GENOVA, Italy, Oct. 12 —(AP)—A torch-bearing Genoese bore a silver urn, said to contain Christopher Columbus' ashes, through this town of his birth before dawn today. The procession opened a fifth-centennial celebration in honor of the famed voyager, which is to last an entire year.

LONDON, Oct. 12 —(AP)—A network of steel scaffolding five storeys high crashed on a busy London street killing one person, injuring at least nine others and smashing six automobiles. The scaffolding was being used by workmen repairing three buildings damaged in the war.

A Public Service Is A Public Trust

As pharmacists, our chief interest is always the health and well-being of this community. That is why certain drugs and narcotics—vitaly important when needed—have been entrusted to us by law; we are responsible to the community for their safe-keeping. Never, under any circumstances, will we dispense these drugs without a written order from a physician known to us. To do otherwise would be contrary to the interest of public health and a violation of the trust reposed in us. Our Certificate of Registration and the professional ethics it represents are not for sale at any price.

— Mrs. J.N. Smythe was a recent guest at the Holman home-stand in Summerside.

Rev. and Mrs. W.J. Phillips and Mrs. Herbert Champion have returned from a very pleasant motor trip to points in Quebec, Ontario and New York.

Mrs. J.C. Matthews is visiting her sister, Mrs. Allan Bishop, in Dorchester, N.B.

Dr. Gerald Keefe is making good progress toward recovery from recent accident and hopes to resume his dental practice within the next few weeks.

Mrs. Edward Thompson had the misfortune to fall part way down the stairs at her home Saturday afternoon. She was taken to the Western Hospital where it was found she had suffered a fractured pelvis.

Mrs. Norman Oliver was hostess to the October meeting of the Presbyterian W.M.S. Opening devotions were led by Mrs. Howard Clark, assisted by Mrs. F.J. Carpenter and Miss Margaret Forsyth. A missionary quiz was conducted by Mrs. David Hodgson, who also read a chapter from the study book. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Helen Kerr, with Miss Margaret Forsyth leading the worship and Mrs. W.C. Lawson presenting the study.

The United Church Guild met at the home of Mrs. Arthur Wilkie. Mrs. J.A. Laforgue presided and Mrs. H.D. Corbett led the worship. The visiting committee reported three calls. There was some discussion regarding new collars for the choir gowns. Mention was also made of the need of vases for the church. Mrs. Arthur Wilkie and Mrs. Gordon Coffin were reappointed to the visiting committee. The birthday meeting of the Guild will be held at the home of Mrs. Gordon Coffin with Mrs. H.D. Corbett as joint hostess. Devotions will be led by Mrs. Heber Hardy and Miss Beth Waugh will have charge of the program. During the social hour two interesting contests were enjoyed. Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Miss Shirley McArthur.

At the Rally Day service in the Presbyterian Sunday School certificates for recitation of the Shorter Catechism were presented to Kay Lockerby; and for recitation of the Primary Catechism and the Primary Memory Course to Evelyn and Dean Carpenter. The theme of the service was, "I Will Build My Church." Scripture portions were read by Lorraine Campbell and Helen McCabe; recitations were given by Raeburn Matthews, Bobby Horne and Marion Gard. The offering was received by Dean Carpenter and dedicated by Mary Ellen Skerry.

WARNER'S "COLT 45", IN TECHNICOLOR

"Colt 45", one of the most important Western drama films produced by Warner Bros. in recent years, begins its local engagement today at the Capitol Theatre.

Directed in Technicolor and starring Randolph Scott and Ruth Roman, and featuring also Zachary Scott, "Colt 45" is the story of the six-shooter, the first weapon that came into the west with the forces of law and order. Up until that time, men fired single shot guns.

Randolph Scott plays the role of a Colt salesman who brings two pairs of the weapons to a certain town in Wyoming. When one set is stolen by outlaw chief Zachary Scott, it falls to Randolph to buckle on a pair of the fast-firing "equalizers" and go after the bandits.

How he succeeds forms the greater part of the new action film. Indians appear throughout the film, this time on the side of the law as R. Scott erlists their aid to stalk the lawless gang.

In the middle of all the hard riding and shooting comes the lovely Ruth Roman, one of Hollywood's most rapidly-rising stars. As the wife of one of the outlaws, she has more than her share of the action in the story, but finally goes over to the lawful side as personified by the handsome Randolph Scott.

ness until they turn a pinprick into a mortal wound, and they are never so happy as when they are utterly miserable.

WOMEN WORST OFFENDERS

Women are far more addicted to self-pity than men are and their indulgence in this lachrymose diversion goes far to explain many strange quirks in the feminine temperament. It explains, for one thing, why women take even their pleasures sadly, why it is almost impossible to get one to let herself go and enter into the hilarious fun of any festive occasion.

Everything at the moment may be auspicious. She may not have a care in the world or a cloud in the sky. But she is sad because she is thinking how terrible it would be if all this pleasant existence was taken away from her and everybody she loved would die; that she would lose her money and she would be poor and lonely in her old age. Men can never understand why women burst into tears when something particularly nice happens to them. It is because they are happiest when they weep.

All of us know ghoulish women who have feasted on the funeral baked meats of a sorrow for half a lifetime. They "never got over" some grief that befell them in their youth. We know old maids who retired from the world when they were jilted by a faithless sweetheart. Wives who have worn mourning for forty years for their dead husbands. Mothers who have spent their lives grieving over the babe they lost.

These women have made a fetish of grief and, strange as it seems, they have found a morbid consolation and comfort in pitying themselves and dwelling upon their broken hearts and thinking how forlorn and desolate they were.

PITY THE LISTENERS

Most of us have rheumatism in our shoulder from having had it wept upon by unhappy wives who had husbands who were philanderers or drunkards or grouches or tightwads or who had many and many is the hour we have spent listening to the tales of woe of women who told of the cruelty of husbands who beat them or of lazy husbands who wouldn't support them and the children or of husbands who spent the money that should have bought milk for the baby on a blonde. It is a sad story, sisters, and we have mingled our tears without stint with those of the afflicted ladies.

But did you ever try to get one of these unhappy wives to do something about it and leave the husband who so misused her? And when you did, did you ever find one of them who was willing to part with her cross? Never. And then it slowly dawned on you that your sympathy was wasted and that the unhappy wife was having the time of her life in pitying herself, and talking about her troubles and being an object of sympathy. She had a real grievance and she was going to make the most of it. And keep it.

The mania women have for self-pity, however, finds its worst expression in the mothers who sacrifice their children to it. They pose as martyrs and talk about what they have suffered for their children, how hard they have worked for them, how ungrateful children are and how they have left their poor, lonely, old mothers to go off and get married or to go into business and how they would think that there wasn't a happy mother in the world. Nor one that enjoyed her children nor a decent son and daughter extant.

Perhaps in a world that is filled with trouble it is lucky for us that we can get happiness out of our unhappiness. Anyway, we surely do have a grand time pitying ourselves.

DOROTHY DIX cannot reply personally to readers but will answer problems of general interest through her column.
