Cleveland Hires Running Expert

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Olympic champion Harrison Dillard is going to try to give the Cleveland Indians more speed on the base paths.

Indian Manager Bobby Bragan said Tuesday he had watched Raoul Ruiz, Cuban Olympic track coach, do wonders with baseballers in Cuba this winter and had decided the Cleveland club could use the same kind of tutoring.

Bragan didn't have to look far for a track coach. Dillard, who won sprint and hurdle medals in two trips to the Olympics, is a member of the Indians' front office staff.

Dillard is due to arrive at the Cleveland camp early in March and will devote much of the spring training period to teaching the Indians how to make the most of their physical assets in running bases.

"We are not after straightaway speed," Bragan explained. "We want to make the Indians more running conscious. We want them to be thinking about getting away from the plate faster, picking up their feet and using their arms to proper advantage.

"A lot of baseball players don't know a thing about running. They Robinson concentrated on body punching against sparring partners Irish Bobby Lee and Lee Williams. The workout, scheduled for three rounds, was shortened by Robinson's handlers who said the former kingpin "looked better" than at any time since he started training for the return match.

Trainer Has More To Do Than Sponge And Bandage

By GERRY McNEIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer
EDMONTON (CP)— Cecil (Tiger) Goldstick will tell you that the life of a trainer in athletics is not just a matter of alcohol, bandages and a sponge.

During a career that began in the 1930s, Tiger has done everything from thawing frozen underwear to using psychology on his charges.

"Hockey is the toughest sport—even tougher than football or wrestling," he says, "I like it because it's our sport."

"You have to have brains and ability to play—why, stick-handling is an art in itself—and you have to be in top condition."

AN EARLY START

Tiger trained midget hockey local horseman and member of the United States Trotting Association, said today.

The Maritimes-Maine division of the association has asked Ottawa to institute saliva tests in this area.

Mr. MacGregor said drugs administered by needle or mouth are used by some unscrupulous horsemen to calm some horses and pep up others on Maritime tracks.

teams in his teens when he wasn't wrestling on amateur cards here. Later he trained two Western Hockey League clubs, a United States hockey team and the Edmonton Eskimos of both football and hockey.

Now chief trainer of Edmonton Flyers of the WHL and a wrestling referee, manager of a woman wrestler and minor hockey coach in his spare time, Tiger boasts:

"I've never been with a team that hasn't made the playoffs."

He was trainer for coach Bud Poile's Flyers when they won the WHL title several years ago and for Toe Blake's Houston, Texas, Huskies when they took the United States league crown.

"The golden stick" has packed a busy training career into his 35 years—"I've been accused of being older"—despite five years in the navy, and it has involved some many experiences.

FROZEN UNDERWEAR

"One night in Saskatoon it was 30 below. The dressing room was so cold a quarter-inch of ice formed on the players' underwear. I thawed them out, dried them and we played that night."

He recalls a night in 1948 when he took over coaching duties for the New Westminster Royals after coach Clarence Moher took sick. The injury-riddled team was down to eight players "but we beat Portland 4-2," he says.

Tiger said that while a lot of people forget the trainer, his value to a team could not be measured in terms of training only. "Players often will take problems to us rather than the coach or general manager," he said.

He tells of a player, now with Boston Bruins, who invariably had an ache.

"I thought it was psychological," grins Tiger, "so one night I gave him a cough drop when he complained about his back after the first period. He went back in and scored two goals."

Morell And Souris Teams Are Heading For Crown

Both teams from Eastern Kings' have advanced along the path leading to the Island Intermediate "C" crown. Morell and Murray Harbour over in two straight games, and Souris beat Milton, two games to one.

Morell and Murray Harbour waged quite a battle in their two games. Both teams fought hard, but at times, showed the effects of the short hockey season, as their shooting and passing was very erratic at times. On the Murray Harbour team, three players stood out. The top player on the ice from both teams was their goal-tender, Ralph MacPherson. Time after time, he came up with great saves to keep the Harbour boys in the game. To make it even better, he wasn't even the regular goalie.

While Harris played terrific hockey on defense for the Harbour, while his brother Wayne was impressive for his hard skating on the forward line. For Morell, on one player was outstanding. They worked nicely together, and teamwork was really the key note.

After bowing in the first game, on home ice, Souris came back and beat Milton in two straight games to advance to the next round. In this series, the work of Henry Jenkins in the Souris net was outstanding. The defense work of Cheverie, Dugas, and Lavers was also terrific.

Sandy MacDonald was the top player for Milton, and only the great shadow work of Jim Macdonald in the second game kept him from the score-sheet. He was unavailable for the third game.

Rollie Jenkins, noted mostly for his scoring prowess, has added something else to his laurels. That of back-skating. Never noted for this, Rollie did a good job of it in the recent series. If he keeps it up, he could be good two-way player.

Souris and Morell may meet in the next round. If they do, it could mean a renewal of the old rivalry. Souris and Morell used to stage many titanic battles, but after Morell dropped down to "C" their games became one-sided. Now that they are once again in the same class, it may be well worth watching.

They've already met twice this year, with one tie game, and Souris blanking Morell 3-0 in the other. If this series comes about, it should be a dilly.

The Souris High School absorbed their second defeat of the season on Thursday night, when they bowed 1-0 to the Red Point All Stars. The Red Point team could be classified as an intermediate team, so that, one could say, that under the guidance of their new coach, Don FitzPatrick, the boys are starting to improve.

The High School boys received their fourth straight setback of the season in the Island Basketball League on Saturday.
