

Emperor Franz Joseph Happy Days Recalled

IDA BAILEY ALLEN
"While you and I are preparing dinner, Madame Godowsky," said the Chef, "may we have a little background music to set mood? Some of the piano recordings of your illustrious father, M. Leopold Godowsky, would be nice."

HAPPY CHILDHOOD
"It was no wonder your father was chosen as court musician to Emperor Franz Joseph," the Chef added. "You must have enjoyed your childhood in Vienna."

"It was like a dream world, Monsieur le Chef. Especially the Sunday dinners—the long table laid with white damask, the gleaming silver, my mother's beautiful china and crystal, the gay guests."

"Just such a dinner I have planned tonight for Mrs. Allen and you."

Viennese Sunday dinner: Cherry soup with sour cream, chicken paprika, risi-bisi, carrots with chopped dill, cucumber salad, Viennese walnut noodles, coffee.

At dinner we chatted about Dagmar Godowsky's delightful new book, First Person Plural. It is gay, heart-breaking, humorous and breath-taking.

LOVES GOOD FOOD
"Always I have loved good food," she observed.

"In travels with my father and the family, I became acquainted with the International cuisine. In Hollywood, when I was leading lady to Valentino, the supper parties were fabulous."

"When I was writing my book I ate twice as much as usual," she added ruefully. "It was an escape from the nervous strain."

Viennese recipe courtesy Dagmar Godowsky.
Cherry soup: Drain 2 cans water-packed pitted sour cherries. Mix 1 c. sugar, 4 tsp. cornstarch and ½ tsp. each cinnamon, nutmeg and salt. Stir in the cherry juice; cook until the mixture boils. Add the cherries. Serve hot or cold in cups, with sour cream as the garnish.

Risi-Bisi: Heat 4 c. cooked rice pilaf and 4 c. cooked green peas and plenty of butter.

Viennese Walnut Noodles: In 1 lb. hot cooked noodles, toss 4 tsp. melted butter, ½ c. granulated sugar mixed with 1 tsp. cinnamon, and 1 c. fine-chopped walnuts. Serve at once.

SPRING INTERLUDE
"What is your favorite salad, Dagmar?" I asked.
"My 'Spring Lovelies.' Very good for the waitline."
Tomorrow's dinner: Chilled vegetable juice, broiled shad or bass, fines herbes, potatoes creamed with green beans, spring lovelies salad, peach cus-ard, coffee, tea, milk.

Spring lovelies salad: Into a boat-shaped salad bowl, Dagmar heaped pieces of crisp lettuce, curly endive and tender spinach; then a toss with vinaigrette dressing.

"Now come the lovelies," she said, diving into the refrigerator, "lovely because they fill up the hunger chinks."

On top of the salad she arranged, in sections, radish roses, green-rimmed cucumbers, sections of tomatoes, crisp green scallions.

THE JEWELLED TOUCH

Costume jewelry provides an excellent means of individualizing the stark lines of current clothes, and of giving the design dimension as well as softness. The tasseled rope is one way to enhance the shift, Vendome does a long double strand of milky pearls, punctuated periodically with trills of pale-tinted crystals. A single huge baroque pearl pendant in a cone of rhinestones hangs from the necklace just above an unmarked waistline.
