into the pugnacious as well as the noisy habits of the French deputies. There was recently a wordy encounter between Lord Randolph Churchill and the Marquis of Hartington over the alleged cutting down of Sir Frederick Roberts' reward for his services in Afghanistan from £20,000 to £12,000, which attracted much comment. The Marquis of Hartington, amid the vehement cheers of his followers, denounced Lord Randolph Churchill for making dishonorable insinuations, based on a paragraph published in a paper noted for calumnies and lying statements. The noble Marquis' manner while making his reply was as bellicose and insulting as his words. It was felt by all who witnessed the scene that the Marquis of Hartington had over-stepped the limits of the privilege of debate. Lord Randolph Churchill took this view, and feeling outraged in his honor resolved to demand satisfaction according to the code. It has now transpired that he sent his friends to the Marquis of Hartington with a demand that a written assurance should be given him that the words "calumnious and lying" were not directed at him. The alternative was "pistols and coffee." After some parley the Marquis of Hartington agreed to write a letter in which he stated that the offensive words were not intended to apply to Lord Randolph Churchill.

Prospective General Elections.

It is reported that the English Conservatives are already beginning to prepare for the battle which they hope is imminent, through the expected rejection of the Irish Land Bill by the Lords. They have largely circulated two electioneering "skits." One is in the shape of a large auction bill, "For sale by public auction, without reserve; W. E. Gladstone, licensed auctioneer." The bill proceeds to describe in humorous language the various portions of the British Empire, and among the miscellaneous lot is an old throne, to which some historic traditions still cling. Another lengthy document which has been circulated among the electors at Preston and one or two other constituencies where elections are pending, is a bill from the Portuguese residents in Bombay to have the Presidency handed over to them. The bill is introduced by an eloquent expression of the joy with which the glad tidings of the restoration of Afghanistan to the Afghans and the Transvaal to the Boers was received as an act of splendid moral courage that has reawakened hopes that had slumbered in the breasts of the Portuguese for 200 years. "By fraud and force England has built up an empire on which the sun never sets, but happily for the country she has a Minister now in power who knows how to take occasion by the hand. Mr. Gladstone knows that the sun of England's grandeur has now set, but he has resolved that he will raise his country to a height of moral grandeur by magnanimously granting independence to the subject states and races." This is very good fooling for electioneering purposes, if it be true that the Indian and South African policy of the Government is eminently unpopular with the country at large.

Prince of Wales College and Normal School.

ANNUAL EXAMINATION.

The annual examination of the students attending Prince of Wales College and Normal School was held to-day.

At half-past nine o'clock the young men "fell into line" on the grounds of the College, and during half an hour went very creditably through a variety of military evolutions, in which they have recently received instructions from Sergt. Major McDougall. They then formed "four deep" and marched to Y. M. C. A Hall. The young ladies and the Professors of the College found their way to the same place as ordinary civilians; and a large number of spectators, both ladies and gentlemen, were soon in attendance. Among the latter were His Lordship the Chief Justice (who presided over the examination) Senator Haythorne, Hon. A. A. McDonald, Rev. Mr. McLeod of Zion Church, Donald Montgomery, Esq., Superintendent of Education, Henry Lawson, Esq., Editor of the Patriot, many of the teachers of the City Schools and others holding public positions.

THE EXERCISES.

The exercises began with teaching by the student teachers. Miss E. Lawson, Miss May Fraser and Mr Judson taught, not with the air of practical teachers, but in a way which promises future success in the schoolroom.

Then followed exercises in Greek, Latin, History, and other subjects of study. It is to be regretted that the answers of many of the students could not be heard. The cause, doubtless, was the acoustic defects of the Hall, and there should, we think, be a small hall, suitable for such purposes in connection with the College. Those who sat near enough to hear, and were capable of judging expressed themselves well pleased with the manner in which the students stood the test.

Readings from essays by the students, and from Shakespeare brought the examination to a close.

Professor Anderson then made a few remarks. He said the past year was one of great pleasure, as well as hard work, to the Professors, and he believed to the students also. The attendance and conduct of the school had been satisfactory, and in point of ability the school was fully up to its standard of any previous year. We regret that we have not space for an extended report of what he said.

The Chief Justice distributed the prizes:

The spirit in which the strikes, in various industries, have been carried on, shows a great improvement upon former perturbations in the labor market. There has been no violence, in any part of Canada, and in most instances the demands made, have not been unreasonable. A spirit of accommodation has been shown on both sides, on which both employers and employed are to be congratulated.—Monetary Times.

Two returning exodians on their way home from Denver, passed over the Intercolonial two or three days ago. They bring doleful accounts of their experiences in the country which their family newspapers had taught them to believe was so much better than Protection cursed Canada, and they are likely to be contented here for the rest of their natural lives. They say that many others are anxious to get back and that no one who has been there will advise his friends to go. They think it a first class place for Canadians to stay away from.—Moncton Times
