Naval Tradition To Be Observed

The Summerside Royal Canadian Sea Cadets will again observe the tradition of the Royal Canadian Navy in having the youngest seaman assume the position of captain of a ship at Christmas time.

Commanding Officer Lt. Lynn Gallant said this morning that this fun-filled observance of navy tradition will take place at the Y Centre here Monday evening.

There are 42 cadets in the local association, and Commanding Officer Gallant reports a 90 per cent attendance at sessions during the year, with 100 per cent attendance at the Remembrance Day Parade.

The usual privileges afforded to the youngest seaman usually takes place aboard ship Christmas Day, but it has been advanced to this Monday by local cadets in the Y Centre between nine and eleven o'clock.

Auction Figures Same As Last Year

Ralph Manning, Rotary Radio Auction chairman, said this morning that although a final count had not been made, preliminary figures from Tuesday night's auction indicate net returns almost exactly the same as last year.

But Mr. Manning believed it might be slightly higher by the time all workers are finished. However, though the totals of the two years are the same he expressed the opinion the net return might be a bit higher this year as he anticipated expenses would prove lower than in 1966.

Honorable M. Lorne Bonnell Presides At Centre Opening

By RALPH CAMERON

This is our first treatment Centre for alcoholics; it is a start for the province. I hope to see the idea expand and include Prince and Kings Counties. I hope to see the plan succeed so we get the alcoholic back to work, and rehabilitate both him and his family. When we do, we will have created something the rest of Canada will be proud to come and observe.

The remark was made by Hon. M. Lorne Bonnell, minister of welfare, yesterday, as he presided over the official opening of the new Alcoholic Treatment Centre on Malpeque Road.

The Minister was introduced by the chairman, J. Eldon Green, who said the need for such a centre, had long been recognized and recently a group of volunteers organized themselves to get it. Learning that the building formerly housing St. Vincent's Orphanage was vacant, they made an appeal for its use and "through the great generosity of the bishop we got it."

Mr. Green said it was an "experimental" program and it was hoped within two years to have gained sufficient experience and knowledge to plan for the long-term future.

LOOKED FORWARD

Dr. Bonnell said he had looked forward to this for many years as "alcohol has become both a health and welfare problem. Is it a disease or an allergy? I have heard it called both, but in either case, it is serious". He thoroughly approved the idea of the Centre being operated by a private group rather than by government, because of the personal interest involved.

BISHOP MacEACHERN

Bishop Malcolm MacEACHERN told the group he was only hoping to see the day when "this building will not have a single occupant — because there will be no further need". Turning his verbal attention to members of the government, on the stand he said he recognized their efforts, but the time had come for an educational program "not to teach people to drink, but to teach them how to drink. Alcohol is always going to be here and I can tell you gentlemen some of our liquor laws need to be changed."

PREMIER CAMPBELL

Premier Alex Campbell said "as a government, we recognize the serious problem existing. This centre represents a milestone from which many Islanders can and may benefit." He expressed his appreciation of the group which was prepared to do something about the problem of alcoholic drinking, and said the Centre did not represent a government program, but was one to which it was happy to lend support. He said he was glad Ottawa was also helping in the matter of salaries and that any operating deficit incurred would be shared evenly by the federal and provincial governments.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Lieutenant Governor W.J. MacDonald, offered his congratulations on the opening, and expressed his personal appreciation, to the committee "which has worked so hard to get this organized and away to such an excellent start".

"Alcoholism has been with us a long time, though perhaps we don't like to admit it. Trying to abolish it has failed. It is time the problem was brought out into the open by such matters as opening this Centre. Now alcoholism can be treated properly and in a sane manner", the Governor said.

DEPUTY MAYOR

Also present for the occasion was Deputy Mayor Dorothy Corrigan, and a host of interested citizens and government officials including Hon. Cecil Miller, minister of fisheries; Hon. Daniel MacDonald, minister of agriculture; Hon. Earl Hickey, provincial treasurer; and a large number of private citizens interested in helping alcoholics.

BRIEF CEREMONIES

Following the brief ceremonies held in the former chapel the guests were taken on a tour of the building, and then were served afternoon tea by a group of volunteer women, gathered for the occasion.

The Centre will serve as a treatment centre for alcoholics, referred to it by Riverside Hospital authorities or physicians.

Ferries To Run To Dec. 11

Captain C. Hunter stated last night that as there is no ice forming around the docks as yet, both of the Wood Island ferries will continue to run until Sunday Dec. 11.

After that date, one ferry will run until bad weather makes it impossible to do so.

Premier To Hold Meeting

It is expected that Premier Alex Campbell will meet today with J.B. Harris, vice-president of W.P. Grace Shipping Lines.

Mr. Harris is expected to travel to Georgetown tomorrow where he will be shown through Bathurst Marine Limited a new Gulf Garden Foods Limited by Jens Moe, chairman on the board of both plants.

"We are looking for definite proposals and a financial commitment as it is now clear that the Georgetown operation cannot continue to operate on future possibilities and expectations," Premier Campbell was quoted as saying following a meeting with Gulf Garden Foods Limited manager Cyril Davis in Summerside on Sunday evening.
