OTTAWA CORRESPONDENCE.

In Supply, the other day, Mr. Perry made a strong appeal for justice to Prince County in the matter of public works, instancing Brae Breakwater, West Point wharf, Miminigash breakwater, Tignish harbor, Kier's shore wharf, Malpeque breakwater, Cascumpeque harbor,—all requiring more or less attention. Mr. Perry did not forget to pay attention to Lieutenant-Governor Howlan, and his remarks would have been in better taste if he had omitted his allusions to this gentleman.

Mr. Ouimet replied that $500 dollars would complete the work undertaken at Miminigash, and that engineers would be sent to Tignish during the summer.

On the vote of $14,200 for Wood Islands breakwater, Mr. Davies took occasion to express his satisfaction with the manner in which the department has dealt with that work of late, and the contract had been let so as to ensure the people a commodious and free harbor. A fair trial was being made, and it was being carried out in the only way that could be done. Mr. Davies enquired how it was proposed to expend the $3000 for North Rustico,—was it to extend the work ?

Mr. Ouimet replied that it was proposed to construct 70 feet of work which had been destroyed by storms, and also to make a heading 30ft by 60. The work will be cribwork, and will be secured to the rock and loaded with stone and bolted to the rock. If the rock cannot be reached, the whole work will be bolted with iron bars.

A few days ago Mr. Perry moved for a return showing the particulars of the iceboat service at the Capes last winter. He reviewed the whole winter service ever since Confederation and complained that the Government was not keeping pace with the times in this age of progress. The Stanley had been of very little use last winter. The Georgetown and Pictou route he considered the very worst route, and he believed that if the steamer service were used between the Capes in conjunction with the ice-boats, there would not be a day when crossing could not be effected. In proof of this he quoted a letter from Mr. Strang, published in THE EXAMINER last April. Mr. Perry also referred to a proposition of Mr. Richard Hunt to run the Stanley between Summerside and Cape Tormentine, and to Dr. Bertram's offer to carry on communication by West Point and Richibucto. He would not undertake to say which was the best route, but he thought the Government should next winter send competent engineers to examine and report as to the possibility of contriving a scheme more satisfactory than the present one. Then Mr. Perry referred to the subway and the tunnel and Sir John Macdonald's letter and Sir Charles Tupper's telegram before the election of 1881, and the various addresses of the Island Legislature and the mission of Messrs. Sullivan and Ferguson to Downing Street, and back to ice-boats again, which he objected to crossing on because he was put on board "the same as a carcass."

Mr. Josiah Wood, of Sackville, expressed the pleasure with which he had listened to Mr. Perry, although many of his remarks were not closely connected with the subject. Mr. Wood corroborated Mr. Strang's views, and said it was the universal opinion around Cape Tormentine that the Stanley, or a vessel of her power, could maintain almost unbroken communication between the Capes during the winter season. Mr. Wood then discussed the conditions between the Capes, the narrow width, the tides, the current, and the fact that solid ice-packs seldom form, and never for longer than one or two days. He thought the Government would be justified in trying the experiment of putting the steamer on there. Referring to the tunnel, he approved of the borings being proceeded with. Mr. Wood then proceeded to speak of the summer service. He saw the Government had for some years been expending money, with a view to establishing a summer ferry at the Capes, and giving the Island a mail twice a day instead of once, and making better and close connections with the I. C. R., and avoiding the delays which now take place. A wharf had been built at Cape Tormentine and another at Cape Traverse, but unfortunately the latter was useless at present on account of the accumulation of sand, so that not even a steamer of light draught could approach it. If this condition of things did not exist, a steamer would be plying there this season. A company came to Ottawa early in the session purposely to make an offer to put a steamer on that route, and to run her twice a day in summer for a comparatively small subsidy. When they learned that there was a difficulty in regard to the Cape Traverse wharf, they stipulated that the government should guarantee sufficient water for the steamer. This, of course, the government could not do, and the proposal fell through. He wished to impress on the government that, in view of the fact that 10 or 15 years must elapse before the tunnel could be completed and open for traffic, they should take steps, in the meantime to give the Island people communication by summer ferry at the Capes. By improving the present wharf, or building one at another point, the Island could obtain, so far as mails and passengers are concerned, a very much improved service over what they have at present.

Mr. Davies considered that a tunnel to be of any service at all, should be of a size that would cost 15 to 20 millions at least. Catechized by Sir Hibbert Tupper, Mr. Davies said that he was not opposed to the tunnel—he had not expressed any opinion—neither would he say it was feasible, as he was not a scientist; but the Government had been playing with this question for years, and were making political capital out of it by spending a few thousands a year; but they have no intention of building the tunnel as they have shown by their acts. There were difficulties in the way of adopting the capes-route for steam service. Competent persons had expressed the opinion that it would cost $100,000 to construct anything like a harbor on the Island side, which would enable a steamer to make permanent crossings.

Later on, in committee of supply, Mr. Ouimet gave the results of the dredging operations which had been carried on at Cape Traverse wharf. He said that dredging had been made last summer to ascertain if a berth could be obtained of sufficient depth for one or two steamers, drawing 12 feet of water. It had been dredged to about 13 feet, a survey was made, a plan prepared, and the work was done in June. Then a survey was made in December, another in January, and another since, with the result that the place is just in the same state now that it was before the dredging was done.

Mr. Davies considered that proof sufficient that no dock could be built there for a steamer by merely dredging. That was generally believed before the attempt was made, and now it was known to be a fact. Therefore, before a steamer could run, a wharf must be built out into deep water.

Mr. Ouimet said a survey had been made at Carleton Point, and a report prepared, which he would lay before the House, so as to decide whether there should be a ferry, or whether the scheme should be abandoned. The cost of the work proposed by the engineer reached about half a million, but after studying the whole question, and making some changes, he had arrived at the conclusion that possibly $300,000 would give proper accommodation on the Island side.

Mr. Davies thought $300,000 would go a short way. The Cape Tormentine wharf required a large sum to put it in repair. Mr. Davies did not believe in building an artificial harbour when there were several natural harbours of excellent character already existing.

Then the discussion drifted into the operation of the dredge. Mr. Davies wanted it sent to Wood Islands. Mr. Ouimet said when the breakwater was completed some dredging would be required there, and if there was time during the summer or fall, it would be sent there.

Mr. McLean explained that the dredge was now at Grand River, but is required at Annandale, where he trusted it would be sent at an early day. Cardigan also required dredging, as well as Murray River.

Mr. Perry then made a jocular speech.

Mr. A. C. Macdonald recommended that the dredge which had been employed at Cape Traverse should be sent to Wood Islands, as it could do much more effective work than the Prince Edward. Referring to Mr. Perry's remarks, Mr. Macdonald said that all the shipments at Summerside should not go the credit of Prince County, as it is the shipping port for much of the produce of the other two countries. He further stated that no port on the Island, not even Summerside or Charlottetown, shipped as much produce as Montague, considering that all the freight from that port is hauled there by the farmers in their carts, from the surrounding country. They had no railway accommodation, and no place to draw from except the surrounding country; yet there were more vessels loaded there in the course of a season than in any other port on the Island. Grand River was also a place of growing importance, where fishing was carried on successfully.

In the return of unclaimed moneys remaining in Canadian banks, which have been lying there for five years and upwards before 31st December last, I find the following Island names :

In Bank of Nova Scotia—E. Archibald, Ch'town, $16.22, since 28th April, 1879; Angus Beaton, East Point, 4 cents; P. J. Cahill, Summerside, 23 cents; J. H. Cummiskey, Fort Augustus, 6 cents; P. The Chief Justice delivered an able address to the Grand Jury. Before closing his charge His Lordship referred in feeling terms to the death of the late Judge Hensley. We have never heard a more graceful tribute paid the dead. In a few words the late Judge's life was pictured, and the value of the man as a Christian Judge and an upright citizen portrayed. The loss sustained by the late Judge's colleagues on the Bench was also referred to by His Lordship, and the valuable labors of a Judge who occupied a seat on the Bench for nearly 25 years. His Lordship said, in conclusion, that there was no doubt but the honorable gentleman who had been appointed by the Dominion of Canada to succeed the late Judge would in every respect be a worthy successor.

Wm. Joseph O'Donnell, of Miscouche, on petition read by Mr. McLean, obtained the usual order of the Court for examination to be admitted a student at law.

Yet it pays the buyer and seller to pay cash. Yes, our trade, as a consequence, has not diminished by any means, but is surely growing, as it should be. LYONS, June 26.

Lyons, last evening, was varied by alternate periods of perfect quiet and intense excitement. Early in the evening mobs burned down the Italian grocery in Rue Cuvier and the Italian Musical Society's Hall in Rue Magenod. The mob was then dispersed by the police.

The police have succeeded in obtaining the following information in regard to the movements of the assassin Santo: After leaving Italy he lived at different towns in Lauranne and in Geneva, Switzerland, and afterwards in Lyons. From this city he went to Celte, France, where he spent last year working as a baker. He reached Lyons from Celte on Sunday evening. He was unknown to the police of Celte as a militant anarchist. He was a great reader and outspoken only when arch theories were discussed.
