Smallpox May Be Weapon To Force Action By Brazil

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—Jimmy Orr's smallpox may be used as a weapon by Pan - American health authorities to force Brazil into more aggressive action to stamp out the disease, reported still prevalent in parts of that country.

A report issued by the Pan-American Health Organization shows at least 1,411 cases of smallpox occurred last year in Rio De Janeiro alone.

Because of a lack of statistics and a lack of co-operation from Brazilian doctors in providing smallpox information, organization officials said they don't know how many cases occurred in the rest of Brazil or how many went unreported in Rio.

Dr. Earl Chamberlayne, 46, Canadian - born official of the health organization, said it has been trying for years to clean up smallpox in Latin America. But the organization could not force a country to take action it did not want to take.

A native of White Rock, B.C., and an expert in communicable diseases, Dr. Chamberlayne said some countries, such as Colombia, quickly applied eradiation measures. Others were slow. Outbreaks still were prevalent in Brazil and Ecuador.

GAYE WARNING ..

Dr. Chamberlayne, on the organization's staff since 1952, said:

"Some 18 months ago I made a speech at Winnipeg and I told people there that those who didn't keep their smallpox vaccinations up-to-date were virtually dry tinder for the disease because of increased world travel and the fact smallpox still prevails in parts of the world."

"Some of my colleagues called me a scaremonger," He said in an interview, "but I think I was right. Here we have the problem of Jimmy Orr."

Orr, 14-year-old son of Rev. and Mrs. James Orr of Three Hills, Alta., is in a Toronto isolation hospital with smallpox, after having flown from Brazil to New York Aug. 11, and travtlled to Toronto by train with his family.

Health authorities representing the 21 member countries of the Pan - American Union now are meeting at Minneapolis and Dr. Chamberlayne said a resolution may be adopted calling on Brazil and Ecuador to speed eradication programs, using the Orr case as argument.

The health organization's annual report stated that 1,923 smallpox cases were reported in 1961 for all of Latin America, including the 1,411 in Rio De Janeiro. Officials hastened to add that reporting of communicable diseases in Latin-American countries is still far from complete.

Dr. Chamberlayne said Brazil has been conducting a vaccination program but he does not know how widespread it is.

"For maximum protection, a person should have his vaccination renewed every three years. The vaccine tends to lose some of its protective value after that."

Lighthouse Base Sinks In River

OTTAWA (CP) — The transport department has reported the sinking — on purpose—of its newest and most modern lighthouse.

The base of the hourglass-shaped structure was sunk earlier this month in 38 feet of water at the juncture of the St. Lawrence and Saguenay Rivers 105 miles down river from Quebec City. The base now is being filled inside with 8,000 tons of rock and concrete to anchor it firmly in position.

A $1,000,000 project, the lighthouse will replace a lightship in guiding vessels around the treacherous prince shoal at the Saguenay's mouth. It is the first to be designed with a helicopter landing deck for the transfer of lighthouse staff.

The main caisson was towed from Quebec City by four barges. Then valves were opened and the huge steel structure sank slowly onto a specially - prepared section of the river bottom. It took three hours to go down.

Now a tower will be erected on the upper part of the "hourglass" with the helicopter deck beside it.

The lighthouse will be ready for operation next spring.

Confidential Documents Case Proves Mystery For Diplomats

By JACK BEST

OTTAWA (CP)—The case of the Confidential document that somehow failed to remain confidential had diplomatic officials mystified and—in many cases—wryly amused.

The document, supporting the candidacy of Ceylonese High Commissioner G. P. Malalasekera for president of the UN General Assembly, was circulated among several foreign missions here several weeks ago.

It is understood to have contained several uncomplimentary references to the United States and some other Western countries.

Dr. Malalaskera, as well as being Ceylon's high commissioner here, is the chief Ceylonese delegate to the UN.

A firm "no comment" was the only response of a high commission spokesman to requests for information on the document, existence of which was disclosed in a news dispatch from United Nations headquarters in New York Tuesday night.

Apparently it had been for some time a choice conversational tidbit, and the course of amused chuckles, on the Ottawa cocktail circuit.

Dr. Malalasekera himself was not in Ottawa, having gone to Jamaica to represent Ceylon at the Caribbean country's recent independence celebrations.

The controversial document was understood to have been prepared originally for the Ceylonese government. Puzzled diplomats could only speculate on how it came to be distributed here.

Informed opinion here tended to support suggestions from UN headquarters that circulation of the document—and the subsequent publicity — killed whatever chances Dr. Malalasekera may have had of winning the assembly presidency when the 1962 assembly opens next month.

Medals Found At Fort Site

LOUISBOURG, N.S. (CP)—Restoration workers at Louisbourg fortress have discovered a small lead chest containing three French bronze medals struck in 1719.

A worker's trowel uncovered the chest in the foundation of the King's Bastion, one of the buildings in the early Canadian fortress.

The medals were especially designed and struck by order of King Louis XV of France to commemorate the founding of the fortress. In 1720 they were placed under the right shoulder angle of the bastion.

The fortress, fought over by the English and French in the 18th century, is being restored as a national historical site.

The medals will be displayed in the fortress among other relics.

INVESTIGATE GUN THEFT

RENFREW, Ont. (CP)—Town and military police are investigating the theft of five sten guns from the militia armory in this town 60 miles west of Ottawa. Police said a window was broken at the rear of the building and a door was forced inside. It could not be determined whether any ammunition was missing.

Opening lead — eight of spades.

This hand occurred in a pair championship in London in 1938 and featured extraordinary defensive play. Star of the deal was M. Harrison - Gray, well-known British expert, who held the West cards.

Gray led a spade and declarer ducked two rounds of the suit. East continued with a spade, even though he had no entry, and South was forced to win it with the ace. On the spade West discarded the ace of diamonds!

Declarer naturally thought Gray was discarding from the A-x of diamonds in order to establish an entry card for East's presumed Q-x of diamonds, and, in fact, the unusual discard would have been necessary if that had been the case.

Declarer, sold on the idea that East had the queen of diamonds, decided to attack clubs as his only hope. Accordingly, he cashed the ace of hearts and then overtook the queen with the king in order to lead the nine of clubs and double-finesse.

The nine lost to the jack and back came the three of diamonds. Declarer ran up with the king, cashed the jack of hearts, and next led the eight of clubs, hoping to find East with the king.

But East showed out and South's hopes went a-glimmering. He won the ace of clubs and returned the queen but the defense took over from there on.

Gray took the king of clubs, cashed the queen of diamonds and then exited with the four of hearts to East's eight. (He had previously unblocked the hearts by dropping the 10-9.) The result was that South went down three in a hand where he could have made four notrump if he had known how the adverse cards were distributed.

It is hard to blame South for playing as he did. People don't usually run around tossing aces when they hold the A-Q-x in front of a long suit headed by the K-J-9. It was difficult for South to read the actual situation.
