Lambert and James may insight riots and protests at places like Dal but at UPEI they had the place rockin' because we know how to have a good time. Dal actually banned this act but that kind of protest only adds more comedy material for Lambert and James' act.

The day after this dynamic duo was marched on at Dal campus they were met with a wild and crazy party crowd from UPEI. Saturday night at the darn was the time for great tunes, good drinks, friends, and a few laughs. The audience was thoroughly into the great old songs like American Pie. Lambert and James made a few remarks about the reception they got from Dal but UPEI's showed them real appritiation and the team said this of UPEI, "Great crowd, always welcome at the Barn and we would like to come back to work for at least three days. One to work and tow to get drunk!"

Saturday events don't always pack in a lot of people and with all other events like the Co-ed going on I was surprised at the large large crowd that was rocking at the Barn. This is the second time I've seen Lambert and James here on campus. Some of the material is the same but it is as funny and entertaining as ever! I give this event 4 out of 4 panther paws for great beer drinking tunes and lots of laughs!

Lambert and James: A real Riot

by:Terri Lyn Hall

The Panther Lounge was filled Saturday night with people anxiously awaiting the beginning of Lambert and James. The performance started at ten o'clock and admission was $2.00. Everyone showed up early because the performance was advertised as starting at nine o'clock.

The act lasted about two hours and a half with a short break in the middle. Rumour has it that this act was banned from Dalhousie University in Nova Scotia for making a series of jokes about homosexuals. It appears as though Lambert and James have cut down on these jokes only to add in more jokes about the Dal protestors.

Lambert and James drew many laughs and shouts in response to their jokes and derogatory comments (You guys and girls in the corner know what I mean, right Kelley?) . However their offensive language couple with easy going appearance brought a very positive attitude as the swearing was comical in use.

Audience participation was very good. Lambert and James kept communication going by playing songs which everyone was getting into by singing, clapping, and shouting. They were not only funny but they were also very skilled musicians on the guitar. They played songs by such groups as The Eagles and Led Zepplin.

A good time was had by all!!! UPEI pulls off another successful event!!!

I give it four Panther Paws, Two for Lambert and two for James.

Discrimination: Comedy Duo Not So Funny, Met With Demo

(Source: Atlantic bureau, the Picaro)

HALIFAX (CUP) - Students at Mount St. Vincent University welcomed the comedy team Lambert and James on campus with waving placards.

"Who does our student council think they represent if they are inviting this 'comedy' team to spew out hatred for non-white, none-male people?" asked student Michelle Case, who considers the duo's material offensive.

The women's studies society organized the February 10 protest after a motion to ban Lambert and James from the campus was defeated by one vote at a recent student council meeting.

Rob Holden, council entertainment director, was reluctant to cancel because a contract was signed. The council would lose $350 if the act was banned.

Said council vice president external Cheryl MacKenzie, "I'd rather spend the $350, honour their contract and have them not play. They're vulgar and rude." Councillor Naomi Martin added, "How can we sponsor events that promote hatred, yet at the same time develop an AIDS policy?"

"I've probably had 50 people ask me why Lambert and James haven't played in the Pub this year," said Holden. "I haven't heard any complaints about them until now."

Council member Jan Thomas voted against the ban. "I was very offended by the movie the Last Temptation of Christ and some people don't like Eddie Murphy, yet they're not banned," said Thomas. "There will be people at the Mount who will enjoy Lambert and James."

Editor's Note: One female councillor from UPEI said, "I cannot speak for everyone on Council, but it seemed that the councillors that were there enjoyed it. No one seemed to find the material offensive. And I, myself, thought that the comedy duo was great. I thought they were funny."
