About 50 stalwart Scotsmen last evening attended the St. Andrews Day banquet in Summerside which will continue to be an annual event.

With Pipe Major Sgt. Sandy MacQueen piping the Haggis as was carried on the brawny arm of clansman Jack Mungall, and addressed in the traditional manner by Jack Hopkirk.

The toast to "The day and all who honor it" was proposed by Dr. A. R. Grant who said that the names of Scotsmen are engraved on the milestones of progress in every field of endeavour in the traditional manner.

Response to the toast, and the main address, was made by Chief Justice Thane A. Campbell, who noted the cross of St. Andrew took its design from the shape of the cross used in the crucifixion of the disciple St. Andrew, who was later chosen as the patron saint of Scotland.

Chief Justice Campbell referred to the renewed interest in Scottish culture during the past six years in the Maritimes and in Canada, and said he believed that the Gaelic College in St. Anne's in Cape Breton played a prominent part in the inspiration of this renewed interest in history. Chief Justice Campbell noted that at the present time eight of the ten lieutenant governors bear names of Scottish origin.

Seasonal Benefits Easing Will Help 1500 In Prince

An extension of seasonal benefits paid to unemployed will be of direct benefit to some 1500 persons in Prince County it was learned from Earl Cannon, manager of the Summerside office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

The new period for seasonal benefits will begin the first of December instead of January and will end on the 15th of May instead of in April as previously.

The new extension of benefits was announced in the House of Commons on Wednesday by Labor minister Michael Starr, and extends the payment period and makes the system more favorable to the applicants in that they were able to qualify for a longer period of benefit.

Under the old system the benefit for receipt of seasonal benefits was 10 weeks minimum, and 16 weeks maximum. The new plan increases these to a minimum of 12, and a maximum of 24 weeks.

TWO CLASSES

In explaining that there are two classes of seasonal benefits Cannon said that to qualify under Class "A" anyone who has had a regular benefit period which expired since last April 15th, may qualify for a period of length similar to his or her past benefit period, providing it does not exceed the December to May seasonal benefit period.

To qualify for Group "B" anyone who has had 15 weekly contributions since the 31st of last March may qualify and receive five weeks benefits for each six weeks contributions, to a maximum of the seasonal benefit period.

NO FISHERMEN

The new extension of benefit periods is also applicable to fishermen. Cannon said, "Next month fishermen will, for the first time, be eligible to receive unemployment benefits which will represent money."

Manned U.S. Space Ship Possible Within 5 Years

By JOHN A. BARBOUR
NEW YORK (AP)—The United States manned space ship could be blasting off within five years, a U.S. missile scientist said Monday.

He listed this technically possible timetable for space accomplishments:

A manned space station in six to seven years.

First flight around the moon in eight to 10 years.

Kraft A. Ehrliche, one of the scientists working on the Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile, said: "Technically we are capable of having manned orbital globes in five years."

Development of these space ships, he said, depends on such things as support and financing. Speaking of intermediate range ballistic missiles and ICBMs, he said there are three stages of work:

First there is the design and general development stage. Then the missile must be thoroughly flight tested in parts as well as in whole. Finally, personnel must be trained to handle it.

IN FLIGHT STAGE

On the ICBM, he said, it is obvious the U.S. is in the flight stage.

Asked if the production order in ICBMs meant they had completed the flight test stage successfully, he said he could not comment directly since he wasn't working on ICBM programs.

But, he added, production orders usually mean it has been "reasonably well demonstrated" that a missile is operable.

Ehrliche, who worked on the German V-2 with Werner von Braun, now is assistant to the technical director of astronautics in General Dynamics Corporation's Convair division.

On the general missile program Ehrliche said that no flight test is really a failure. Something is learned even when missiles fail to achieve their ultimate goals.

The U.S. hasn't got a prototype of a manned space ship, he said. However, the experimental craft coming closest is the North American X-15, designed to investigate heights of 200,000 feet.

The Borden Fire Department arrived on the scene as possible and concentrated efforts on preventing the flames from spreading and were successful in preventing the near-home of Mr. Archie Gallant from catching fire.

It was reported there was no insurance on the home. Mrs. Ahearn has six children ranging from three to twelve years.

The fire broke out around 2:00 o'clock Sunday morning.

Home In Borden Destroyed By Fire On Saturday Morning

The bungalow home of Mrs. Doris Ahearn, Borden, was destroyed Sunday morning by a fire of unknown origin that broke out while Mrs. Ahearn and six children were away. By the time the blaze was noticed by neighbors it was too far advanced to save anything and all the contents of the home went up in flames.

The Borden Fire Department arrived on the scene as possible and concentrated efforts on preventing the flames from spreading and were successful in preventing the near-home of Mr. Archie Gallant from catching fire.

It was reported there was no insurance on the home. Mrs. Ahearn has six children ranging from three to twelve years.
