Christmas Gift To A Waif Costs Little Thro' "CARE"

OTTAWA A young man in a hurry, he wants $100,000 before Christmas, sat down in his office here today, pointed at a picture of a starving Indonesian child lying on his desk, and said: "How many pennies do you lose in a year? Or in a month, for that matter?"

Along the strange, bewildering and lovely paths of our days, wandering sometimes down into the depths of dim quiet valleys, climbing then to the clear of hilltops, we have reached now December, last month of the year. December... and with it, Christmas, a season most beloved. And an old festival, ancient, yes but with a Babe.

ELLEN'S DIARY

By An Island Farmer's Wife

The Island. I wouldn't say there's much sign of a storm yet-not that the wind as it is. In any event travellers will be pretty well off the roads by this," he glances at the clock and smiles, he who is disturbed by the very thought of anyone being caught abroad in the like.

What a busy week our farmers had "straightening away" for their winter! What haulings there were! Store-feeding for the piggeries, bales of hay and straw, grists. And one sunny afternoon the lambs were gathered up and taken to market... And the sheep driven along a winter-white setting to remain at a far barn.

He points out, for instance, that $5 would send 15 1/2 lbs. of glutinous rice, 4 1/2 lbs. of sea salt, 2 1/2 lbs. of salted fish, 1 quart of fish sauce and 9 oz. of Chili pepper to Laos, Indo-China.

And all the time November was collecting his souvenirs—a brown coat, a scarf of filmy mist, a faded sunbeam, a level of frost, a first icicle, a fragment of snow-blanket. And binding them about with the lonely Au Revoirs of the wild geese, and carrying them close to a heart, was gone "over the hills and far away." And December was here—a month when "Heaven comes down our souls to greet" and as we have said, thoughts turn to the Bethlehem road.

Not the Christ of our subtle creeds. But the light of our hearts and our homes. Our hopes, our fears, our needs. Not till the world shall climb To the height serene, sublime, Shall the Christ that enters our door Pass, to return no more."

Mr. Watson has many plans to help Canadians look after the orphans and refugees of war-torn lands, feeling himself that everyone craves the satisfaction of knowing that they have "done something".

"It would be nice, Ellen if conditions would stay as they are—without more snow about. The roads are good for hauling or getting about and it's easy to get the choring done, now that folks are straightened away for the winter. I hope... that it may bypass

Mr. Watson can be made a happy man by sending your donations to CARE to his office at 116 O'Connor Street, Ottawa. Receipts, acceptable for income tax deduction, will be sent in the return mail.

KEEP IN TRIM A Step In Time Saves Slimming For You Later

By Ida Jean Kain

There is no more promising day for slimming than this very day. So back to calorie curbing, the scientific way. Don't make the almost fatal mistake of waiting until Monday to resume your diet.

At this point it will help enormously to visualize your goal... get the picture vividly in your mind, yourself at healthy normal weight with all your bounce and verve. To activate the date when you can expect to be one dress size smaller. Base your calculations on the rate of weight loss of two pounds a week.

The number of pounds to a smaller dress size depends, of course, on the fit of your present size, as well as on your size range. In larger sizes there are 16 pounds from one size to the next. In smaller sizes, the range is 10 to 14 pounds. Unless you are crowding the seams, 16 pounds will be the most you need to lose in order to wear that next smaller size.

The psychological technique of keeping your goal in mind and picturing yourself as you wish to look will give you unexpected will power. To activate the will there must be purpose, an incentive and vision. Your will is part and parcel of your whole attitude.

Renew your enthusiasm and you'll have energy. Get excited about losing 10 pounds or 30. William James says that it is excitement, ideas and enthusiasm that restore energy and vitality. On the other hand, doubt dampens enthusiasm. With the science of nutrition, there need be no slight doubt about the outcome of your reducing program. On a 1000 to 1200 calorie diet, with a complete protein and the balance of the menus made up of protective foods, you will reach normal weight in due time. You're on the right track just keep going.

To wear that smaller size with a flair, you will perhaps need to slim down more in some places than in others. Here is a honey exercise for slimming off the middle measurement:

Position: Stand on knees, feet sit back on your legs and heels. Have arms out at sides, shoulder level.

Movement: Contract snugly with the glute muscles, and holding that up-and-in pull, bend slowly to the right, trying to touch fingers to floor at right side. Hold that stretch bend for a slow count of 6. Back to position, contract again, a touch holding that up-and-in pull, bend slowly to the left, trying to touch fingers to floor at right side. Hold that stretch-bend for a slow count of 6. Back to position, contract again, and bend to the left, again holding the movement. When you get the gist of the exercise, make it a point to stretch up with the lifted arm. Repeat 10 times, each time holding to a count of 6. Repeat

HOUSEHOLD HINT Old fabrics and delicate lace can be protected before washing in the washing machine by basting to a piece of muslin or, if that is impractical, placing them loosely in a muslin bag. This method facilitates handling such pieces and avoids strain on delicate threads. The laces should be pinned to flat surface while wet and allowed to dry.

More Space Afforded In New Open-Plan Dwellings

Canadian home owners continue to discover that more space is afforded by open-plan houses. And even when the actual floor space is small, there are various ingenious flexible arrangements that have been worked out to permit family activities and entertaining either to be confined to or to overflow from one area to the next.

POSE A PROBLEM

In such households—and that means for most of us—a sense of orderliness can be maintained by thoughtful furnishing and decorating. As can be expected, large glass areas and the absence of partitioning walls do pose problems in the placement and grouping of furniture. These problems can be easily solved, however, by utilizing the ingenious pieces of furniture that have been designed because of the desire for an open plan layout.

There are, for example, modular units which stack, or group or stand alone. These meet almost any need or situation. Then there is another innovation in the furniture field that is proving most helpful.

SIMPLE DEVICE

A very easy and simple device is to apply a finish to chests, desks, cabinets and sideboards that may stand away from a wall to designate a division of space. In many instances, these pieces may be grouped with related pieces to serve as room dividers.

Many of the top-flight furniture designers, conscious of these conditions, are paying particular attention to the profile or contour of the pieces they create so that they will be attractive from any and all angles, whether by themselves or in free standing groups. This is particularly welcome where one room flows into another with little else than the furniture to mark the separation.
